Never Had Control of All Bingo

Tighten Supplies, Gilchrist Stand

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gambling promoters and criminals moved into every level of bingo operations almost as soon as the State Lottery Control Commission was created, a Moreland Act commissioner says.

Commissioner Thomas B. Gilchrist Jr. said in a report Thursday that the nine-member commission, now being legislated out of existence, never actually controlled the legalized bingo it was created to regulate.

Gilchrist was named last year by Gov. Rockefeller to recommend ways to improve the enforcement of bingo laws.

He has proposed a series of new laws, pending in the Legislature, to tighten supervision of persons renting halls or selling supplies for games. Persons with criminal records would be barred.

The Assembly has passed a bill to replace the commission with a five-member agency with broader powers. It is now before the Senate.

Gamblers Take Over

Gilchrist criticized three members of the commission for alleged conflicts of interest, which he said "in any public position represents a potential threat to the people of the state."

He said the present commission had wide powers to regulate bingo but, within months after it began its work, "commercialization was rampant, criminals were in at every level and the receipts swelled the pockets of gambling promoters at the expense of churches and charities."

Bingo was legalized in 1957 when the voters approved a constitutional amendment.

Three Asked for Data

Gilchrist said three commission members had been asked to fill out and "furnish under oath" detailed, financial questionnaires in connection with alleged conflicts of interest.

He said Commissioner David Rogers of Brooklyn resigned after declining to return his questionnaire.

Rogers had "an occasion interjected himself in game operations, interfering with the work of the inspectors of his own commission," Gilchrist said.

He said Rogers had been a director of Brooklyn Women's Hospital. Another director was Emil Lence, owner of Eastern Parkway Arena, which was rented to the hospital and other affiliated groups for $178.000 for bingo games in 1960, Gilchrist said.

Classed as Lobbyist

Commissioner Albert J. Foley of Dunkirk was identified as counsel to the New York Association of Volunteer Firemen. Gilchrist said Foley's "independence of judgment is in substantial question in his having supported... legislative action favoring the members of the group by whom he is employed as legal counsel and lobbyist."

Commissioner William J. White of Garden City acknowledged the acceptance of $600 from a distributor of bingo supplies, which he said was payment of an election bet, Gilchrist said.

Monte Resigns as Patrolman, Salary Too Small for Family

A patrolman who said he regretted leaving work which he had hoped to make his lifetime career submitted his resignation to the police board Thursday night claiming that the salary was insufficient for the raising of a family.

Officer Frank Monte, who only Thursday afternoon became the father of twins born at Kingston Hospital, notified the board that he was resigning as of March 26, even though police work was "something I always wanted."

The board accepted the resignation with regret, and Police Chief Robert F. Murphy today said the department would experience a loss because Monte was "an excellent patrolman, and I regret his leaving."

Officer Monte in a letter to the board explained that when he started on the force his wife was working and they had no children. They have since had two children before birth of the twins yesterday.

He had expected, he said, that he would be granted a pay raise, but had received none in approximately five years. Patrolmen start at $4,680 and receive increases for three years until they reach $5,000.

Monte plans to work as a deck hand on a boat.

His resignation leaves three vacancies on the force. The Municipal Civil Service Commission has no eligibility list from which to make appointment and probably will not have one for some time because an examination was taken only last month.

To Balance New Budget

State Will Collect 90 Million Earlier

By ROBERT T. GRAY

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The state will collect $90 million in business taxes ahead of schedule to balance Gov. Rockefeller's new budget, under a bill approved by the Legislature.

The $90 million will be a part of $140 million in non-recurring revenue the governor has listed to comply with laws requiring him to submit a balanced budget to the Legislature.

The balance of the $140 million will come from a $41 million payment on a loan of $76 million the state Thruway Authority owes the state and $9 million in advanced payments on cigarette-tax stamps sold by banks to tobacco dealers.

The Assembly gave final legislative approval Thursday to a bill that would advance payment dates of corporation, bank and insurance taxes.

Due Date Is April 1

The earlier dates would bring the 1963 due date of the taxes within the fiscal year beginning this April 1.

Ordinarily, the payments would have been due later than the end of the new fiscal year.

The extra payments will be used to finance the governor's record $2.6-billion budget.

Rockefeller has said that he is counting on an expanding state economy in future years to provide enough state revenues to balance the budget without higher taxes and without non-recurring income such as that to be used next year.

The tax-speedup bill was passed as the Legislature continued its accelerated pace toward adjournment late this month.

Hundreds of Bills Wait

Calendars in both houses are heavy with hundreds of bills awaiting action.

Legislative leaders hope to clear all business by the last week of the month, now the generally accepted time for adjournment.

In other state government developments:

State Police — The Senate approved Rockefeller's plan to add 658 additional troopers and civilian employes to the State Police division and reduce the work week for present troopers from 60 to 40 hours. The measure went to the Assembly where approval also was expected.

Prisoners — The Assembly passed and sent to Gov. Rockefeller a bill to liberalize the state's policy of time off for good behavior in prisons. The measure would allow prisoners to use days off for good conduct against their maximum sentences, as well as toward their minimums.

Welfare — A Democratic leader in the State Senate attacked, without immediate result, a plan of the Moreland Act Commission to conduct a survey among welfare recipients to determine basic causes for dependency. Sen. Samuel L. Greenberg of Brooklyn called the study wasteful and unnecessary.

Khrush Flexes Muscles as Tie To Geneva Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev announced today the Soviet Union has put a new space vehicle in orbit. At the same time he threatened the United States with what he called a "global rocket," invulnerable to antimissile defenses.

The Soviet leader said all American efforts to interdict the new weapon, as he described it, would be in vain.

Can't Feel Defended

"The time has passed when the Americans can feel defended from the consequences of war," he said.

Khrushchev gave no details of what the stage of development the so-called new weapon might be.

He made his remarks in the course of an election rally, preliminary to Sunday's voting in the Soviet Union. Earlier at the rally he had announced orbiting of a new space vehicle. Tass news agency said it was "an artificial earth satellite launched with a view to continuing the Soviet program of outer space research."

There was no announcement whether a man or other living being was aboard.

Call for Rusk, Gromyko Talks

Brazilian Minister Says That Smaller Nations Can Help Out Disarmament

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

GENEVA (AP) — The 17-nation disarmament conference called on Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko today to start prompt informal negotiations on their rival disarmament plans.

The move, proposed by India, came in the third session of the conference after Brazilian Foreign Minister Francisco San Thiago Dantas urged the nuclear powers to carry out negotiations to the extreme limit of compromise. He said the smaller nations can play an important role in seeking compromise by negotiation.

Against Wasting Time

With much formal speechmaking remaining and the foreign ministers expected to be in Geneva only about a week more, Indian Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon urged that Rusk and Gromyko as well as other delegation leaders waste no time in getting together for ihformal talks.

Rusk, who supported Menon's suggestion, met with the Indian delegation head immediately after the conference session.

Conference prospects suffered a blow Thursday night when the Soviet Union rejected President Kennedy's terms for a test ban. Resumption of U.S. nuclear weapon tests in the atmosphere next month appeared inevitable as a result.

The Soviets once more refused to accept foreign inspectors on their territory to check against violations of a test ban. They appeared certain to maintain this opposition to international inspection where all other disarmament measures were concerned.

To Keep Trying

The Western powers were just as adamant in their refusal to disarm without international inspection of the Soviets. Without a break in the East-West deadlock over inspection measures, top Western diplomats saw no hope for progress — but they intended to keep on trying, for weeks or months, if necessary.

Moscow's answer to Kennedy's test ban proposal was given Thursday night by Soviet Ambassador Semyon K. Tsarapkin. The U.S. President announced two weeks ago he had ordered a new atmospheric test series to begin in late April but would cancel it if the Soviet Union would agree to ban all tests under an international inspection system.

Tsarapkin met with U.S. negotiator Arthur Dean and British delegate Joseph Godber. Later an American spokesman announced the Soviet had turned down Kennedy's proposal abruptly and completely —without qualification. Tsarapkin declared the Soviet Union would accept a ban only with a national inspection system—each of the nuclear powers policing its own pledge.

The Soviet action was expected. The Soviets for months have contended that detection instruments are so far advanced that a sneak nuclear blast can be detected from thousands of miles away, and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko reportedly again told Secretary of State Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home earlier in the week that his government would not accept foreign inspectors to verify compliance with a test ban treaty.

Fact Discouraging

Allied diplomats found the hard fact of Tsarapkin's statement discouraging, however. There had been a persistent hope among Western disarmament experts that the Soviet Union would modify its position on inspection.

The disarmament conference got down to business Thursday, following Wednesday's ceremonial opening, with Rusk and Gromyko

Top Reds Seized For Failure to Register Party

NEW YORK (AP) — Two top-ranking American Reds, Gus Hall and Benjamin J. Davis, have been arrested in the first crackdown on Communist party officials who refuse to register the party with the government under the Subversive Activities Control Act.

They were allowed to go free overnight, but were ordered to post bail of $5,000 each today.

Arrested in N.Y.

Hall, 51, and Davis, 58, were arrested by U.S. marshals late Thursday at the American Communist party headquarters in the Chelsea section of Manhattan.

The arrests were made on warrants shortly after a federal grand jury in Washington indicted the two men on six counts each.

Hall was listed as the Communist party's general secretary and Davis as national secretary. Davis, a Negro, was a member of the New York City Council years ago when a short-lived proportional representation system made it possible for a candidate of such a minority party to get elected.

Both Hall and Davis have served prison terms on Smith Act convictions for conspiracy to teach and advocate overthrow of the government by force and violence.

Glenn's Backup Takes Over

Slayton Scratched By 'Erratic Heart'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A heart condition detected more than two years ago will keep astronaut Donald K. Slayton from becoming the next American to venture into space.

The assignment of following along the trail blazed by John H. Glenn Jr. will go instead to M. Scott Carpenter, another member of the seven-man Mercury space team.

'Deke' Very Disappointed

The switch in plans was announced Thursday night by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Earlier in the day an Air Force medical board had reviewed Slayton's condition —an "erratic heart rate"—and advised against his attempting the physically trying space mission.

On learning he had been scratched the Air Force major, 38, said "I'm very disappointed to say the least."

The space agency said the heart trouble was detected in November 1959, but it was decided to keep the former jet pilot in the program while keeping a close watch on his condition.

Slayton was to have made the second U.S. orbital flight within the next month or two. Like Glenn he was to have circled the earth three times in a Mercury capsule.

Schirra No. 2 Man

Carpenter, 36, a Navy flier, was Glenn's backup pilot last Feb. 20. He, in turn, will be backed up by astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., 38, who was to have filled the same role for Slayton.

While Slayton was disqualified from the next U.S. space flight, a space agency spokesman said he was "still a member of the Mercury program at this time." Further study of his condition will determine whether or not he will continue in it, the spokesman said.

After hearing that he had been replaced Slayton called his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Slayton, in Sparta, Wis., his hometown.

Mrs. Slayton said she felt sorry for her son. "I know he had his heart set on this, and it is difficult to come so close and not make it."

But the astronaut's father, 74, said he was relieved. He said he had advised his son, "don't let it get you down."

At Boulder, Colo., Florence Carpenter said she was delighted that her son would make the next space flight. "It took my breath away when I first heard the news but then I calmed down and realized it was what Scott had worked so hard for."

Carpenter is a native of Boulder. He is married and the father of four children. A lieutenant commander, he has been a Navy flier since 1949 and became a test pilot in 1954.

Carpenter Ready To Forfeit Life To Conquer Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Malcolm Scott Carpenter, selected suddenly as America's next space pilot, has said often that the conquest of space is an adventure he's willing to give his life for.

The risks, he says, are far overshadowed by the challenge, the chance to be a pioneer in manned exploration of the universe.

Similar to Glenn's

Carpenter, 36, a Navy commander, was picked Thursday to ride the next Project Mercury capsule into orbit. His selection by Mercury officials followed disclosure that the designated pilot, Air Force Maj. Donald K. Slayton, has heart trouble.

Carpenter's flight is intended to be very similar to John H.

93 Yanks On Way to Aid Force

Guam-Philippines Area Is Scoured

MANILA (AP)—U.S. military planes and ships pressed a hunt between Guam and the Philippines tonight for a chartered airliner which vanished at sea with 107 persons, chiefly American Army men, on a flight to war-torn South Viet Nam.

A full 24 hours passed since the four-engine Super Constellation, owned by the California-based Flying Tiger Line, radioed its last message. This was a routine report to Guam from a position 270 miles west of that U.S. base in the western Pacific, as it headed for Clark Air Force Base, north of Manila.

Scour 75,000-Square Miles

Search craft crisscrossed 75,000 square miles of the Pacific fruitlessly by daylight and were continuing through the night. Weather was excellent and the sea normal.

The Super Constellation carried a crew of 11 Americans, 93 U.S. Army personnel and three South Vietnamese, Travis Air Force Base in California said. Four women were among the crew.

Military sources in Saigon assumed the troops were due to bolster the American forces backing South Viet Nam's government in its war against the Viet Cong guerrillas.

Retrace Steps

Fifteen aircraft based at Guam launched the hunt for the Flying Tiger plane. Spread over a 100-mile front, they flew 750 miles westward—to a point about midway between Guam and the Philippines—and then retraced their course eastward.

The plane took off from Guam at 8:57 p.m. Thursday night carrying fuel for about nine hours flying for the 1,600-mile, eight-hour hop to Clark Air Force Base, north of Manila. It was last heard from 80 minutes later when the pilot sent a routine radio message to Guam from about 270 miles west of that American island base.

Task Force Readied

The Clark Field Rescue Coordinating Center declared the airliner missing this morning. A U.S. Navy spokesman said it was believed the plane went down closer to Guam than to the Philippines.

U.S. bases in the Western Pacific marshaled a task force of surface ships and Air Force, Navy, Marine and Coast Guard planes.

Seven ships led by the destroyer escort Brister and 15 aircraft were dispatched from Guam, Clark Field, the U.S. 7th Fleet and the Air Force at Okinawa sent additional planes.

The searchers scoured an ocean area stretching 750 miles northeast of Guam and 100 miles wide

The airliner, piloted by Capt. Gregory P. Thomas of Red Bank, N.J., left Travis base in northern California Tuesday. Travis is often the originating point for troops being ferried across the Pacific by plane. Flying Tiger is often the carrier. Guam is a regular refueling stop.

Military sources in Saigon said the plane was due in South Viet Nam this morning. It was assumed in the Vietnamese capital that the military personnel aboard the plane were to join U.S. forces bolstering the South Viet Nam government's fight against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

Ulster Will Press Albany For Earlier Start on 209

With a fall or summer of 1963 date promised, Supervisor Alexander J. Banyo of the Town of Ulster was authorized Wednesday night to press for an even earlier reconstructiron time of Albany Avenue Extension, Route 209, from the Kingston City line north to the intersection of Route 199.

Authorization was granted Banyo during the March meeting of the Town of Ulster town board. As a result of this action, Banyo will contact the Albany office of State Superintendent of Highways J. Burch McMorran regarding the possibility of an earlier starting date on this project.

The fall or summer of 1963 date was given during the board meeting as a result of an earlier conferance in the Poughkeepsie office of the State Department of Public Works.

At the Poughkeepsie meeting District Engineer Sinacori indicated that the final engineering phases for the reconstruction of the route would occur during 1962 and that reconstruction would possibly begin some time in the summer or fall of next year.

In attendance at the meeting in Poughkeepsie in addition to Supervisor Banyo, were Edward Devine, chairman of the Planning Board; Edgar Elliott, superintendent of highways; Raymond Coles, member of the Planning Board, and Robert Mickle, planning consultant. They met with District Engineer Sinacori; J. D. Manning, assistant district engineer and J. E. Spratt of the planning staff.

Supervisor Banyo reminded the state engineers that he had forwarded a letter to them dated Oct. 16, 1961, in which he had notified them of the poor conditions on certain highways in the Town of Ulster, namely, Albany Avenue Extension (Route 209) north of the Kingston City line to its intersection with Route 9W (East Chester Street By-Pass) and from this point north to and including the temporary detour at the construction with the intersection of Route 199. In this October letter Supervisor Banyo had pointed out that a severe winter would render these roads extremely dangerous and impassable, unless immediate action was taken on their repair.

It was pointed out that the roads aforementioned were in desperate need of immediate repair and that they were almost impassable due to the winter conditions, especially during February. The Town of Ulster group strongly recommended and urged that the State Department of Public Works take immediate action for their repair.

The second point of discussion concerned the reconstruction of the above mentioned highway. Banyo indicated to the State Engineers that he and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, about three and a half years ago, were told by some engineers from the State Office in Albany that Routes 209 and 9W would

Ohio Town Hurdles Threat Of No Buses — Buys Firm

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — It didn't take residents of this city of 39,000 long to figure out a way to stop a suspension of public bus service—they bought out the company.

Several months ago the Zanesville Rapid Transit Co. announced that it was being forced to stop its bus service here because of increased operating costs and a drop in revenues.

Residents estimated that with $15,000, a down payment could be made on the 24 buses operated by the company and initial operating expenses could be met to take over the faltering firm.

In 15 days the goal was more than doubled, and Thursday officials proudly announced a yet-to-be formed company has $33,000 in its treasury.

Donations came from school children, elderly persons, merchants, civic groups and $3,600 from the local bus drivers' union.

The money was given on the understanding that it may never be repaid. However, officials are hopeful dividends can be issued to the donors when the official company is formed.

The present company, which has been operating without a charter since Feb. 18, plans to sell its buses for $25,000. A date for the transaction has not been set.

93 Yanks On Way to Aid Force

Guam-Philippines Area Is Scoured

MANILA (AP)—U.S. military planes and ships pressed a hunt between Guam and the Philippines tonight for a chartered airliner which vanished at sea with 107 persons, chiefly American Army men, on a flight to war-torn South Viet Nam.

A full 24 hours passed since the four-engine Super Constellation, owned by the California-based Flying Tiger Line, radioed its last message. This was a routine report to Guam from a position 270 miles west of that U.S. base in the western Pacific, as it headed for Clark Air Force Base, north of Manila.

Scour 75,000-Square Miles

Search craft crisscrossed 75,000 square miles of the Pacific fruitlessly by daylight and were continuing through the night. Weather was excellent and the sea normal.

The Super Constellation carried a crew of 11 Americans, 93 U.S. Army personnel and three South Vietnamese, Travis Air Force Base in California said. Four women were among the crew.

Military sources in Saigon assumed the troops were due to bolster the American forces backing South Viet Nam's government in its war against the Viet Cong guerrillas.

Retrace Steps

Fifteen aircraft based at Guam launched the hunt for the Flying Tiger plane. Spread over a 100-mile front, they flew 750 miles westward—to a point about midway between Guam and the Philippines—and then retraced their course eastward.

The plane took off from Guam at 8:57 p.m. Thursday night carrying fuel for about nine hours flying for the 1,600-mile, eight-hour hop to Clark Air Force Base, north of Manila. It was last heard from 80 minutes later when the pilot sent a routine radio message to Guam from about 270 miles west of that American island base.

Task Force Readied

The Clark Field Rescue Coordinating Center declared the airliner missing this morning. A U.S. Navy spokesman said it was believed the plane went down closer to Guam than to the Philippines.

U.S. bases in the Western Pacific marshaled a task force of surface ships and Air Force, Navy, Marine and Coast Guard planes.

Seven ships led by the destroyer escort Brister and 15 aircraft were dispatched from Guam. Clark Field, the U.S. 7th Fleet and the Air Force at Okinawa sent additional planes.

The airliner, piloted by Capt. Gregory P. Thomas of Red Bank, N.J., left Travis base in northern California Tuesday. Travis is often the originating point for troops being ferried across the Pacific by plane. Flying Tiger is often the carrier. Guam is a regular refueling stop.

Military sources in Saigon said the plane was due in South Viet Nam this morning. It was assumed in the Vietnamese capital that the military personnel aboard the plane were to join U.S. forces bolstering the South Viet Nam government's fight against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

Glenn's Backup Takes Over

Slayton Scratched By 'Erratic Heart'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A heart condition detected more than two years ago will keep astronaut Donald K. Slayton from becoming the next American to venture into space.

The assignment of following along the trail blazed by John H. Glenn Jr. will go instead to M. Scott Carpenter, another member of the seven-man Mercury space team.

'Deke' Very Disappointed

The switch in plans was announced Thursday night by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Earlier in the day an Air Force medical board had reviewed Slayton's condition —an "erratic heart rate"—and advised against his attempting the physically trying space mission.

On learning he had been scratched the Air Force major, 38, said "I'm very disappointed to say the least."

The space agency said the heart trouble was detected in November 1959, but it was decided to keep the former jet pilot in the program while keeping a close watch on his condition.

Slayton was to have made the second U.S. orbital flight within the next month or two. Like Glenn he was to have circled the earth three times in a Mercury capsule.

Schirra No. 2 Man

Carpenter, 36, a Navy flier, was Glenn's backup pilot last Feb. 20. He, in turn, will be backed up by astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., 38, who was to have filled the same role for Slayton.

While Slayton was disqualified from the next U.S. space flight, a space agency spokesman said he was "still a member of the Mercury program at this time." Further study of his condition will determine whether or not he will continue in it, the spokesman said.

After hearing that he had been replaced Slayton called his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Slayton, in Sparta, Wis., his hometown.

Mrs. Slayton said she felt sorry for her son. "I know he had his heart set on this, and it is difficult to come so close and not make it."

But the astronaut's father, 74, said he was relieved. He said he had advised his son, "don't let it get you down."

At Boulder, Colo., Florence Carpenter said she was delighted that her son would make the next space flight. "It took my breath away when I first heard the news but then I calmed down and realized it was what Scott had worked so hard for."

Carpenter is a native of Boulder. He is married and the father of four children. A lieutenant commander, he has been a Navy flier since 1949 and became a test pilot in 1954.

Carpenter Ready To Forfeit Life To Conquer Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Malcolm Scott Carpenter, selected suddenly as America's next space pilot, has said often that the conquest of space is an adventure he's willing to give his life for.

The risks, he says, are far overshadowed by the challenge, the chance to be a pioneer in manned exploration of the universe.

Similar to Glenn's

Carpenter, 36, a Navy commander, was picked Thursday to ride the next Project Mercury capsule into orbit. His selection by Mercury officials followed disclosure that the designated pilot, Air Force Maj. Donald K. Slayton, has heart trouble.

Carpenter's flight is intended to be very similar to John H.

Ulster Will Press Albany For Earlier Start on 209

With a fall or summer of 1963 date promised, Supervisor Alexander J. Banyo of the Town of Ulster was authorized Wednesday night to press for an even earlier reconstructiron time of Albany Avenue Extension, Route 209, from the Kingston City line north to the intersection of Route 199.

Authorization was granted Banyo during the March meeting of the Town of Ulster town board. As a result of this action, Banyo will contact the Albany office of State Superintendent of Highways J. Burch McMorran regarding the possibility of an earlier starting date on this project.

The fall or summer of 1963 date was given during the board meeting as a result of an earlier conferance in the Poughkeepsie office of the State Department of Public Works.

At the Poughkeepsie meeting District Engineer Sinacori indicated that the final engineering phases for the reconstruction of the route would occur during 1962 and that reconstruction would possibly begin some time in the summer or fall of next year.

In attendance at the meeting in Poughkeepsie in addition to Supervisor Banyo, were Edward Devine, chairman of the Planning Board; Edgar Elliott, superintendent of highways; Raymond Coles, member of the Planning Board, and Robert Mickle, planning consultant. They met with District Engineer Sinacori; J. D. Manning, assistant district engineer and J. E. Spratt of the planning staff.

Supervisor Banyo reminded the state engineers that he had forwarded a letter to them dated Oct. 16, 1961, in which he had notified them of the poor conditions on certain highways in the Town of Ulster, namely, Albany Avenue Extension (Route 209) north of the Kingston City line to its intersection with Route 9W (East Chester Street By-Pass) and from this point north to and including the temporary detour at the construction with the intersection of Route 199. In this October letter Supervisor Banyo had pointed out that a severe winter would render these roads extremely dangerous and impassable, unless immediate action was taken on their repair.

It was pointed out that the roads aforementioned were in desperate need of immediate repair and that they were almost impassable due to the winter conditions, especially during February. The Town of Ulster group strongly recommended and urged that the State Department of Public Works take immediate action for their repair.

The second point of discussion concerned the reconstruction of the above mentioned highway. Banyo indicated to the State Engineers that he and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, about three and a half years ago, were told by some engineers from the State Office in Albany that Routes 209 and 9W would

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — It didn't take residents of this city of 39,000 long to figure out a way to stop a suspension of public bus service—they bought out the company.

Several months ago the Zanesville Rapid Transit Co. announced that it was being forced to stop its bus service here because of increased operating costs and a drop in revenues.

Residents estimated that with $15,000, a down payment could be made on the 24 buses operated by the company and initial operating expenses could be met to take over the faltering firm.

In 15 days the goal was more than doubled, and Thursday officials proudly announced a yet-to-be formed company has $33,000 in its treasury.

Donations came from school children, elderly persons, merchants, civic groups and $3,600 from the local bus drivers' union.

The money was given on the understanding that it may never be repaid. However, officials are hopeful dividends can be issued to the donors when the official company is formed.

The present company, which has been operating without a charter since Feb. 18, plans to sell its buses for $25,000. A date for the transaction has not been set.

Divorce Papers Filed

RENO (AP) — Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller filed for a divorce today from the governor of New York.

Mrs. Rockefeller filed the action to end her 31 year marriage the day after completing legal residence permitting her to obtain a quickie Nevada divorce.

Attorney William K. Woodburn had conferred with a district court judge in Reno Thursday in preparation for the filing.

The tall slender 54-year-old New Yorker filed the formal papers at 9 a.m. PST.

30 People Meet To Campaign for FluoridationHere

The Citizens' Committee for Fluoridation was formed by an enthusiastic group of 30 people who met at the Governor Clinton Hotel last night.

Robert Carlzon, president of the Kingston Junior Chamber of Commerce, served as present chairman. Mrs. William Slover was appointed chairman of the public relations committee. Mr. Carlzon outlined a plan for organization and several tentative committees were appointed.

The next meeting of the organization will be held at 8 p. m., March 29. The exact location will be announced later.

The purpose of the group was outlined under a three-point program as follows:

1. To collect data concerning the advantages of adding healthful and beneficial amounts of florine to the Kingston city water supply.

2. To inform and educate the public as to the advantages of fluoridation and to make the community aware of the need for curbing dental caries, or tooth decay, through fluoridation.

3. To convince the public of the need for fluoridation of the Kingston city water supply.

4. To promulgate fluoridation of the Kingston city water supply by the most expeditious means.

Represented at the meeting were interested parents, who claim their children are subject to unnecessary tooth decay because of lack of adequate amounts of florine in the city water supply from natural sources; dental health assistants from the Kingston School System who have an opportunity to observe tooth decay in children enrolled in Kingston schools; informed members of the dental profession who are interested in promoting better dental health in Kingston; and citizens who said they wish to improve the city water supply.

Prospects Gain For Cease-Fire

EVIAN, France (AP) — Prospects for a French - Algerian cease-fire appeared improved today following agreement on the role of the rebel army in the period between the armistice and independence of the North African territory.

Both French and Algerian informants at the peace talks predicted a cease-fire might be proclaimed over the weekend by President Charles de Gaulle and the rebel premier, Ben Youssef Ben Khedda.

The informants reported general progress Thursday in a long day of negotiations after the talks had appeared headed for deadlock.

The two delegations agreed that the rebel army units would retain the positions they hold in the Algerian interior and would have some freedom of movement around those positions. Previously the French had demanded that they be closely confined to certain camps or areas.

Sources said the negotiators were approaching another compromise on the fate of thousands of Algerian political prisoners in French jails.

The Nationalists originally demanded a general amnesty for them. The French insisted on dealing with each case individually. The compromise would let most go free but provide for a three-man commission, including rebel representation, to look into disputed cases.

The upsurge of optimism in Evian was paralleled by an upsurge of terrorism in Algeria. The day's death toll rose to 41 and another 45 persons were wounded.

Call for Rusk

outlining rival disarmament proposals.

Italian Foreign Minister Antonio Segni was scheduled to speak today.

The eight non-aligned nations of the 17-nation group met at the call of India's V. K. Krishna Menon and discussed the developing situation. Menon was reported planning a middleman effort to pull the rival Rusk and Gromyko plans together into a single, generally acceptable compromise plan for arms cuts.

Too Far Apart

To most Western diplomats, the U.S. and Soviet approaches to disarmament appeared too far apart to produce a mutually acceptable compromise.

Gromyko called for total, worldwide disarmament in four years from the date of signing a treaty. he said the program should proceed by stages. Destroyed arms would be inspected, but not the arms and forces retained by each nation. Once general and complete disarmament and been achieved, then the Soviet Union would be wide open to inspection.

Gromyko said that when all armies were destroyed the United Nations should keep the peace. But Western leaders understand the Soviet Union's position is that the United Nations would not have its own army but only the authority to call up contingents from each nation—and the U.N. force would be subject to the big power veto.

Khrush Flexes

about the "global rocket" to reinforce his views on the current disarmament negotiations at Geneva. Referring to Western proposals for an effective control system, he said "we will never agree to this."

A control system, he argued, would be nothing but an espionage service for the west.

Khrushchev boasted that the Soviet Union has better means of delivering nuclear bombs—"mighty intercontinental rockets — than does the West.

He added that in these days men would have to be insane to begin a nuclear war.

Situation Still Tense

He said there are some signs that the international atmosphere is improving but "the situation still remains complicated and tense."

This is so, he continued, because the Western powers hate the idea of giving up their weapons.

He promised patience in the settlement of the German question but insisted that it "cannot delay endlessly the solution of this important task."

Khrushchev made the announcement in a completely offhand manner while a scientist was speaking at the meeting in the Kremlin.

The scientist, Alexander Yshlinsky, commented "We are launching cosmic rockets" and Khrushchev interrupted from his seat back of the rostrum.

"One was launched today at 3 o'clock and it is already in orbit," he said.

10,000 Cheer Word

He did not specify whether it was 3 a.m. or 3 p.m. and Soviet sources were unable to say immediately.

Khrushchev made the announcement to a crowd of about 10,000 and it brought a quick cheer.

Checks with the Soviet news agency Tass and the Academy of Science failed to produce any additional information immediately.

The Tass editor simply said, "We just heard Khrushchev's announcement."

After making today's off-the-cuff announcement, Khrushchev listened to a number of other speakers at the rally, intended to boost him for re-election to the Supreme Soviet in Sunday's balloting. He has, of course, no opposition.

A thunder of applause greeted the Soviet premier when he entered the hall. Speakers preceding him included a metal factory foreman, a woman doctor, the head of a hospital, an engineer, an academician and several others.

Present also were President Leonid Brzhnev and other members of the Presidium.

Khrushchev began his election speech by declaring that "only the blind cannot see that the future belongs to communism."

He assailed the two-party system of the United States and said the Soviet system, under which one candidate runs for any particular seat in the Supreme Soviet, this country's version of a parliament, is much better.

In the United States, Khrushchev said, they may have two candidates representing two parties but there is no real difference.

Bill to Protect Pensions Goes to President Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has sent President Kennedy legislation to set up tighter protection for $60 billion in pension and welfare funds.

The Senate Thursday cleared a compromised version of the bill by voice vote soon after the House passed it 283-108.

An effort by House Republicans to send the bill back to a Senate-House conference was defeated on a 217-182 roll call vote.

This was the second important item on Kennedy's legislative program to be sent to the White House this session. The first, a manpower retraining bill, received final congressional action Tuesday and was signed into law Thursday.

The pension-welfare plan bill is designed to prevent wrongdoing in connection with funds set up for the benefit of an estimated 90 million Americans.

It puts enforcement teeth into a 1958 disclosure law covering the funds.

The new bill would:

1. Give the secretary of labor authority to require full and accurate detail regarding the operation of the plans.

2. Give the secretary power to investigate violations of the reporting provision and to enforce those provisions with injunctions.

3. Require bonding of administrators, officials and employes who handle plan funds and properties.

4. Provide criminal penalties for offering, accepting or soliciting bribes or kickbacks in administering the plans, for making false statements in the reports, or for stealing or embezzling plan funds or properties.

Carpenter Ready

Glenn Jr.'s three-times-around-the-world orbit on Feb. 20. It is scheduled for sometime in May. Carpenter was Glenn's backup pilot and worked closely with him for months.

This nation's next space pilot has dreamed often of traveling into the unknown void of space.

"Riding the centrifuge," Carpenter says, "I imagine sometimes that I'm not in the flight simulator at all, but in the very capsule itself.

"There can be no substitute, though, for the thrilling reality of the moment when the astronaut realizes he's finally in a good orbit. It will be a moment when he can start to appreciate some new and wonderful sensations."

Has Four Children

With four children, the handsome, Colorado-born Carpenter has the largest family of the astronaut team. The children are Mark Scott, 12; Robyn Jay, 8; Kristine Elaine, 6; and Candace Noxon, 5. A fifth child died in 1951 at the age of 6 months.

Carpenter's attractive wife Rene shares his space role intimately. When they are separated for long periods by his rigorous training program, they write long letters. He tells in detail of the progress of Project Mercury and Rene says he once sent her 17 pages.

Both are natives of Boulder, Colo., where Carpenter was born May 1, 1925.

He began his flying career in 1943 in the Navy's V5 training program at Colorado College. After World War II, he entered the University of Colorado and in 1949 received a degree in aeronautical engineering.

Pilot During Korea

After graduation he joined the Navy and became an airborne electronics expert. During the Korean War he was involved in anti-submarine patrol, shipping surveillance and aerial mining in the Yellow and South China seas and in the Formosa Straits.

He graduated from the Navy test pilot school in 1954 and began the hazardous testing task which qualified him as a Project Mercury astronaut.

Carpenter spends as much of his free time as possible with his family at their home at Langley Air Force Base, Va., home of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's manned space flight center. He enjoys archery, skin-diving and skiing. He is an Episcopalian.

lier actions by the government in the same field means that the U.S. Communist party is outlawed or that membership in it is illegal.

Registration with the government is required in many fields, he said.

Kennedy said he wanted to clear up misunderstanding that he found overseas during his recent tour.

John Abt, counsel for Hall and Davis, said here he was certain that both would plead innocent. He said the Communist party takes the position that the 1950 law under which they were indicted is unconstitutional because it violates the privilege against self-incrimination."

If convicted, they would face a possible maximum penalty of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine on each count of the six-count indictment.

be planned for total reconstruction and that storm water drainage would be provided in these areas, and that in the summer of 1960 the state had, in fact, made surveys in this area for the reconstruction. The Ulster group pointed out to the State Engineers the urgency of planning this reconstruction project at the earliest possible date so that the present poor conditions, even though they will be temporarily repaired, will not again recur. Sinacori indicated that the final engineering phases for this reconstruction would occur during 1962 and that reconstruction would possibly begin some time in the summer or fall of 1963. Supervisor Banyo asked that if at all possible, this project be given A-1 priority and that the reconstruction time be moved up to an earlier date.

At the Town Board meeting Wednesday a Resolution was unanimously passed, authorizing Supervisor Banyo to contact the office of J. Burch McMorran in Albany requesting an earlier reconstruction time.

To Survey Park Site

The Town Board passed a Resolution authorizing Supervisor Banyo to hire a licensed professional survey man to make a survey on a site under consideration for purchase as Town Park land and to have an appraisal made of the value of this site along the Hudson River.

A communication was received from Edward Crosby, principal of Lake Katrine School, pointing out to the town board that dogs are following many of the children to school and that this condition sometimes frightens the smaller children, even though at this point no child has been bitten. The Town Board has asked the dog warden to assist the principals of both Lake Katrine and Chambers Schools in this matter and to take whatever action is legally permitted. The Town Board respectfully requests the residents of the town to make every attempt to keep their dogs on their own premises at all times, and in this way, the congregating of dogs, either on school grounds or on private property of others would not occur. It was pointed out at this time by the town clerk that there are some who have not yet purchased licenses for their dogs and that it will become necessary to summon these owners unless licenses are secured immediately.

The Town Board passed a resolution authorizing Superintendent of Highways Edgar Elliott to post certain roads in the township for limitation of weight.

To Pull Water Pump

On Tuesday, March 20, the engineers for the Town of Ulster Water District are arranging to pull the pump for a precautionary examination. Vital spare parts have been already purchased and are on the scene in case they are needed. The Town Board requests that people in the Ulster Water District use as little water as is required on this day, for even though there is a sufficient storage supply to service all necessary needs, they request that care in use would provide a sufficient supply in case a great runoff would be needed in the event of a fire.

On April 9 a joint meeting will be held between the Town Board and the Planning Board to discuss the final phases of the street numbering system in certain parts of the town.

Couple Cruelly Tortured, Slain

JASPER, Tenn. (AP)—Although tortured with fire and scalding water, an elderly brother and sister apparently refused to reveal their hidden wealth before they finally were shot to death.

"It's hard to understand the mentality of anyone who could inflict such excruciating pain as this on an old man and woman," said Kenneth Shelton, an agent of the Tennessee Bureau of Identification.

Shelton released an autopsy report Thursday night which showed that Grant Carter, 71; and his sister, Tora, 77, were tortured for hours before being shot.

30 People Meet To Campaign for FluoridationHere

The Citizens' Committee for Fluoridation was formed by an enthusiastic group of 30 people who met at the Governor Clinton Hotel last night.

Robert Carlzon, president of the Kingston Junior Chamber of Commerce, served as present chairman. Mrs. William Slover was appointed chairman of the public relations committee. Mr. Carlzon outlined a plan for organization and several tentative committees were appointed.

The next meeting of the organization will be held at 8 p. m., March 29. The exact location will be announced later.

The purpose of the group was outlined under a three-point program as follows:

1. To collect data concerning the advantages of adding healthful and beneficial amounts of florine to the Kingston city water supply.

2. To inform and educate the public as to the advantages of fluoridation and to make the community aware of the need for curbing dental caries, or tooth decay, through fluoridation.

3. To convince the public of the need for fluoridation of the Kingston city water supply.

4. To promulgate fluoridation of the Kingston city water supply by the most expeditious means.

Represented at the meeting were interested parents, who claim their children are subject to unnecessary tooth decay because of lack of adequate amounts of florine in the city water supply from natural sources; dental health assistants from the Kingston School System who have an opportunity to observe tooth decay in children enrolled in Kingston schools; informed members of the dental profession who are interested in promoting better dental health in Kingston; and citizens who said they wish to improve the city water supply.

Prospects Gain For Cease-Fire

EVIAN, France (AP) — Prospects for a French-Algerian cease-fire appeared improved today following agreement on the role of the rebel army in the period between the armistice and independence of the North African territory.

Both French and Algerian informants at the peace talks predicted a cease-fire might be proclaimed over the weekend by President Charles de Gaulle and the rebel premier, Ben Youssef Ben Khedda.

The informants reported general progress Thursday in a long day of negotiations after the talks had appeared headed for deadlock.

The two delegations agreed that the rebel army units would retain the positions they hold in the Algerian interior and would have some freedom of movement around those positions. Previously the French had demanded that they be closely confined to certain camps or areas.

Sources said the negotiators were approaching another compromise on the fate of thousands of Algerian political prisoners in French jails.

The Nationalists originally demanded a general amnesty for them. The French insisted on dealing with each case individually. The compromise would let most go free but provide for a three-man commission, including rebel representation, to look into disputed cases.

The upsurge of optimism in Evian was paralleled by an upsurge of terrorism in Algeria. The day's death toll rose to 41 and another 45 persons were wounded.

Call for Rusk

outlining rival disarmament proposals.

Italian Foreign Minister Antonio Segni was scheduled to speak today.

The eight non-aligned nations of the 17-nation group met at the call of India's V. K. Krishna Menon and discussed the developing situation. Menon was reported planning a middleman effort to pull the rival Rusk and Gromyko plans together into a single, generally acceptable compromise plan for arms cuts.

Too Far Apart

To most Western diplomats, the U.S. and Soviet approaches to disarmament appeared too far apart to produce a mutually acceptable compromise.

Gromyko called for total, worldwide disarmament in four years from the date of signing a treaty. he said the program should proceed by stages. Destroyed arms would be inspected, but not the arms and forces retained by each nation. Once general and complete disarmament and been achieved, then the Soviet Union would be wide open to inspection.

Gromyko said that when all armies were destroyed the United Nations should keep the peace. But Western leaders understand the Soviet Union's position is that the United Nations would not have its own army but only the authority to call up contingents from each nation—and the U.N. force would be subject to the big power veto.

Khrush Flexes

about the "global rocket" to reinforce his views on the current disarmament negotiations at Geneva. Referring to Western proposals for an effective control system, he said "we will never agree to this."

A control system, he argued, would be nothing but an espionage service for the west.

Khrushchev boasted that the Soviet Union has better means of delivering nuclear bombs—"mighty intercontinental rockets — than does the West.

He added that in these days men would have to be insane to begin a nuclear war.

Situation Still Tense

He said there are some signs that the international atmosphere is improving but "the situation still remains complicated and tense."

This is so, he continued, because the Western powers hate the idea of giving up their weapons.

He promised patience in the settlement of the German question but insisted that it "cannot delay endlessly the solution of this important task."

Khrushchev made the announcement in a completely offhand manner while a scientist was speaking at the meeting in the Kremlin.

The scientist, Alexander Yshlinsky, commented "We are launching cosmic rockets" and Khrushchev interrupted from his seat back of the rostrum.

"One was launched today at 3 o'clock and it is already in orbit," he said.

10,000 Cheer Word

He did not specify whether it was 3 a.m. or 3 p.m. and Soviet sources were unable to say immediately.

Khrushchev made the announcement to a crowd of about 10,000 and it brought a quick cheer.

Checks with the Soviet news agency Tass and the Academy of Science failed to produce any additional information immediately.

The Tass editor simply said, "We just heard Khrushchev's announcement."

After making today's off-the-cuff announcement, Khrushchev listened to a number of other speakers at the rally, intended to boost him for re-election to the Supreme Soviet in Sunday's balloting. He has, of course, no opposition.

A thunder of applause greeted the Soviet premier when he entered the hall. Speakers preceding him included a metal factory foreman, a woman doctor, the head of a hospital, an engineer, an academician and several others.

Present also were President Leonid Brzhnev and other members of the Presidium.

Khrushchev began his election speech by declaring that "only the blind cannot see that the future belongs to communism."

He assailed the two-party system of the United States and said the Soviet system, under which one candidate runs for any particular seat in the Supreme Soviet, this country's version of a parliament, is much better.

In the United States, Khrushchev said, they may have two candidates representing two parties but there is no real difference.

Bill to Protect Pensions Goes to President Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has sent President Kennedy legislation to set up tighter protection for $60 billion in pension and welfare funds.

The Senate Thursday cleared a compromised version of the bill by voice vote soon after the House passed it 283-108.

An effort by House Republicans to send the bill back to a Senate-House conference was defeated on a 217-182 roll call vote.

This was the second important item on Kennedy's legislative program to be sent to the White House this session. The first, a manpower retraining bill, received final congressional action Tuesday and was signed into law Thursday.

The pension-welfare plan bill is designed to prevent wrongdoing in connection with funds set up for the benefit of an estimated 90 million Americans.

It puts enforcement teeth into a 1958 disclosure law covering the funds.

The new bill would:

1. Give the secretary of labor authority to require full and accurate detail regarding the operation of the plans.

2. Give the secretary power to investigate violations of the reporting provision and to enforce those provisions with injunctions.

3. Require bonding of administrators, officials and employes who handle plan funds and properties.

4. Provide criminal penalties for offering, accepting or soliciting bribes or kickbacks in administering the plans, for making false statements in the reports, or for stealing or embezzling plan funds or properties.

Carpenter Ready

Glenn Jr.'s three-times-around-the-world orbit on Feb. 20. It is scheduled for sometime in May. Carpenter was Glenn's backup pilot and worked closely with him for months.

This nation's next space pilot has dreamed often of traveling into the unknown void of space.

"Riding the centrifuge," Carpenter says, "I imagine sometimes that I'm not in the flight simulator at all, but in the very capsule itself.

"There can be no substitute, though, for the thrilling reality of the moment when the astronaut realizes he's finally in a good orbit. It will be a moment when he can start to appreciate some new and wonderful sensations."

Has Four Children

With four children, the handsome, Colorado-born Carpenter has the largest family of the astronaut team. The children are Mark Scott, 12; Robyn Jay, 8; Kristine Elaine, 6; and Candace Noxon, 5. A fifth child died in 1951 at the age of 6 months.

Carpenter's attractive wife Rene shares his space role intimately. When they are separated for long periods by his rigorous training program, they write long letters. He tells in detail of the progress of Project Mercury and Rene says he once sent her 17 pages.

Both are natives of Boulder, Colo., where Carpenter was born May 1, 1925.

He began his flying career in 1943 in the Navy's V5 training program at Colorado College. After World War II, he entered the University of Colorado and in 1949 received a degree in aeronautical engineering.

Pilot During Korea

After graduation he joined the Navy and became an airborne electronics expert. During the Korean War he was involved in anti-submarine patrol, shipping surveillance and aerial mining in the Yellow and South China seas and in the Formosa Straits.

He graduated from the Navy test pilot school in 1954 and began the hazardous testing task which qualified him as a Project Mercury astronaut.

Carpenter spends as much of his free time as possible with his family at their home at Langley Air Force Base, Va., home of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's manned space flight center. He enjoys archery, skin-diving and skiing. He is an Episcopalian.

lier actions by the government in the same field means that the U.S. Communist party is outlawed or that membership in it is illegal.

Registration with the government is required in many fields, he said.

Kennedy said he wanted to clear up misunderstanding that he found overseas during his recent tour.

John Abt, counsel for Hall and Davis, said here he was certain that both would plead innocent. He said the Communist party takes the position that the 1950 law under which they were indicted is unconstitutional because it violates the privilege against self-incrimination."

If convicted, they would face a possible maximum penalty of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine on each count of the six-count indictment.

be planned for total reconstruction and that storm water drainage would be provided in these areas, and that in the summer of 1960 the state had, in fact, made surveys in this area for the reconstruction. The Ulster group pointed out to the State Engineers the urgency of planning this reconstruction project at the earliest possible date so that the present poor conditions, even though they will be temporarily repaired, will not again recur. Sinacori indicated that the final engineering phases for this reconstruction would occur during 1962 and that reconstruction would possibly begin some time in the summer or fall of 1963. Supervisor Banyo asked that if at all possible, this project be given A-1 priority and that the reconstruction time be moved up to an earlier date.

At the Town Board meeting Wednesday a Resolution was unanimously passed, authorizing Supervisor Banyo to contact the office of J. Burch McMorran in Albany requesting an earlier reconstruction time.

To Survey Park Site

The Town Board passed a Resolution authorizing Supervisor Banyo to hire a licensed professional survey man to make a survey on a site under consideration for purchase as Town Park land and to have an appraisal made of the value of this site along the Hudson River.

A communication was received from Edward Crosby, principal of Lake Katrine School, pointing out to the town board that dogs are following many of the children to school and that this condition sometimes frightens the smaller children, even though at this point no child has been bitten. The Town Board has asked the dog warden to assist the principals of both Lake Katrine and Chambers Schools in this matter and to take whatever action is legally permitted. The Town Board respectfully requests the residents of the town to make every attempt to keep their dogs on their own premises at all times, and in this way, the congregating of dogs, either on school grounds or on private property of others would not occur. It was pointed out at this time by the town clerk that there are some who have not yet purchased licenses for their dogs and that it will become necessary to summon these owners unless licenses are secured immediately.

The Town Board passed a resolution authorizing Superintendent of Highways Edgar Elliott to post certain roads in the township for limitation of weight.

To Pull Water Pump

On Tuesday, March 20, the engineers for the Town of Ulster Water District are arranging to pull the pump for a precautionary examination. Vital spare parts have been already purchased and are on the scene in case they are needed. The Town Board requests that people in the Ulster Water District use as little water as is required on this day, for even though there is a sufficient storage supply to service all necessary needs, they request that care in use would provide a sufficient supply in case a great runoff would be needed in the event of a fire.

On April 9 a joint meeting will be held between the Town Board and the Planning Board to discuss the final phases of the street numbering system in certain parts of the town.

Couple Cruelly Tortured, Slain

JASPER, Tenn. (AP)—Although tortured with fire and scalding water, an elderly brother and sister apparently refused to reveal their hidden wealth before they finally were shot to death.

"It's hard to understand the mentality of anyone who could inflict such excruciating pain as this on an old man and woman," said Kenneth Shelton, an agent of the Tennessee Bureau of Identification.

Shelton released an autopsy report Thursday night which showed that Grant Carter, 71; and his sister, Tora, 77, were tortured for hours before being shot.

Shure, It's Great Day for the Irish

EDITOR'S NOTE—More than 20 million Irish-Americans and their friends will honor the memory of blessed St. Patrick Saturday. The following column, reprinted by request, tells how it feels to be Irish on that day of days.

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—What is it to be Irish?

How can you put the wonder of it into words? If a psychiatrist stretched himself out on his own warm couch after his last customer had gone home, and he dreamed of the man he himself would most like to be—well, he might be perfect, but he'd still be only half an Irishman on St. Patrick's Day.

Gift of Tongues

What is it to be Irish then?

It is to have an angel in your mouth, turning your prose to poetry. It is to have the gift of tongues, to know the language of all living things. Does an Irishman pause and turn an ear to a tree? It is because on this day he wants to hear what one sleepy bud says to another as it opens its pale green hands to the warm sun of spring.

What is it to be Irish?

Oh, on this day it is music. Not just the cornet in the parading high school band, but the deep, deep music of living; the low, sad rhythms of eternity. The Irishman hears the high song of the turning spheres, the dim lullaby of the worm in its cocoon. All the world is in tune, and he is in step with the tune, the tune that only he can hear.

What is it to be Irish?

It is to live the whole history of his race between a dawn and a dawn—the long wrongs, the bird-swift joys, the endless hurt of his ancestors since the morning of time in a forgotten forest, the knock-at-his-heart that is part of his religion.

24 Wonderful Hours

What is it to be Irish?

It isn't only the realization that he is descended from kings. It is the realization that he is a king himself, an empire on two feet striding in power, a strolling continent of awe.

What is it to be Irish?

Why on St. Patrick's Day, to be Irish is to know more glory, adventure, magic, victory, exultation, gratitude and gladness than any other man can experience in a lifetime.

What is it to be Irish?

It is to walk in complete mystic understanding with God for twenty-four wonderful hours.

Cite 25th Anniversary Of Local A & P Man

Daniel J. Joyce of 124 West Chestnut Street, Kingston, recently celebrated his 25th anniversary with A&P Food Stores and joined more than 1600 New England Division employes in the company's 25-year club.

Joyce, who is employed at the A&P located on Manchester Road in Poughkeepsie, joined the company on March 29, 1937.

On his 25th anniversary he received a cash award from the company and congratulatory messages from Lawrence M. Cazayoux, divisional president and T. D. Hamilton, vice president in charge of operations throughout this area.

Vigor Seen as Key To Health of Tree

Building up vigor is the most important thing man can do for a shade tree.

A tree on the lawn just struggling along needs vigor, says Dr. Edward J. Duda, acting director of the Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories. Weak, sick trees, trees with dead and dying twigs and branches require vigor. Trees growing in soils that no one gives a hoot about need vigor.

Trees with winter wind-broken twigs and wrenched rootlets must have vigor to heal their wounds. Without vigor, trees cannot combat diseases, especially those caused by parasites, or invading insects such as borers and bark beetles.

Vigor means the ability to make healthy, normal growth. It is lacking in a tree that does not have adequate food-building materials, water and air in the soil.

The unnatural environment under which many lawn trees grow are chiefly responsible for these poor soil conditions. But these can be readily corrected.

Simply feed all lawn trees at regular intervals, every two years.

Now is one of the best times to do it. On the very day the frost leaves the ground, trees can be fed. This will give them a quick start into spring.

Tree food should be highly organic and well balanced, containing all essential trace elements. Place it in crow-bar made holes, 18 to 24 inches deep, beginning several feet out from the trunk of a mature tree. Continue these holes two feet apart to well beyond the drip of the outer branches.

Never feed a tree close to the trunk. And always feed amply. If the tree food is correctly balanced, it will become slowly available during the months ahead as the tree needs it.

Roman Invention

Lotteries reputedly were an invention of the Romans. Major difference between Roman lotteries and those held today is that the chances in the former games were given away free. Augustus and Nero used these free lotteries to distribute slaves, houses or ships, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

TOUR AUTO PLANT—Students of the Lake Katrine School tour the Ford Assembly Plant at Mahwah, N. J., in conjunction with the study of the industrial revolution and mass production techniques. The unnatural environment under which many lawn trees grow are chiefly responsible for these poor soil conditions. But these can be readily corrected.

Simply feed all lawn trees at regular intervals, every two years.

Now is one of the best times to do it. On the very day the frost leaves the ground, trees can be fed. This will give them a quick start into spring.

Tree food should be highly organic and well balanced, containing all essential trace elements. Place it in crow-bar made holes, 18 to 24 inches deep, beginning several feet out from the trunk of a mature tree. Continue these holes two feet apart to well beyond the drip of the outer branches.

Never feed a tree close to the trunk. And always feed amply. If the tree food is correctly balanced, it will become slowly available during the months ahead as the tree needs it.

Roman Invention

Lotteries reputedly were an invention of the Romans. Major difference between Roman lotteries and those held today is that the chances in the former games were given away free. Augustus and Nero used these free lotteries to distribute slaves, houses or ships, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

PUBLIC SERVICE BRAINS

It can be taken as axiomatic that the quality of public service will rise as the quality of personnel in public service improves. The problem of getting able men and women into government work, and keeping them interested, is shared by units of government at all levels.

This makes it of far more than merely academic interest that there will be three regional conferences on the subject this year. Government officials, educators and representatives of business, labor and voluntary organizations will formulate programs for raising the prestige of public service, developing greater interest in public service careers, and increasing public understanding of the matter.

None of this is quite as simple as it may sound. The image of government workers feeding at the public trough has been so deeply imprinted that raising their prestige will be no easy matter. Education is one approach; better pay is another. Young people must be shown that careers in public administration can be rewarding, but as with the teaching profession it is not enough to stress the satisfaction of service; there must also be enough financial reward to compete with other fields.

The regional conferences — at Philadelphia, Kansas City and Seattle — will be under the auspices of the American Society for Public Administration and the Public Personnel Association. Their task of finding ways and means to attract and hold top-notch public service workers is important. The fruits of those conferences will merit study by communities all over the nation.

POISON PREVENTION WEEK

The protection of children from accidental poisoning is the major objective of the first National Poison Prevention Week, March 18 to 24.

In his proclamation, President Kennedy notes that virtually all deaths attributable to accidental poisoning could be prevented and that the best prevention is a vigorous program to alert parents against this hazard.

The Federal Hazardous Substances Labeling Act, which became effective February 1, requires that hazardous household products bear information to protect users and to warn against accidental ingestion by children.

The law is in effect but it can only do so much. Compliance by manufacturers and distributors is all that it can accomplish. It is up to adults to read the labels and follow such warnings as "DANGER—Keep Out of the Reach of Children."

Household hazards have existed for centuries, but today's continually increasing number of new home aids have multiplied them many times. So swift is this multiplication that older folks sometimes fail to recognize the dangers of many products that did not exist during their own family-raising days. Baby sitters, too, need to be warned.

The value of National Poison Prevention Week is the opportunity it provides to remind consumers and parents of their obligation to make use of the information that the law requires to be made available on the package.

The habit of label reading and heeding is a good one for all of us to cultivate.

CHANGE THE TUNE

How often do you hear our public officials and college professors, who are molders of opinion, forthrightly champion the private enterprise philosophy that made these United States a better place in which to live?

Too many of them promote schemes that glorify big government, and make the individual and industry more and more subservient to insatiable bureaucracy. Thus, they sow the seeds of socialism, and break down confidence in our free enterprise system.

Let's stop short-selling our capitalistic economy if we hope to retain individual opportunity and academic freedom, otherwise both will disappear in a socialized cesspool. Shout our virtues to a world weary of having gargantuan government on its back.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE RIGHT TO TELL

Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina has been raising an issue, not of the right to know but the right to tell. Military men and many public officials come into possession of much information either because of the work they do or because of their proximity to others who do very important work.

The issue is: are they justified in telling what they know while they remain in the employ of the government? Does wearing the uniform enjoin a man from free speech?

This is an old issue and there have been many quarrels over it. The most recent one is that of General Edwin A. Walker who, after a brilliant military career, was, in effect, forced out of command in Germany because his anti-Communist activities were distasteful to the Administration. Many persons believe that General Walker was mistreated.

The attitude of the Kennedy Administration is that the foreign policy of this country is to be conducted by the President, assisted by the Secretary of State; that when public officials, particularly men in uniform, speak, we, in the United States, understand that each man speaks for himself but that in other countries, particularly Communist countries, whatever is said by an official person is assumed to be policy, determined in advance of the address. Also the Administration takes the position that it may wish to time a case softly, mildly or angrily and that it alone shall determine the degree of emphasis.

For instance, when a speaker wrote "Communist China has territorial objectives of its own which must be reckoned with quite apart from loyalties to Moscow," the censor removed the words 'which must be reckoned with quite apart from loyalties to Moscow." It is possible to understand the reason for the destruction of the second clause of the sentence. It must be a matter of policy to acknowledge the degree of the split between Russia and Red China.

The issue then comes down to this:

1. Public officials, unless authorized, should be silent;
2. Public officials should speak but their speeches should conform to policy;
3. Public officials should be free to say anything they choose.

The second choice, under most circumstances, is most likely to be correct, provided:

1. That the national policy is known to them;
2. That the censorship over their speeches is done for the sake of national policy and not to satisfy the whimsicalities of the individual censor or perhaps his private decision as to what is policy;
3. That the censor be a mature person of sound judgement at least equal in rank to the censored.

General B. A. Schriever, Air Research and Development Command, had the following sentence taken out of a speech which said that if the Communists "were to develop an effective anti-ICBM before we do, they would have a tremendous advantage." So, taken out was this:

"They might be able to negotiate any solution they desired without the fear of armed conflict or retaliation."

The censored sentence is correct. It is truthful. It does not belie national policy. Why was the sentence taken out of the speech? As a matter of fact, President Kennedy has made similar statements as far back as his campaign—America must be on the move!

Similarly, General George H. Decker, Chief of Staff of the Army, who ought to know policy, was censored in this fashion:

"It appears better to some — by their false rationale — to accede to totalitarianism than to risk the destruction of millions of human beings and large segments of the fruits of civilization — they would rather be Red than dead."

The words, "they would rather be Red than dead," were censored. Why? That is a commonplace phrase that fits the situation. The censorship does not make sense.

The issue that Senator Thurmond raises has, in the past, broken many a soldier who felt called upon to speak his mind. The Administration would do well to note that so many times since 1933 have Administrations erred concerning Soviet Russia, that the American people are very sensitive on the subject. Thus far, no American President, no American Secretary of State since 1933 has won a diplomatic victory or has regained the initiative in our dealings with Soviet Russia. If somebody in the Administration spoke inside this country as Robert F. Kennedy spoke in Germany, it would give the people greater confidence in what is being done.

The Doctor's Mailbag

Nervous or Neurotic?

The Shade of Difference

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Ever since my son has gone to medical school, all I hear is "neurosis." If I'm nervous about something, he says I'm a "neurotic." If I worry, he says it's my "neurosis." What's the difference between being nervous and being neurotic? What's the difference between worrying and having a neurosis?

A—You've asked a good question, dear mother. First off, let me tell you about your son. He's like most medical students. They see everything in terms of illness or disease. I remember a wise instructor of my student days who warned our all-male class of the danger that faced us. "You boys," he said, "will soon have every symptom you hear about, maybe including morning sickness."

Now as to the differences you ask. Where does nervousness leave off and a neurosis begin? Where does worrying end and an anxiety neurosis come into the picture?

Let's reduce both questions to a specific instance for there's no definite yardstick with which to make a measurement. Suppose your son goes out on a date and doesn't get home by midnight. You wait up for him and, when he comes in, you rebuke him because you've been nervous about his safety.

Now, if his date was with someone who might have done him harm, or if he had to make his way home through a dangerous area, your nervousness would have been justified, and he'd be doing you an injustice if he said you were being neurotic.

But if his date was with a fellow student or a nice girl, and if his outing took him no further than the near vicinity of your home and, if under these circumstances, you still stayed up for his return, worried unduly and unnecessarily and then rebuked him for his delayed homecoming, he'd be justified in stating that you suffered from anxiety neurosis.

In other words, you'd merely be "nervous" if your worry were justified by circumstances and if your anxiety disappeared when the circumstances no longer justified any feeling of apprehension. You'd be showing the signs of an "anxiety neurosis" if circumstances did not warrant the extent and duration of the "worry" you suffered and the rebuke you administered to him.

Like the Einstein theory, it's all a matter of relativity. That's why you find doctors and even nerve specialists disagreeing as to the sanity of a prisoner when they are called as "experts" in court procedures.

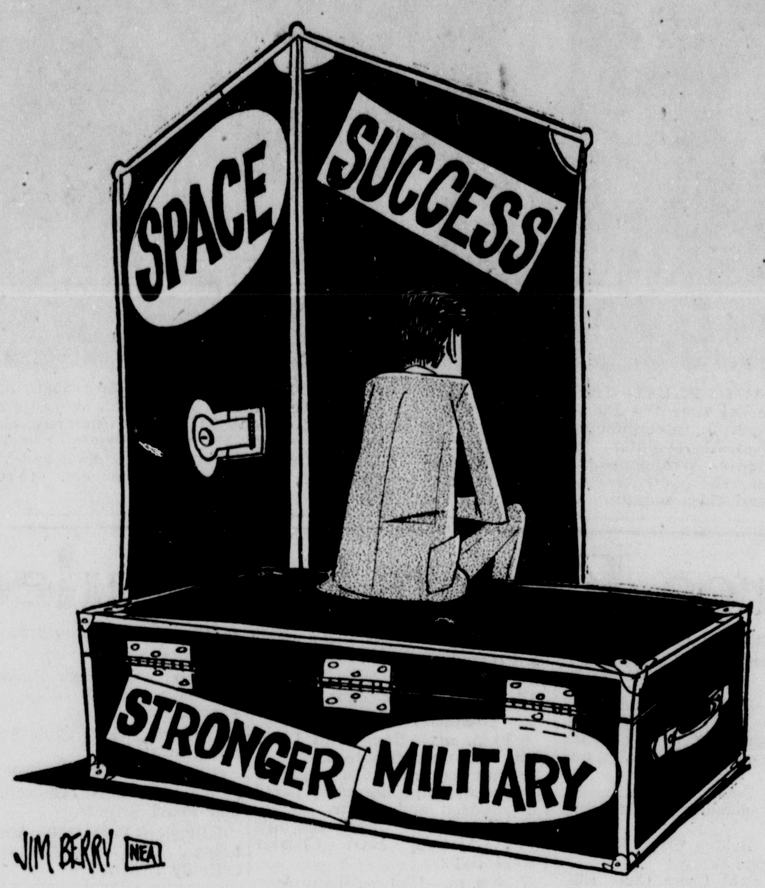
At Least We're PACKED for a Summit



Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — On the same day that the White House announced postponement of the exchange television broadcasts between President Kennedy and Chairman Khrushchev because relations between the two countries are so bad . . .

. . .On this very same day the State Department's Charles E. Bohlen and Russia's Cultural Relations Deputy Minister S. K. Romanovsky signed a new two-year exchange agreement because coexistence between the two countries is so good.

THIS PARADOX IS OBVIOS in almost every paragraph of the long and detailed document. It covers every kind of culture from art and athletics to jazz; every science from agriculture to zoology.

It puts down precisely how many people can be exchanged by each country on each of more than 100 missions involving up to 2,500 bodies; how long they can stay and what they're supposed to do away from home.

This is said to be a 15 per cent step-up from the American-Russian cultural exchange rate of the past two years. There will be, in addition, more than 2,000 American tourists visiting Russia in each of the next two years, as compared to under 500 Russian tourists visiting the U.S. These are last year's figures.

INCREASED EXCHANGES ARE ALSO CALLED FOR in motion pictures, radio and television recordings, books, scientific journals and traveling exhibitions of communications equipment and metal cutting machinery, if you call them "culture."

No exchange exhibition is called for to show off Russia's big rocket boosters, the one seem to have superiority and in which the nited States would like to learn a few tricks. Here the Russians keep their know-how secret.

But in nearly all of the other areas of exchange — clothing, manufacture, rural electrification, meat and dairy production, urban development, sanitation and all the things which go into the higher American standard of living, the United States has more savvy and the Russians stand to gain more from the cultural swap.

VIEWED FROM THIS ANGLE it looks like an uneven barter with the Russians getting the better of the deal. This comparison can be made without belittling their real accomplishments in the arts and science. It is arguable that the Russians are giving more than they get in sending to the United States the Bolshoi ballet, Ukranian dance group and Leningrad philharmonic in exchange for the New York ballet, the Robert Shaw Chorale and Benny Goodman.

But there is a more material advantage falling to the Russians through the unconvertibility of the ruble.

American artists, technicians, scientists, students or professors going to Russia have to be paid in dollars. Russians coming here will also have to be paid in dollars because the ruble is no good in this country.

NOBODY SEEMS TO KNOW how much the cultural account book are thrown out of balance by this exchange. But the President's budget shows that expenses for cultural exchange with "Eastern Europe" are being stepped up from last year's $1.2 million to $3.3 million for next year.

The taxpayer's question is, "Is it worth it?"

The answer given is that cultural exchange is the great and almost the only way the United States can get more intelligent Russians into the United States to see what a free society and a higher standard of living can do for people.

This is the one way for getting more Russians back into Russia with first-hand knowledge of what it's like outside. If the Communist dictatorship can be broken down only by internal pressures from the Russian people themselves, this is one approach.

Also, it doesn't hurt to get more Americans into Russia to see what they can see and learn what they can learn.

Political Value to Nehru Seen in First Lady's Visit

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—The "image" of America which other countries are being given today is marked by some unwitting distortions.

Is Jacqueline Kennedy, for instance, giving to the people of India the true "image" of present-day America, particularly in its profound sympathy for the hungry and the sick and for the tens of thousands who sleep nightly in the streets of India's cities for lack of homes?

The "image" that the people of a foreign land form about America too often is concerned with our wealth, our millionaires and our alleged emphasis on the luxuries of a privileged class. This is the "image" of America that Communists constantly try to give in their propaganda.

The news dispatches from abroad this week tell a graphic story of the visit to India by the gracious and well-mannered "First Lady of the United States." An Associated Press item from New Delhi, for instance, describes Mrs. Kennedy as a "pretty young horsewoman from the White House" who took the jumps on an Indian riding course as a diversion "in a day of such unfamiliar things as feeding a baby elephant and watching a snake charmer pipe a swaying cobra from a basket."

The U. S. Ambassador later reported to newsmen that Mrs. Kennedy in her riding exhibition had outdone some of the best lancers in the Indian President's horse guard, who watched in unconcealed admiration.

Visit Next Summer

There is talk now of a visit to India next summer by President and Mrs. Kennedy. Is India's government deserving of all this attention? How does the news of these happenings affect the American people who are being asked to put up their tax money for "foreign aid?"

President Kennedy in his news conference Wednesday said that members of Congress make "vigorous speeches against communism and call for a policy of victory" but do not want to go along with the foreign-aid program of nearly $5 billion proposed by the Administration to fight communism.

There's an old habit among Americans of asking what is going to be done with their tax money. The President really isn't convincing Congress that the billions in foreign aid will accomplish the "victory" of which he speaks.

Almost every one in Congress, of course, would be for "foreign aid" if there were any degree of certainty that the money would be of some avail and would help to defeat international communism. But the news from India itself has been far from good. Prime Minister Nehru is all smiles as Mrs. Kennedy visits his county and is entertained there. Naturally, it is of political value to Mr. Nehru to give the impression to his people that the United States likes India and will continue to pour out its billions even if India keeps on with her "non-alignment" policies. But, fortunately, the American press prints the news—and what has been happening in India indicates that the victory over communism is more remote than ever.

Within the last few weeks, a national election has been held there. Nehru's party has won out. The support from the Communist side was noticeable, especially as Krisha Menon, archfoe of the United States, won the biggest victory of all. He is Defense Minister in Nehru's cabinet and, although occasionally denying that he is a Communist, plays the Communist side of the game right along, especially in the United Nations and behind the scenes in Europe and Asia.

Reds Aid to Menon

Menon's opponent took him "over the jumps" for his pro-Communist attitude, but it was in vain. For Communist support was strong enough to give Menon the victory. Prime Minister Nehru, who campaigned for him, never seems to be able to shake loose from the so-called "intellectual" influence Menon has exerted over him for many years.

Also, not so long ago the Nehru government suddenly brushed aside negotiations and by military force seized the ancient territory of Goa, which had been held by Portugal for centuries. The United States government didn't express its horror over this, though the American press did. The United States possibly has lost the friendship of Portugal, a member of NATO, whose agreement to let this country retain a naval and air base in the Azores is up for renewal and now has been jeopardized.

The President in his statement oversimplified the position of many members of Congress who oppose his foreign-aid program. Most of them are in favor of the principle of foreign aid, but they don't believe in wasting the taxpayers' money on governments which "are taking America for a ride."

His Link to Moscow

There is every reason for expressing a humanitarian desire to help the hundreds of millions of unfortunate human beings in India. But the real point is whether a blind extension of financial aid, without any program that really offers the promise of attaining our objectives, should be authorized.

India's government carries on intimate relations with the Communist regime in the Soviet Union, which considers Nehru a valuable ally. America's current policy is to tolerate all this as "neutrality.' But the American people like "neutrality," too—at least for their dollars. They would prefer "non-alignment" with any country that is tied up with the Communists to the point where the latter's apparatus — controlled from Moscow — can play an influential part in any outside election.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, March 15—When American Airlines' Flight Number One went down at Idlewild and word came out that W. Alton Jones died with $60,000, more or less, on his person and in his carry-on baggage, I was one of many who wondered why such a rich man as Pete Jones would carry all that spendable money, when his endorsement on a piece of paper was worth millions almost anywhere in the country. He had a $10,000 bill also, but that was not negotiable without special reference to the Treasury, which takes an idiotic view of valid U. S. currency in denominations of $100 and up.

Some other persons also wondered about this but in cynical skepticism. One such sent me a telegram pointing out that Pete and ex-President Eisenhower had a date to catch some fish by the lip and probably play cards down toward Mexico and there was a dirty dispatch out of Washington insinuating that Pete was fetching the money out West for some campaign purpose of Dick Nixon's

I knew Pete Jones quite well for so many years that I am beginning to realize that most of the people I have ever known are dead although some aren't who should be. I reminded myself that Pete was the most generous man I had ever known. A few years ago I sat down and knocked off a little note to Pete at his office way up toward the clouds down Wall St. way to say just about that. I had in mind five friends of his and mine who had been way up in the money in the Twenties, Thirties and Forties, but went broke too late for any possible chance to clamber back up. They all went to work under Pete's auspices or patronage, if not on his payroll, at good incomes with dignity and security. Three of them have died.

I hope to God he thought to makes provision for others known and unknown to me. I imagine he spotted them in positions in which they could deliver value received. But if he couldn't do that, what was wrong about providing the money out of his own income and capital, which were stupendous?

I phoned a friend across the country who knew Pete a little better and he explained that Pete had carried that $10,000 bill or an occasional replacement for years and years. But he got most fun out of the Twenty-Nine Club, a little gang of juvenile delinquents up to 80 who called themselves the Dead End Kids. I hovered around a poker game there one night. I never saw such rough-house at a card table. They bet higher than a tom-cat's back on treys. It was here that Jesse Jones won a penny ante pot of $3,000 in a game of seven-toed Pete, with deuces wild and gilligaloos and roodles.

Jimmy Moffett, who had figured in many pleasures and sorrows in the Roosevelt regime, was down and dying now and he had a lawsuit against Jesse for a million dollars about some oil matter. Jesse had told the U. S. court that he could not testify because his heart was acting up. Jimmy, somehow, learned that Jesse had picked up this pot. Jesse was very, very partial to money and Jimmy told the court that if Uncle Jesse could stand the strain of winning that pot he could very well survive a few hours on the stand.

I whipped uptown to get a play-by-play account of this hand from Uncle Jesse. I found him and Mrs. Jones in an apartment in a hotel which he owned and she was sitting on the suitcases she was latching them to go down the back elevator and down to Grand Central for a train to Houston.

As Jesse narrated the deal and the bets and went to the sixth card, I hollered, "Whoa up! What is this, anyway? Ladies night at 29?"

Jesse said, "I always play seven-toe with the deuces loose." So another of my ideals crashed.

They all seemed rich, but I learned that some of the Dead End Kids hadn't pairerd anything for a long time. Poor Moffett died, too, broke and drenched with sadness from family mishaps.

Pete Jones liked style. It was like this Missouri hayshaker to have a crackling fire in the fire place in the dull oak of his Wall Street office, and a dining room and kitchen and chef and waiters.

At Christmas for years he gave a big feast at the Waldorf of ham and turkey and you-name-it and liquor and wine under the auspices of the Committee on Manners, Morals and Mayhem. If anyone needed seeing home he got seen home and, if necessary, to bed.

One night after a few dippers of grog somewhere, one of his friends said, "Well I got to get going. Tonight is her birthday."

By the time this one got his key in the lock at home a big black sedan hove up and guys from Irene Hayes' dandelion patch on Park Avenue began hauling out one thousand gross of American beauties with sticks from here to there.

PUBLIC SERVICE BRAINS

It can be taken as axiomatic that the quality of public service will rise as the quality of personnel in public service improves. The problem of getting able men and women into government work, and keeping them interested, is shared by units of government at all levels.

This makes it of far more than merely academic interest that there will be three regional conferences on the subject this year. Government officials, educators and representatives of business, labor and voluntary organizations will formulate programs for raising the prestige of public service, developing greater interest in public service careers, and increasing public understanding of the matter.

None of this is quite as simple as it may sound. The image of government workers feeding at the public trough has been so deeply imprinted that raising their prestige will be no easy matter. Education is one approach; better pay is another. Young people must be shown that careers in public administration can be rewarding, but as with the teaching profession it is not enough to stress the satisfaction of service; there must also be enough financial reward to compete with other fields.

The regional conferences — at Philadelphia, Kansas City and Seattle — will be under the auspices of the American Society for Public Administration and the Public Personnel Association. Their task of finding ways and means to attract and hold top-notch public service workers is important. The fruits of those conferences will merit study by communities all over the nation.

POISON PREVENTION WEEK

The protection of children from accidental poisoning is the major objective of the first National Poison Prevention Week, March 18 to 24.

In his proclamation, President Kennedy notes that virtually all deaths attributable to accidental poisoning could be prevented and that the best prevention is a vigorous program to alert parents against this hazard.

The Federal Hazardous Substances Labeling Act, which became effective February 1, requires that hazardous household products bear information to protect users and to warn against accidental ingestion by children.

The law is in effect but it can only do so much. Compliance by manufacturers and distributors is all that it can accomplish. It is up to adults to read the labels and follow such warnings as "DANGER—Keep Out of the Reach of Children."

Household hazards have existed for centuries, but today's continually increasing number of new home aids have multiplied them many times. So swift is this multiplication that older folks sometimes fail to recognize the dangers of many products that did not exist during their own family-raising days. Baby sitters, too, need to be warned.

The value of National Poison Prevention Week is the opportunity it provides to remind consumers and parents of their obligation to make use of the information that the law requires to be made available on the package.

The habit of label reading and heeding is a good one for all of us to cultivate.

CHANGE THE TUNE

How often do you hear our public officials and college professors, who are molders of opinion, forthrightly champion the private enterprise philosophy that made these United States a better place in which to live?

Too many of them promote schemes that glorify big government, and make the individual and industry more and more subservient to insatiable bureaucracy. Thus, they sow the seeds of socialism, and break down confidence in our free enterprise system.

Let's stop short-selling our capitalistic economy if we hope to retain individual opportunity and academic freedom, otherwise both will disappear in a socialized cesspool. Shout our virtues to a world weary of having gargantuan government on its back.

'These Days'

THE RIGHT TO TELL

Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina has been raising an issue, not of the right to know but the right to tell. Military men and many public officials come into possession of much information either because of the work they do or because of their proximity to others who do very important work.

The issue is: are they justified in telling what they know while they remain in the employ of the government? Does wearing the uniform enjoin a man from free speech?

This is an old issue and there have been many quarrels over it. The most recent one is that of General Edwin A. Walker who, after a brilliant military career, was, in effect, forced out of command in Germany because his anti-Communist activities were distasteful to the Administration. Many persons believe that General Walker was mistreated.

The attitude of the Kennedy Administration is that the foreign policy of this country is to be conducted by the President, assisted by the Secretary of State; that when public officials, particularly men in uniform, speak, we, in the United States, understand that each man speaks for himself but that in other countries, particularly Communist countries, whatever is said by an official person is assumed to be policy, determined in advance of the address. Also the Administration takes the position that it may wish to time a case softly, mildly or angrily and that it alone shall determine the degree of emphasis.

For instance, when a speaker wrote "Communist China has territorial objectives of its own which must be reckoned with quite apart from loyalties to Moscow," the censor removed the words 'which must be reckoned with quite apart from loyalties to Moscow." It is possible to understand the reason for the destruction of the second clause of the sentence. It must be a matter of policy to acknowledge the degree of the split between Russia and Red China.

The issue then comes down to this:

1. Public officials, unless authorized, should be silent;
2. Public officials should speak but their speeches should conform to policy;
3. Public officials should be free to say anything they choose.

The second choice, under most circumstances, is most likely to be correct, provided:

1. That the national policy is known to them;
2. That the censorship over their speeches is done for the sake of national policy and not to satisfy the whimsicalities of the individual censor or perhaps his private decision as to what is policy;
3. That the censor be a mature person of sound judgement at least equal in rank to the censored.

General B. A. Schriever, Air Research and Development Command, had the following sentence taken out of a speech which said that if the Communists "were to develop an effective anti-ICBM before we do, they would have a tremendous advantage." So, taken out was this:

"They might be able to negotiate any solution they desired without the fear of armed conflict or retaliation."

The censored sentence is correct. It is truthful. It does not belie national policy. Why was the sentence taken out of the speech? As a matter of fact, President Kennedy has made similar statements as far back as his campaign—America must be on the move!

Similarly, General George H. Decker, Chief of Staff of the Army, who ought to know policy, was censored in this fashion:

"It appears better to some — by their false rationale — to accede to totalitarianism than to risk the destruction of millions of human beings and large segments of the fruits of civilization — they would rather be Red than dead."

The words, "they would rather be Red than dead," were censored. Why? That is a commonplace phrase that fits the situation. The censorship does not make sense.

The issue that Senator Thurmond raises has, in the past, broken many a soldier who felt called upon to speak his mind. The Administration would do well to note that so many times since 1933 have Administrations erred concerning Soviet Russia, that the American people are very sensitive on the subject. Thus far, no American President, no American Secretary of State since 1933 has won a diplomatic victory or has regained the initiative in our dealings with Soviet Russia. If somebody in the Administration spoke inside this country as Robert F. Kennedy spoke in Germany, it would give the people greater confidence in what is being done.

The Doctor's Mailbag

Nervous or Neurotic?

The Shade of Difference

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Ever since my son has gone to medical school, all I hear is "neurosis." If I'm nervous about something, he says I'm a "neurotic." If I worry, he says it's my "neurosis." What's the difference between being nervous and being neurotic? What's the difference between worrying and having a neurosis?

A—You've asked a good question, dear mother. First off, let me tell you about your son. He's like most medical students. They see everything in terms of illness or disease. I remember a wise instructor of my student days who warned our all-male class of the danger that faced us. "You boys," he said, "will soon have every symptom you hear about, maybe including morning sickness."

Now as to the differences you ask. Where does nervousness leave off and a neurosis begin? Where does worrying end and an anxiety neurosis come into the picture?

Let's reduce both questions to a specific instance for there's no definite yardstick with which to make a measurement. Suppose your son goes out on a date and doesn't get home by midnight. You wait up for him and, when he comes in, you rebuke him because you've been nervous about his safety.

Now, if his date was with someone who might have done him harm, or if he had to make his way home through a dangerous area, your nervousness would have been justified, and he'd be doing you an injustice if he said you were being neurotic.

But if his date was with a fellow student or a nice girl, and if his outing took him no further than the near vicinity of your home and, if under these circumstances, you still stayed up for his return, worried unduly and unnecessarily and then rebuked him for his delayed homecoming, he'd be justified in stating that you suffered from anxiety neurosis.

In other words, you'd merely be "nervous" if your worry were justified by circumstances and if your anxiety disappeared when the circumstances no longer justified any feeling of apprehension. You'd be showing the signs of an "anxiety neurosis" if circumstances did not warrant the extent and duration of the "worry" you suffered and the rebuke you administered to him.

Like the Einstein theory, it's all a matter of relativity. That's why you find doctors and even nerve specialists disagreeing as to the sanity of a prisoner when they are called as "experts" in court procedures.

At Least We're PACKED for a Summit

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — On the same day that the White House announced postponement of the exchange television broadcasts between President Kennedy and Chairman Khrushchev because relations between the two countries are so bad . . .

. . .On this very same day the State Department's Charles E. Bohlen and Russia's Cultural Relations Deputy Minister S. K. Romanovsky signed a new two-year exchange agreement because coexistence between the two countries is so good.

THIS PARADOX IS OBVIOS in almost every paragraph of the long and detailed document. It covers every kind of culture from art and athletics to jazz; every science from agriculture to zoology.

It puts down precisely how many people can be exchanged by each country on each of more than 100 missions involving up to 2,500 bodies; how long they can stay and what they're supposed to do away from home.

This is said to be a 15 per cent step-up from the American-Russian cultural exchange rate of the past two years. There will be, in addition, more than 2,000 American tourists visiting Russia in each of the next two years, as compared to under 500 Russian tourists visiting the U.S. These are last year's figures.

INCREASED EXCHANGES ARE ALSO CALLED FOR in motion pictures, radio and television recordings, books, scientific journals and traveling exhibitions of communications equipment and metal cutting machinery, if you call them "culture."

No exchange exhibition is called for to show off Russia's big rocket boosters, the one seem to have superiority and in which the nited States would like to learn a few tricks. Here the Russians keep their know-how secret.

But in nearly all of the other areas of exchange — clothing, manufacture, rural electrification, meat and dairy production, urban development, sanitation and all the things which go into the higher American standard of living, the United States has more savvy and the Russians stand to gain more from the cultural swap.

VIEWED FROM THIS ANGLE it looks like an uneven barter with the Russians getting the better of the deal. This comparison can be made without belittling their real accomplishments in the arts and science. It is arguable that the Russians are giving more than they get in sending to the United States the Bolshoi ballet, Ukranian dance group and Leningrad philharmonic in exchange for the New York ballet, the Robert Shaw Chorale and Benny Goodman.

But there is a more material advantage falling to the Russians through the unconvertibility of the ruble.

American artists, technicians, sicentists, students or professors going to Russia have to be paid in dollars. Russians coming here will also have to be paid in dollars because the ruble is no good in this country.

NOBODY SEEMS TO KNOW how much the cultural account book are thrown out of balance by this exchange. But the President's budget shows that expenses for cultural exchange with "Eastern Europe" are being stepped up from last year's $1.2 million to $3.3 million for next year.

The taxpayer's question is, "Is it worth it?"

The answer given is that cultural exchange is the great and almost the only way the United States can get more intelligent Russians into the United States to see what a free society and a higher standard of living can do for people.

This is the one way for getting more Russians back into Russia with first-hand knowledge of what it's like outside. If the Communist dictatorship can be broken down only by internal pressures from the Russian people themselves, this is one approach.

Also, it doesn't hurt to get more Americans into Russia to see what they can see and learn what they can learn.

Political Value to Nehru Seen in First Lady's Visit

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—The "image" of America which other countries are being given today is marked by some unwitting distortions.

Is Jacqueline Kennedy, for instance, giving to the people of India the true "image" of present-day America, particularly in its profound sympathy for the hungry and the sick and for the tens of thousands who sleep nightly in the streets of India's cities for lack of homes?

The "image" that the people of a foreign land form about America too often is concerned with our wealth, our millionaires and our alleged emphasis on the luxuries of a privileged class. This is the "image" of America that Communists constantly try to give in their propaganda.

The news dispatches from abroad this week tell a graphic story of the visit to India by the gracious and well-mannered "First Lady of the United States." An Associated Press item from New Delhi, for instance, describes Mrs. Kennedy as a "pretty young horsewoman from the White House" who took the jumps on an Indian riding course as a diversion "in a day of such unfamiliar things as feeding a baby elephant and watching a snake charmer pipe a swaying cobra from a basket."

The U. S. Ambassador later reported to newsmen that Mrs. Kennedy in her riding exhibition had outdone some of the best lancers in the Indian President's horse guard, who watched in unconcealed admiration.

Visit Next Summer

There is talk now of a visit to India next summer by President and Mrs. Kennedy. Is India's government deserving of all this attention? How does the news of these happenings affect the American people who are being asked to put up their tax money for "foreign aid?"

President Kennedy in his news conference Wednesday said that members of Congress make "vigorous speeches against communism and call for a policy of victory" but do not want to go along with the foreign-aid program of nearly $5 billion proposed by the Administration to fight communism.

There's an old habit among Americans of asking what is going to be done with their tax money. The President really isn't convincing Congress that the billions in foreign aid will accomplish the "victory" of which he speaks.

Almost every one in Congress, of course, would be for "foreign aid" if there were any degree of certainty that the money would be of some avail and would help to defeat international communism. But the news from India itself has been far from good. Prime Minister Nehru is all smiles as Mrs. Kennedy visits his county and is entertained there. Naturally, it is of political value to Mr. Nehru to give the impression to his people that the United States likes India and will continue to pour out its billions even if India keeps on with her "non-alignment" policies. But, fortunately, the American press prints the news—and what has been happening in India indicates that the victory over communism is more remote than ever.

Within the last few weeks, a national election has been held there. Nehru's party has won out. The support from the Communist side was noticeable, especially as Krisha Menon, arch-foe of the United States, won the biggest victory of all. He is Defense Minister in Nehru's cabinet and, although occasionally denying that he is a Communist, plays the Communist side of the game right along, especially in the United Nations and behind the scenes in Europe and Asia.

Reds Aid to Menon

Menon's opponent took him "over the jumps" for his pro-Communist attitude, but it was in vain. For Communist support was strong enough to give Menon the victory. Prime Minister Nehru, who campaigned for him, never seems to be able to shake loose from the so-called "intellectual" influence Menon has exerted over him for many years.

Also, not so long ago the Nehru government suddenly brushed aside negotiations and by military force seized the ancient territory of Goa, which had been held by Portugal for centuries. The United States government didn't express its horror over this, though the American press did. The United States possibly has lost the friendship of Portugal, a member of NATO, whose agreement to let this country retain a naval and air base in the Azores is up for renewal and now has been jeopardized.

The President in his statement oversimplified the position of many members of Congress who oppose his foreign-aid program. Most of them are in favor of the principle of foreign aid, but they don't believe in wasting the taxpayers' money on governments which "are taking America for a ride."

His Link to Moscow

There is every reason for expressing a humanitarian desire to help the hundreds of millions of unfortunate human beings in India. But the real point is whether a blind extension of financial aid, without any program that really offers the promise of attaining our objectives, should be authorized.

India's government carries on intimate relations with the Communist regime in the Soviet Union, which considers Nehru a valuable ally. America's current policy is to tolerate all this as "neutrality.' But the American people like "neutrality," too —at least for their dollars. They would prefer "non-alignment" with any country that is tied up with the Communists to the point where the latter's apparatus — controlled from Moscow — can play an influential part in any outside election.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, March 15—When American Airlines' Flight Number One went down at Idlewild and word came out that W. Alton Jones died with $60,000, more or less, on his person and in his carry-on baggage, I was one of many who wondered why such a rich man as Pete Jones would carry all that spendable money, when his endorsement on a piece of paper was worth millions almost anywhere in the country. He had a $10,000 bill also, but that was not negotiable without special reference to the Treasury, which takes an idiotic view of valid U. S. currency in denominations of $100 and up.

Some other persons also wondered about this but in cynical skepticism. One such sent me a telegram pointing out that Pete and ex-President Eisenhower had a date to catch some fish by the lip and probably play cards down toward Mexico and there was a dirty dispatch out of Washington insinuating that Pete was fetching the money out West for some campaign purpose of Dick Nixon's

I knew Pete Jones quite well for so many years that I am beginning to realize that most of the people I have ever known are dead although some aren't who should be. I reminded myself that Pete was the most generous man I had ever known. A few years ago I sat down and knocked off a little note to Pete at his office way up toward the clouds down Wall St. way to say just about that. I had in mind five friends of his and mine who had been way up in the money in the Twenties, Thirties and Forties, but went broke too late for any possible chance to clamber back up. They all went to work under Pete's auspices or patronage, if not on his payroll, at good incomes with dignity and security. Three of them have died.

I hope to God he thought to makes provision for others known and unknown to me. I imagine he spotted them in positions in which they could deliver value received. But if he couldn't do that, what was wrong about providing the money out of his own income and capital, which were stupendous?

I phoned a friend across the country who knew Pete a little better and he explained that Pete had carried that $10,000 bill or an occasional replacement for years and years. Pete was a rube all his life, suave and accustomed to caviar, plovers' eggs and fine linen for a long time—but a hick to his last breath. He would draw a friend into argument and say, "I bet you $10,000," and slap down his $10,000 bill.

Pete belonged to every club going. I am not going to count them up for you. But he got most fun out of the Twenty-Nine Club, a little gang of juvenile delinquents up to 80 who called themselves the Dead End Kids. I hovered around a poker game there one night. I never saw such rough-house at a card table. They bet higher than a tom-cat's back on treys. It was here that Jesse Jones won a penny ante pot of $3,000 in a game of seven-toed Pete, with deuces wild and gilligaloos and roodles.

SWEETIE PIE By Nadine Seltzer

"It was a 'plow-and-run' driver!"

95 Admitted During 1961, TB Hospital Report Shows

Ninty-five patients were admitted, 140 treated and 99 others discharged during 1961, Dr. Herbert F. Schwartz, medical director, disclosed today in submitting the annual report for the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital.

The complete report follows:

"Tuberculosis is on the way out." This remark has become quite commonplace in the past few years and yet the very persistence of the phrase shows that we have not yet reached a "Fait Accompli' status. Let's speed up this exit by a combined and concerted effort.

The Arden House Conference in 1959 resulted in recommendations aimed at eliminating tuberculosis in the United States. These recommendation consist mainly of finding and treating cases of tuberculosis.

A tremendous impetus to this program is being carried on by the Ulster County Health Department and the Ulster County TB and Health Association in conjunction with the Ulster County TB Hospital. One facet of this is a pilot type of Tuberculin Testing Program being carried on in two of the County School Districts. The second phase is an intensive X-ray Survey utilizing X-ray equipment and technicians supplied by the New York State Health Department.

More Specific Treatment

Treatment of the patient with tuberculosis disease is much more specific and satisfactory than in the pre-drug era. However, experts agree that good treatment can be given best in a TB Hospital where adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities are available. This means the proper combination of drugs given for a sufficient period of time to prevent recurrence of the disease at a later date. Drug sensitivity and drug reactions must be recognized and controlled and the patient needs proper teaching to understand the need for treatment. There are still, unfortunately, a small percentage of patients who fail to respond to drug treatment and must stay for a prolonged period in a TB hospital in order to protect the general community.

Since these patients spend a "lifetime" in a hospital it is much easier for them to remain in their own community where they have easy access to friends and relatives.

$272,615 Appropriated

The sum of $272,615 was appropriated by the Board of Supervisors for the operating expenses of the hospital for the year 1961. This cost to the County was reduced by amounts from New York State Aid $80,-175; out-of-county patients $3,-182; insurance, Workmen's Compensation and private contracts $3,606; employes' maintenance and transportation $13,095; cash gifts, bequests and donations $17,794; and other miscellaneous income $499; a total of $118,351, which reduced the actual cost to the county to $154,264.

The total operating expenses for the year amounted to $260,-065, of which $172,413, or 66 per cent was for salaries and $87,652, or 34 per cent for other expenses. Operating expenses and salaries were divided as follows:

Nursing Services	$ 61,304	24%
Heat, Light, Power, Maintenance and Motor Service	50,621	19"

During the year 95 patients were admitted, 140 treated and 99 discharged. The average daily census was 45, the total patient days 16,275 out of a possible 18,-250 or 89 per cent of occupancy for the entire year.

The hospital clinic made 5,232 examinations during the year, of these 1,995 showed some abnormality. The positive findings were: tuberculosis 777, of which 15 were new cases, tumors 13, heart 142, and miscellaneous 1,063. The diagnostic studies made in the clinic by the hospital staff included 16 bronchograms, 81 tomograms, 463 skin tests, and 52 pulmonary function studies, a total of 612 studies.

Improvements Noted

During the year the hospital buildings and equipment were improved by enclosing the two remaining open porches with combination screens and storm windows in order that patients may use them regardless of inclement weather. One more shower stall was rebuilt and equipped with non-slip tile floor and grabbars. Lighting fixtures, which were installed when the hospital was built, were replaced with modern fluorescent fixtures in the second floor corridors and the reception hall, passages and medical record room on the first floor. Wall night lights for the guidance of patients were installed in the first and second floor corridors. The second bedpan sterilizer, required by the American Hospital Association, was installed replacing the old water type washer. A sink with an electric waste pump was installed in the basement auditorium for use of the Entertainment Committee for patients.

A Vulcan Double Deck Oven, twin Coffee Urn and a Four Section Refrigerator Freezer were installed in the hospital kitchen replacing equipment which had been in use since the hospital was opened. A new General Electric Automatic washing machine was installed in the laundry, a new water cooler was installed in the entrance hall for use of visitors at the Clinic and a new Chevrolet station wagon was purchased.

New equipment for the use and treatment of patients was purchased and consisted of one Letheray Germicide Fixture for sterilizing articles made by patients for sale, one Hydraulic Lifter, ten Laminated Utility Tables and ten new Hi-Lo hospital beds with side rails.

Lauds Cooperation

I could not complete this report without a word of thanks to all the people who have helped to make patient care more complete. The members of the Ulster County Board of Health give me counsel and support in administrative problems; the Board of Supervisors offer financial and moral support; the shopping ladies of the Ulster County TB and Health Association, the members of the various organizations who offer entertainment, Clifford Donohue who shows movies weekly, the members of radio and press, even our paid employes who offer a dedicated type of service, all of these people and many more help to give our patients the "T L C" (tender loving care) which is so important in helping them to get well.

Thank you for helping us to do a better job."

Follows Mom in Death

GENESEO, N.Y. (AP) — Mrs. Millie R. Rodes, 91, of Conesus, died in a nursing home in this Livingston County community Thursday, and two hours later, her 67-year-old daughter, Mrs. Gertrude A. Durke, died in nearby Livonia. Both deaths were due to natural causes.

Church Union Is Discussion Topic At Lenten Series

Professor J. Howard Howson, chairman emeritus of the department of religion of Vassar College, speaking at a gathering of the Fair Street Reformed Church congregation Wednesday evening in the parish room of the church, likened church union to a marriage.

Asking himself the question: "Are you in favor of church union?" he answered, "It all depends." Feeling that a "starry-eyed romanticism" will get the churches nowhere, Professor Howson insisted that a pleasant emotion is not substantial enough a base upon which to build a united church. Nor, did he feel, is union justifiable merely on the argument that it will enable Protestants to exercise increased power in public opinion or action. "Any church union that simply increases the power of a central authority is a step toward tyranny," he said.

Calling to his audience's attention that religious diversity is not categorically evil, he insisted that any church union that required the sacrifice of central beliefs of any members involved would be a step backward in the development of the Christian Church, and would run the danger of being a "shotgun marriage" of denominations. A hasty union, he feared, might indicate a lack of concentration on the significant issues involved.

Speaking to the recent union of the Congregationauist and the Evangelical and Reformed Churches, Professor Howson indicated that such a union was one in which both churches possessing the same theological background, were willing to give up their regional provincialisms and out-of-date parochialisms in other to achieve oneness. He assured his listeners that they did not gloss over differences for the sake of unity. The rights of the individual congregations are still protected; yet a more effective centralized church government has also been achieved to enable the church to function more adequately in fulfillment of the Gospel.

Next week's speaker will be Dr. Reamer Kline, president of Bard College, who will speak on An Episcopalian and the Holy Catholic Church.

95 Admitted During 1961, TB Hospital Report Shows

Ninty-five patients were admitted, 140 treated and 99 others discharged during 1961, Dr. Herbert F. Schwartz, medical director, disclosed today in submitting the annual report for the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital.

The complete report follows:

"Tuberculosis is on the way out." This remark has become quite commonplace in the past few years and yet the very persistence of the phrase shows that we have not yet reached a "Fait Accompli' status. Let's speed up this exit by a combined and concerted effort.

The Arden House Conference in 1959 resulted in recommendations aimed at eliminating tuberculosis in the United States. These recommendation consist mainly of finding and treating cases of tuberculosis.

A tremendous impetus to this program is being carried on by the Ulster County Health Department and the Ulster County TB and Health Association in conjunction with the Ulster County TB Hospital. One facet of this is a pilot type of Tuberculin Testing Program being carried on in two of the County School Districts. The second phase is an intensive X-ray Survey utilizing X-ray equipment and technicians supplied by the New York State Health Department.

More Specific Treatment

Treatment of the patient with tuberculosis disease is much more specific and satisfactory than in the pre-drug era. However, experts agree that good treatment can be given best in a TB Hospital where adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities are available. This means the proper combination of drugs given for a sufficient period of time to prevent recurrence of the disease at a later date. Drug sensitivity and drug reactions must be recognized and controlled and the patient needs proper teaching to understand the need for treatment. There are still, unfortunately, a small percentage of patients who fail to respond to drug treatment and must stay for a prolonged period in a TB hospital in order to protect the general community.

Since these patients spend a "lifetime" in a hospital it is much easier for them to remain in their own community where they have easy access to friends and relatives.

$272,615 Appropriated

The sum of $272,615 was appropriated by the Board of Supervisors for the operating expenses of the hospital for the year 1961. This cost to the County was reduced by amounts from New York State Aid $80,175; out-of-county patients $3,182; insurance, Workmen's Compensation and private contracts $3,606; employes' maintenance and transportation $13,095; cash gifts, bequests and donations $17,794; and other miscellaneous income $499; a total of $118,351, which reduced the actual cost to the county to $154,264.

The total operating expenses for the year amounted to $260,065, of which $172,413, or 66 per cent was for salaries and $87,652, or 34 per cent for other expenses. Operating expenses and salaries were divided as follows:

Nursing Services	$ 61,304	24%
Heat, Light, Power, Maintenance and Motor Service	50,621	19"
Food and Dietary	50,177	19"
Medical, Surgical, Drugs, X-Ray Supplies and outside Professional Services	49,829	19"
Administration	25,500	10"
Housekeeping and Laundry	20,200	8"
Rehabilitation	2,434	1"
Total Operating Expenses & Salaries	$260,065	100%

During the year 95 patients were admitted, 140 treated and 99 discharged. The average daily census was 45, the total patient days 16,275 out of a possible 18,250 or 89 per cent of occupancy for the entire year.

The hospital clinic made 5,232 examinations during the year, of these 1,995 showed some abnormality. The positive findings were: tuberculosis 777, of which 15 were new cases, tumors 13, heart 142, and miscellaneous 1,063. The diagnostic studies made in the clinic by the hospital staff included 16 bronchograms, 81 tomograms, 463 skin tests, and 52 pulmonary function studies, a total of 612 studies.

Improvements Noted

During the year the hospital buildings and equipment were improved by enclosing the two remaining open porches with combination screens and storm windows in order that patients may use them regardless of inclement weather. One more shower stall was rebuilt and equipped with non-slip tile floor and grabbars. Lighting fixtures, which were installed when the hospital was built, were replaced with modern fluorescent fixtures in the second floor corridors and the reception hall, passages and medical record room on the first floor. Wall night lights for the guidance of patients were installed in the first and second floor corridors. The second bedpan sterilizer, required by the American Hospital Association, was installed replacing the old water type washer. A sink with an electric waste pump was installed in the basement auditorium for use of the Entertainment Committee for patients.

A Vulcan Double Deck Oven, twin Coffee Urn and a Four Section Refrigerator Freezer were installed in the hospital kitchen replacing equipment which had been in use since the hospital was opened. A new General Electric Automatic washing machine was installed in the laundry, a new water cooler was installed in the entrance hall for use of visitors at the Clinic and a new Chevrolet station wagon was purchased.

New equipment for the use and treatment of patients was purchased and consisted of one Letheray Germicide Fixture for sterilizing articles made by patients for sale, one Hydraulic Lifter, ten Laminated Utility Tables and ten new Hi-Lo hospital beds with side rails.

Lauds Cooperation

NEW YORK (AP)—How much does it really cost you to buy on time? Some people have only the foggiest notion of the total cost. For them the main thing is that the monthly payment seems feasible and a cash outlay doesn't.

President Kennedy tells Congress there should be a law, as part of his over-all plan to protect consumers. The law would require lenders and vendors to disclose to borrowers in advance the actual amounts and rates which they will be paying for credit.

Often Too Complicated

Bankers contend that the amount can be determined in advance, but specifying the rate often is too complicated in the modern world of consumer finance.

Many lenders and their associations endorse the principle of full disclosure. The American Bankers Association and other trade groups in the finance field say they have sought for years through educational efforts among their members to have them tell borrowers in advance the exact amount of finance charges on consumer loans.

And individual banks and finance companies stress that a prudent borrower can and should find out the exact amount of finance charges and just how much more it costs to enjoy now and pay later than to pay cash.

Many consumers, however, couldn't tell you just how much their car or appliance, or their home, will have cost them when the final payment is made.

Rate Another Thing

But whether Congress goes along with the President's idea that the consumer should be told the full amount as a matter of law, the really big battle is likely to be over setting the precise rate of interest.

In asking this, the President apparently endorses the idea urged on Congress for two years now by Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., that rates, as well as total amount, be spelled out before a loan or a time purchase is made.

Bankers' explanation of why simple interest rates don't apply is about as complicated as President Kennedy implies the credit charges are.

Economists at the First National City Bank of New York contend: "In the business world simple interest is little more than something once learned in school; it is not used in millions of credit transactions consummated each day."

Under simple interest rules, the payment of $60 interest on a $1,000 loan at the end of one year would be 6 per cent.

"But business is not done this way," the economists say. "The practice among lenders is to charge interest at shorter intervals. Payment of $5 per month interest on a $1,000 one-year loan would work out to something in excess of 6 per cent simple interest. And there is no formula that will tell exactly what the simple interest equivalent would be."

Castleton Boy Dies

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Brian Hutchings, 2, of Castleton died Thursday in Memorial Hospital of burns suffered in a fire that swept his home last Friday.

The boy was rescued from his burning crib by his father, Howard Hutchings Jr., 21, who suffered burns on hands and face. Firemen said the fire apparently was caused by a defective heater.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—How much does it really cost you to buy on time? Some people have only the foggiest notion of the total cost. For them the main thing is that the monthly payment seems feasible and a cash outlay doesn't.

President Kennedy tells Congress there should be a law, as part of his over-all plan to protect consumers. The law would require lenders and vendors to disclose to borrowers in advance the actual amounts and rates which they will be paying for credit.

Often Too Complicated

Bankers contend that the amount can be determined in advance, but specifying the rate often is too complicated in the modern world of consumer finance.

Many lenders and their associations endorse the principle of full disclosure. The American Bankers Association and other trade groups in the finance field say they have sought for years through educational efforts among their members to have them tell borrowers in advance the exact amount of finance charges on consumer loans.

And individual banks and finance companies stress that a prudent borrower can and should find out the exact amount of finance charges and just how much more it costs to enjoy now and pay later than to pay cash.

Many consumers, however, couldn't tell you just how much their car or appliance, or their home, will have cost them when the final payment is made.

Rate Another Thing

But whether Congress goes along with the President's idea that the consumer should be told the full amount as a matter of law, the really big battle is likely to be over setting the precise rate of interest.

In asking this, the President apparently endorses the idea urged on Congress for two years now by Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., that rates, as well as total amount, be spelled out before a loan or a time purchase is made.

Bankers' explanation of why simple interest rates don't apply is about as complicated as President Kennedy implies the credit charges are.

Economists at the First National City Bank of New York contend: "In the business world simple interest is little more than something once learned in school; it is not used in millions of credit transactions consummated each day."

Under simple interest rules, the payment of $60 interest on a $1,000 loan at the end of one year would be 6 per cent.

"But business is not done this way," the economists say. "The practice among lenders is to charge interest at shorter intervals. Payment of $5 per month interest on a $1,000 one-year loan would work out to something in excess of 6 per cent simple interest. And there is no formula that will tell exactly what the simple interest equivalent would be."

Castleton Boy Dies

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Brian Hutchings, 2, of Castleton died Thursday in Memorial Hospital of burns suffered in a fire that swept his home last Friday.

The boy was rescued from his burning crib by his father, Howard Hutchings Jr., 21, who suffered burns on hands and face. Firemen said the fire apparently was caused by a defective heater.

Architects Advise Educators:

Study School Changes On Continuing Basis

Over 300 architects, members of citizens committees, school board members, school administrators and teachers met Wednesday afternoon and evening at State University College, New Paltz, in a five-hour discussion of the topic, "Adaptable Schools for Teaching."

This was the third meeting of the Mid-Hudson School Board Institute held in cooperation with the New York State Citizens Committee for the Public Schools Inc., and sponsored by the Mid-Hudson School Study Council, the New York State School Board Association and the College.

Speakers included Stanley Sharp, architect from New York City; Douglas Haskell, editor of Architectural Forum, and Charles Colbert, dean of the Columbia University School of Architecture.

Must Pool Ideas

In the opening session at 5 p. m. Sharp emphasized that it is the responsibility of the school board and superintendent to pool together all community ideas into one educational specification.

"School systems should be studying changes on a continuing basis," he said, "and they should not wait until confronted with the task of planning new buildings before starting to think about a new program of facilities."

He also advocated the alteration of existing school buildings and adapting them to the new program needs.

Talk in Seven Groups

The members then divided into seven groups for a two-hour discussion session.

The entire group then reconvened for dinner and heard talks by the other two speakers and reports of the conclusions reached in the group sessions.

Douglas Haskell outlined the various phases of building design the schools have undergone since the one-room schools era. He emphasized "the need to design school buildings that like children rather than buildings which we think children would like."

Depends on Understanding

Dean Colbert pointed out that "the school architect today is faced with the challenge of building schools that will not freeze the educational pattern." He explained school buildings will gradually take on the physical changes that will reflect the new program. How rapidly this will take place," he said, "will depend on community understanding and community attitude toward innovation."

The group was welcomed by Edward T. Green of Rondout Valley Central School, who is president of the Mid-Hudson School Study Council, and Dr. William J. Haggerty, president of the State University College at New Paltz. President Haggerty briefly outlined the current extensive building program at the college.

50 Cases Finished In Trial Term Of March Court

With the March trial term of Supreme Court in session two weeks over 50 cases have been settled or disposed of. There are 803 cases on the civil calendar, one of the largest ever recorded in Ulster County.

Two justices have been assigned for the term, Justice Ellis J. Staley and Justice Kenneth MacAffer. Several cases have been adjusted after a jury was selected and prior to entering upon the trial.

Among the cases which have been settled are:

Thomas D. Doughery against Robert Prince, automobile negligence. Herbert J. Davis for plaintiff and Spitz and Levine for defendant.

Gabriella La Houd and another against Richard F. Brani, negligence. Francello and Brinnier for plaintiff and DeGraff, Foy, Conway and Holt-Harris for defendant.

Lottie Wood against William Slater and another, automobile negligence. Thomas F. Saccoman for plaintiff and Arthur B. Ewig for defendants.

'Hustler' Voted Best Film Drama

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Hustler," by Sidney Carroll and Robert Rossen, was named the best-written American screen drama at the Writers Guild of America banquet Thursday night.

The screen writers also chose "Breakfast at Tiffany's," by George Axelrod, as the best-written American comedy film, and "West Side Story," by Ernest Lehman, as the best-written American musical.

Dairymen Have Program for Cut And Less Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — Northeastern dairymen have met President Kennedy's dairy program with a plan of their own, which they claim would cut production but avoid excessive government control.

The plan, which would operate through existing milk marketing orders, would involve production quotas and lower prices to farmers for their excess milk.

Representatives of six dairy bargaining cooperatives, which claim a total membership of 15,000 farmers from New York, Maine, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Vermont, have presented the plan to members of Congress from those states.

The Kennedy program also would involve quotas if dairymen voted for them. If a farmer produced more than his quota, he would be subject to a penalty. The program would support milk prices at 90 per cent of parity if the quota system were adopted.

Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to their production costs.

Under the alternative proposed by the dairymen, the price for surplus milk would be near or below the cost of production to discourage overproduction.

In that way, an incentive would be provided producers to adjust production to market needs, the group contends.

The cooperatives supporting the plan include the Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Syracuse, N.Y.; the Maine Dairymen's Association; the Local Dairymen's Cooperative Association of Rhode Island; the Fall River Milk Producers Cooperative Association of Massachusetts; the United Milk Producers of New Jersey and the Northern Farms Cooperative of Vermont.

President Kennedy's dairy program was opposed by almost 90 per cent of the persons who wrote during February to Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y.

Keating said Thursday of 100 letters on the program 89 were opposed, 1 supported the program and 10 expressed no opinion.

Officer Bouton Suspended Till March 22nd Date

Charged with failure to make a morning patrol call and with "filing a sarcastic report to a superior officer," Patrolman Bernard C. Bouton, of 11 Florence Street, was suspended by the police board Thursday night pending a special board meeting to be held March 22.

Charges were preferred by Chief Robet F. Murphy. Attorney John J. Schick, representing Bouton, objected to procedure, claiming that the hearing was illegal because of the presence of the complaining witness, Chief Murphy.

A police report at 11:30 p. m. Thursday said Officer Bouton was suspended after a hearing before the board in the mayor's office. His reported misconduct deals with failing to make a 7 a. m. call Jan. 27, and with the submitting of a scathing report accounting for time spent on a downtown beat.

Corporation Counsel Harry Gold appeared for the police board at the hearing.

Officer Bouton has been a policeman since Jan. 21.1959.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP)—Elements of selective strength appeared in a mixed stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderate.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .10 at 261.70 with industrials down .60, rails up .10 and utilities up .30.

The "little two" automakers were fairly active and fractionally higher, apparently in response to reports of their big increase in sales. Trading interest rotated away from the big three which showed a generally lower tone.

Some of the building materials were up substantially. In the ragged chemical group, a gain of more than 2 points by Du Pont was a high spot.

Aerospace issues were irregular.

Most of the important stock groups showed a scrambled pattern.

Ford and Chrysler fell about a point. General Motors erased a small early gain and traded about unchanged. Steels were irregularly lower.

Quotations by Wood, Walker & Company, members of the New York Stock Exchange, 63 Wall Street, New York City, branch office, 52 Main Street. Matthew F. Hasbrouck Jr., manager.

My suggestion is that you reduce your position in Purex by one-half. Some capital gains taxes will have to be paid a year from now, but since you're semi-retired, the outlay should be relatively modest. With the proceeds, I'd invest in three stocks: Interstate Power (NYSE), Muningwear (NYSE), and U. S. Tobacco (NYSE). This package yields nearly four per cent and should be safe for a person like yourself to own.

Q) "I have held Reynolds Tobacco, Standard Brands, Ohio Edison, Southern Co., and North American Aviation for many years. I'm thinking of disposing of these and actively speculating with the proceeds. What is your opinion of this?" — G. R

A) I'm afraid that I don't care much for the idea. Your list as it now stands is a splendid one for future profits through growth. To speculate, you would have to liquidate some of these shares, pay capital gains taxes and then take on a great deal of risk in hopes of making some quick, short term gains. Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP)—Elements of selective strength appeared in a mixed stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderate.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .10 at 261.70 with industrials down .60, rails up .10 and utilities up .30.

The "little two" automakers were fairly active and fractionally higher, apparently in response to reports of their big increase in sales. Trading interest rotated away from the big three which showed a generally lower tone.

Some of the building materials were up substantially. In the ragged chemical group, a gain of more than 2 points by Du Pont was a high spot.

Aerospace issues were irregular.

Most of the important stock groups showed a scrambled pattern.

Ford and Chrysler fell about a point. General Motors erased a small early gain and traded about unchanged. Steels were irregularly lower.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .40 at 723.94.

Architects Advise Educators:

Study School Changes On Continuing Basis

Over 300 architects, members of citizens committees, school board members, school administrators and teachers met Wednesday afternoon and evening at State University College, New Paltz, in a five-hour discussion of the topic, "Adaptable Schools for Teaching."

This was the third meeting of the Mid-Hudson School Board Institute held in cooperation with the New York State Citizens Committee for the Public Schools Inc., and sponsored by the Mid-Hudson School Study Council, the New York State School Board Association and the College.

Speakers included Stanley Sharp, architect from New York City; Douglas Haskell, editor of Architectural Forum, and Charles Colbert, dean of the Columbia University School of Architecture.

Must Pool Ideas

In the opening session at 5 p. m. Sharp emphasized that it is the responsibility of the school board and superintendent to pool together all community ideas into one educational specification.

"School systems should be studying changes on a continuing basis," he said, "and they should not wait until confronted with the task of planning new buildings before starting to think about a new program of facilities."

He also advocated the alteration of existing school buildings and adapting them to the new program needs.

Talk in Seven Groups

The members then divided into seven groups for a two-hour discussion session.

The entire group then reconvened for dinner and heard talks by the other two speakers and reports of the conclusions reached in the group sessions.

Douglas Haskell outlined the various phases of building design the schools have undergone since the one-room schools era. He emphasized "the need to design school buildings that like children rather than buildings which we think children would like."

Depends on Understanding

Dean Colbert pointed out that "the school architect today is faced with the challenge of building schools that will not freeze the educational pattern." He explained school buildings will gradually take on the physical changes that will reflect the new program. How rapidly this will take place," he said, "will depend on community understanding and community attitude toward innovation."

The group was welcomed by Edward T. Green of Rondout Valley Central School, who is president of the Mid-Hudson School Study Council, and Dr. William J. Haggerty, president of the State University College at New Paltz. President Haggerty briefly outlined the current extensive building program at the college.

Dairymen Have Program for Cut And Less Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — Northeastern dairymen have met President Kennedy's dairy program with a plan of their own, which they claim would cut production but avoid excessive government control.

The plan, which would operate through existing milk marketing orders, would involve production quotas and lower prices to farmers for their excess milk.

Representatives of six dairy bargaining cooperatives, which claim a total membership of 15,000 farmers from New York, Maine, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Vermont, have presented the plan to members of Congress from those states.

The Kennedy program also would involve quotas if dairymen voted for them. If a farmer produced more than his quota, he would be subject to a penalty. The program would support milk prices at 90 per cent of parity if the quota system were adopted.

Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to their production costs.

Under the alternative proposed by the dairymen, the price for surplus milk would be near or below the cost of production to discourage overproduction.

In that way, an incentive would be provided producers to adjust production to market needs, the group contends.

The cooperatives supporting the plan include the Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Syracuse, N.Y.; the Maine Dairymen's Association; the Local Dairymen's Cooperative Association of Rhode Island; the Fall River Milk Producers Cooperative Association of Massachusetts; the United Milk Producers of New Jersey and the Northern Farms Cooperative of Vermont.

President Kennedy's dairy program was opposed by almost 90 per cent of the persons who wrote during February to Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y.

Keating said Thursday of 100 letters on the program 89 were opposed, 1 supported the program and 10 expressed no opinion.

Officer Bouton Suspended Till March 22nd Date

Charged with failure to make a morning patrol call and with "filing a sarcastic report to a superior officer," Patrolman Bernard C. Bouton, of 11 Florence Street, was suspended by the police board Thursday night pending a special board meeting to be held March 22.

Charges were preferred by Chief Robet F. Murphy. Attorney John J. Schick, representing Bouton, objected to procedure, claiming that the hearing was illegal because of the presence of the complaining witness, Chief Murphy.

A police report at 11:30 p. m. Thursday said Officer Bouton was suspended after a hearing before the board in the mayor's office. His reported misconduct deals with failing to make a 7 a. m. call Jan. 27, and with the submitting of a scathing report accounting for time spent on a downtown beat.

Corporation Counsel Harry Gold appeared for the police board at the hearing.

Officer Bouton has been a policeman since Jan. 21.1959.

New Salem Man Held For Conduct Hearing

Lawrence C. Flanagan, 33, of Box 296, New Salem, was arrested by Deputy Sheriffs Emil Kuhnen and John Daly Thursday evening on a warrant charging disorderly conduct. He was held in $50 bail for a hearing before Justice of the Peace Allan Dargie on Saturday at 10:30 a. m.

Flanagan was arrested after a call had been sent to the sheriff's office by Frank J. Flanagan of New Salem, stating an intoxicated man was at the house and "wanted to fight." Justice Dargie issued the warrant and the deputies executed it.

SHOKAN NEWS

SHOKAN — Eugene Nicholas, World War II veteran who is serving his fourth term as commander of Olive Post 1620, American Legion, was a caller in the village center Friday. Nicholas, who resided in Shokan as a boy, is currently interested in compiling a complete list of all former service men in Olive, together with pertinent data relating to the military and civil activities of these veterans. Newcomers to this locality may contribute information.

Greene County residents in town Sunday included Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wolson of Cairo. Wolson is a collector of antique American clocks of which he has a large and valuable collection.

The Rev. Richard B. Coons whose death, March 9, was noted in The Freeman, was pastor of the Shokan Reformed Church for eight years previous to his retirement. The Rev. Mr. Coons and his wife, the former Ona Freer, bought a new house on Route 28 in Shokan, and they spent their winters at Penney Farms, Fla., where the Rev. Mr. Coons conducted a Bible class. He had been a Methodist preacher in earlier life and held a pastorate at Ventura, Calif., several years.

Maurice Lane Jr., and William Bachor, Mt. Tremper lumbermen, were recent callers in the hub of the reservoir country. Long distance shipments of lumber by the big Lane platform trucks included one to Haverhill, Mass., recently.

The Cannonsville Baptist Church in neighboring Delaware County held its final service Feb. 25. The church edifice is within the taking line for New York City's newest mountain reservoir, and the Board of Water Supply is preparing to wreck the building. The interior furnishings reportedly were donated to 12 other churches of the area and funds are to be divided between the Practical Bible Training School and a Baptist Seminary in Johnson City.

Callers here Monday included Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kelley. The Ward's Kingston Store assistant manager was collecting a few antiques for an exhibit of old time household appliances which they are staging this week.

Word has reached here of the death of John H. Yagar at the home of his daughter, Gwendolyn Wakefield, at Windham. A World War I veteran, he was born 1892, in Shokan, son of Charles and Emma Jean Barber Yager. He leaves his wife, the former Pearl Humphrey; two brothers, two sisters, his daughter and five grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Person, residents of Shandaken, near the Esopus Creek portal, the past two years, were in Shokan recently. The couple formerly lived in Jersey and also spent a year in Kingston. Person now retired, is a cousin of Dr. Alfred Person, Lexington, Greene County man who has received a number of citations for his long and honorable career as a country doctor.

Cards have been received locally from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Longyear who for many years have resided at Phelps, near Ithaca. Mrs. Longyear, the former Rose Kemble of Kingston, was a hospital patient during December and her husband is just now able to go outdoors following a serious illness. Longyear was brought up in Kingston and his wife resided as a girl in the old village of West Shokan before the Dr. William Kemble family removed to the city in waterworks days.

Mrs. George Tischmacher and Mrs. Howard Greene of the Denver Vega area recently called on Elder Amasa J. Slauson at the Benedictine Hospital. Elder Slauson, pastor of the Olive and Hurley Old School Baptist Church here who with his wife, the former Edith Secor of Shokan, has resided for many years on Cedar Street, Kingston, was born and brought up in Delaware County.

Among those calling in Shokan Thursday were Roy Manning and Neil Rickey of Saugerties RFD. Rickey is adding to his collection of 14 antique firearms.

Birthdays coming along next week, March 22, include that of Duane Winnie, Korean War veteran and youngest of three sons of Mrs. Seymour Winnie Sr. A graduate of Kingston High School and currently employed as a steel worker, he and his family make their home on the Ashokan mountain road. Also March 22 is the birthday of Mrs. Albert J. Didier, Flushing, L. I., resident for many years, who as Lillian Longyear was born and brought up in Shokan. On March 23, Catherine Carlson, local attorney-at-law, will be observing her birthday. A native of Brooklyn, she is a member and officer of the county women's Democratic Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Arturo Torino, Route 28-A, are spending some time in Florida.

Many residents of the twin villages were acquainted with Elizabeth (Mrs. Reynolds W.) Bishop, 73, whose death March 12, in Town of Poughkeepsie, was reported in The Freeman. Mrs. Bishop resided for a time at Ashokan where she conducted a team room in one of the Lasher bungalows and, later, she was in the same business on Route 28 at Mt. Tremper. She made her home on Church Hill here for several years before going to Pougskeepsie where her son, Joseph Saxon lives.

Deer in large number are reported roaming the mountain slopes in search of food. A party who went on a Sunday drive around New York City's Pepacton Reservoir counted over 100 deer grazing on patches of bare ground on the sunny side of the mountains.

Earl Witko, recently appointed to the $9,500 job of vice principal at the Onteora Central High School, has been a resident of Shokan for several years.

The Rev. Richard Guice, formerly pastor of the three churches of the Ashokan Methodist Charge, is again occupying the pulpit of the Roxbury Church following major surgery at a Brooklyn hospital. Services were conducted by several laymen during his hospital sojourn of three weeks.

Mrs. F. S. Chichester, Poughkeepsie woman who has friends here and also at Shandaken village, where she was a summer resident, has recovered from an illness of several weeks. Mrs. Chichester was secretary to the head of St. Francis Hospital before suffering a broken arm in a fall while vacationing in St. Petersburg, Fla. She is now connected with an insurance firm in the Bridge City.

To Discuss Needs Of St. Remy Fire District, Monday

A second meeting to discuss proposals for the purchase of additional sirens and other equipment for St. Remy Fire District will be held Monday, March 19 at 8 p. m. in Union Center School Hall.

The need for two new sirens to be installed within the fire district and a combined resuscitator, inhalator, aspirator and other equipment will be discussed.

Approximately $5,000 to be raised through a bond issue, is needed. Included in the proposal is the purchase of two Scott Air-Paks.

The fire commissioners would like to replace the fire siren at St. Remy Firehouse reported to be over 30 years old. The other siren would be installed at Union Center Schoolhouse.

It is estimated that the world will have a population of 6.25 billion by the year 2000.

Disney to Spend $7 Million More On Coast Park

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The world's biggest and most expensive toy is getting a $7-million addition to its wonders.

Everyone knows that Disneyland is the private plaything of an overgrown Missouri boy named Walt Disney. It is a tribute to his humanitarianism that he allows the rest of the world to share his hobby. Almost 30 million people have done so.

Following an annual custom, I lunched with Walt to find out what he has up his sleeve for Disneyland's eighth year.

"Lots of things," he said. "We are spending $7 million on new features this year. Let me tell you, it was easier to get 7 million out of them (the bankers) this year than it was to get 2 million a few years ago. When you've had a good year, you don't have to do much convincing."

The new outlay will bring the total to $44 million that Disney has sunk into the onetime orange grove in Anaheim. While its imitations around the country have faded, Disneyland continues to boom. Walt intends to keep it that way.

One big item for this year is a complete refurbishing of the jungle ride in adventureland. It has been a top attraction since the opening of the park in 1955, but Walt isn't satisfied.

The new additions will include a complete African veldt with lions, zebras, jackals, hyenas, giraffes, etc., plus a bathing pool where a couple-dozen elephants will splash and squirt.

A new attraction will be a tree house towering 70 feet above Anaheim. It will be reminiscent of the one Disney used in "Swiss Family Robinson," and will include three separate homes.

SENSATIONALISM BE DAMNED... HERE'S THE TRUTH ABOUT "THE MARK". Because "THE MARK" deals with themes that are, to say the least, touchy, we were a little reluctant to discuss it frankly. We were more than hesitant to tell the story in our advertisements for fear of being accused of "sensationalism." And so we thought in vague general terms about the picture and its high quality. Now, sensationalism be damned, we want to be truthful and fair to this very uncommon film. What's it about? In five words, it's about a victim of sexual deviation. You follow him through psychiatry, through group therapy, through his tenuous meetings with women—and finally the one woman who takes him across the threshold—into manhood. The words are blunt and dramatic. And they're words you don't have to be a psychiatrist to understand. At the expense of a blush, or even a moment's discomfort, why don't you make an appointment with "THE MARK"?

What follows is fact—not fiction—and no names have been changed to protect anybody.

Chapter I starts with style. It asks who is the only compact ever to receive the Society of Illustrators' award for design excellence. Answer: The Valiant Signet 200—America's lowest-priced hardtop with bucket seats—that's who! Read on...

Chapter II talks about performance. The Valiant can, and has, run circles around every competitively priced compact, including the Falcon, Corvair and Lark.

All of which leads many to suspect they know the plot—Valiant is priced with the so-called "super-compacts." Not so, reveals the surprise ending in Chapter III. Valiant is priced competitively, model for model, with Falcon, Corvair, Rambler and Lark.

A World War I veteran, he was born 1892, in Shokan, son of Charles and Emma Jean Barber Yager. He leaves his wife, the former Pearl Humphrey; two brothers, two sisters, his daughter and five grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Person, residents of Shandaken, near the Esopus Creek portal, the past two years, were in Shokan recently. The couple formerly lived in Jersey and also spent a year in Kingston. Person now retired, is a cousin of Dr. Alfred Person, Lexington, Greene County man who has received a number of citations for his long and honorable career as a country doctor.

Cards have been received locally from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Longyear who for many years have resided at Phelps, near Ithaca, Mrs. Longyear, the former Rose Kemble of Kingston, was a hospital patient during December and her husband is just now able to go outdoors following a serious illness. Longyear was brought up in Kingston and his wife resided as a girl in the old village of West Shokan before the Dr. William Kemble family removed to the city in waterworks days.

Mrs. George Tischmacher and Mrs. Howard Greene of the Denver Vega area recently called on Elder Amasa J. Slauson at the Benedictine Hospital. Elder Slauson, pastor of the Olive and Hurley Old School Baptist Church here who with his wife, the former Edith Secor of Shokan, has resided for many years on Cedar Street, Kingston, was born and brought up in Delaware County.

Among those calling in Shokan Thursday were Roy Manning and Neil Rickey of Saugerties RFD. Rickey is adding to his collection of 14 antique firearms.

Birthdays coming along next week, March 22, include that of Duane Winnie, Korean War veteran and youngest of three sons of Mrs. Seymour Winnie Sr. A graduate of Kingston High School and currently employed as a steel worker, he and his family make their home on the Ashokan mountain road. Also March 22 is the birthday of Mrs. Albert J. Didier, Flushing, L. I., resident for many years, who as Lillian Longyear was born and brought up in Shokan. On March 23, Catherine Carlson, local attorney-at-law, will be observing her birthday. A native of Brooklyn, she is a member and officer of the county women's Democratic Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Arturo Torino, Route 28-A, are spending some time in Florida.

Many residents of the twin villages were acquainted with Elizabeth (Mrs. Reynolds W.) Bishop, 73, whose death March 12, in Town of Poughkeepsie, was reported in The Freeman. Mrs. Bishop resided for a time at Ashokan where she conducted a team room in one of the Lasher bungalows and, later, she was in the same business on Route 28 at Mt. Tremper. She made her home on Church Hill here for several years before going to Pougskeepsie where her son, Joseph Saxon lives.

Deer in large number are reported roaming the mountain slopes in search of food. A party who went on a Sunday drive around New York City's Pepacton Reservoir counted over 100 deer grazing on patches of bare ground on the sunny side of the mountains.

Earl Witko, recently appointed to the $9,500 job of vice principal at the Onteora Central High School, has been a resident of Shokan for several years.

The Rev. Richard Guice, formerly pastor of the three churches of the Ashokan Methodist Charge, is again occupying the pulpit of the Roxbury Church following major surgery at a Brooklyn hospital. Services were conducted by several laymen during his hospital sojourn of three weeks.

Mrs. F. S. Chichester, Poughkeepsie woman who has friends here and also at Shandaken village, where she was a summer resident, has recovered from an illness of several weeks. Mrs. Chichester was secretary to the head of St. Francis Hospital before suffering a broken arm in a fall while vacationing in St. Petersburg, Fla. She is now connected with an insurance firm in the Bridge City.

To Discuss Needs Of St. Remy Fire District, Monday

A second meeting to discuss proposals for the purchase of additional sirens and other equipment for St. Remy Fire District will be held Monday, March 19 at 8 p. m. in Union Center School Hall.

The need for two new sirens to be installed within the fire district and a combined resuscitator, inhalator, aspirator and other equipment will be discussed.

Approximately $5,000 to be raised through a bond issue, is needed. Included in the proposal is the purchase of two Scott Air-Paks.

The fire commissioners would like to replace the fire siren at St. Remy Firehouse reported to be over 30 years old. The other siren would be installed at Union Center Schoolhouse.

It is estimated that the world will have a population of 6.25 billion by the year 2000.

Disney to Spend $7 Million More On Coast Park

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The world's biggest and most expensive toy is getting a $7-million addition to its wonders.

Everyone knows that Disneyland is the private plaything of an overgrown Missouri boy named Walt Disney. It is a tribute to his humanitarianism that he allows the rest of the world to share his hobby. Almost 30 million people have done so.

Following an annual custom, I lunched with Walt to find out what he has up his sleeve for Disneyland's eighth year.

"Lots of things," he said. "We are spending $7 million on new features this year. Let me tell you, it was easier to get 7 million out of them (the bankers) this year than it was to get 2 million a few years ago. When you've had a good year, you don't have to do much convincing."

The new outlay will bring the total to $44 million that Disney has sunk into the onetime orange grove in Anaheim. While its imitations around the country have faded, Disneyland continues to boom. Walt intends to keep it that way.

One big item for this year is a complete refurbishing of the jungle ride in adventureland. It has been a top attraction since the opening of the park in 1955, but Walt isn't satisfied.

The new additions will include a complete African veldt with lions, zebras, jackals, hyenas, giraffes, etc., plus a bathing pool where a couple-dozen elephants will splash and squirt.

A new attraction will be a tree house towering 70 feet above Anaheim. It will be reminiscent of the one Disney used in "Swiss Family Robinson," and will include three separate homes.

SENSATIONALISM BE DAMNED... HERE'S THE TRUTH ABOUT "THE MARK". Because "THE MARK" deals with themes that are, to say the least, touchy, we were a little reluctant to discuss it frankly. We were more than hesitant to tell the story in our advertisements for fear of being accused of "sensationalism." And so we thought in vague general terms about the picture and its high quality. Now, sensationalism be damned, we want to be truthful and fair to this very uncommon film. What's it about? In five words, it's about a victim of sexual deviation. You follow him through psychiatry, through group therapy, through his tenuous meetings with women—and finally the one woman who takes him across the threshold—into manhood. The words are blunt and dramatic. And they're words you don't have to be a psychiatrist to understand. At the expense of a blush, or even a moment's discomfort, why don't you make an appointment with "THE MARK"?

347,000 owners prove...

It's value that puts Valiant on the best-seller list!

Make book on it.

What follows is fact—not fiction—and no names have been changed to protect anybody.

Chapter I starts with style. It asks who is the only compact ever to receive the Society of Illustrators' award for design excellence. Answer: The Valiant Signet 200—America's lowest-priced hardtop with bucket seats—that's who! Read on...

Chapter II talks about performance. The Valiant can, and has, run circles around every competitively priced compact, including the Falcon, Corvair and Lark.

All of which leads many to suspect they know the plot—Valiant is priced with the so-called "super-compacts." Not so, reveals the surprise ending in Chapter III. Valiant is priced competitively, model for model, with Falcon, Corvair, Rambler and Lark.

Why not drive one this week? Could be you'll want to join those 347,000 folks for whom Valiant's a kind of love story that is continued every month. The title of our story: NOBODY BEATS VALIANT FOR VALUE!

Lots of Words, No Agreements

Red Envoys Come and Go But Arms Talks Still Sag

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just about four years ago Russia switched its ambassadors to Washington. Mikhail A. Menshikov, attired in smiles, arrived to take over.

He smiled and was pleasant for four years. The day he arrived he promised to work to "establish and strengthen the atmosphere of understanding and trust between our countries."

Another Change, Same Results

It was just about the time the United States and Russia, as busy as could be polishing their missiles, were rejecting by long-distance, in letters and pronouncements, each other's ideas on disarmament.

After four years the Soviets decided to change ambassadors again and now Anatoly F. Dobrynin, an expert on American affairs, has arrived to replace Menshikov who has been reassigned to a minor Soviet post.

Dobrynin got off a train quoting Thomas Jefferson and saying:

U.S.-Soviet relations are "tremendously important' in whether the world has peace or war and therefore it is "highly important to make a joint effort to normalize our relations and to improve them.'

That was Thursday, the same day the United States and Russia at Geneva revealed plans which make them look no closer on disarmament and nuclear test bans than they were when Menshikov first arrived.

In the four years between arrivals of the two ambassadors there was much that happened, and much that didn't, on disarmament. There was much talking. But what didn't happen was agreement on anything.

353 Meetings, Nothing

When Menshikov came here the United States and Russia were still firing off their nuclear tests in the atmosphere. Later that year, 1958, they voluntarily suspended them.

Then for three years of voluntary no-testing they talked about agreeing on a permanent ban on testing. Actually they had 353 sessions which broke up with no agreement last January.

In that three-year period the two sides conducted what the State Department likes to call a "series of probes" into each other's intentions.

Resumption Next Step

Toward the end of that same three-year period Russia began testing again in the atmosphere. The United States plans to do likewise next month.

But this was not all that happened, or didn't happen, between Menshikov and Dobrynin because a ban on nuclear tests is not all there is to disarmament. There is the big, broad problem of general disarmament.

It is almost incredible to go back over the record and note all that was said on both sides — on tests and disarmament—in statements, letters, pronouncements, and negotiations of one kind of another by Premier Khrushchev, Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy, secretaries of state and sundry rpresentatives, statesmen and politicians.

A few examples of the conferences alone—and the conferences themselves were preceded by prodigious jockeying on both sides—make disarmament and modern man look as far off and windy as Mt. Everest.

In July 1958 East-West scientists met at Geneva to study the possibility of detecting violations of a possible agreement on suspension of nuclear tests.

On Nov. 1, 1958 there was a 10-nation conference on how to reduce the danger of surprise attack and this broke up in disagreement in six weeks.

Still Miles Apart

Just two years ago this week —on March 15, 1960—and in the same place as now, general disarmament talks began. Both sides were miles apart, as they were this week. The talks collapsed after 48 meetings.

Then for three months, starting in June 1961, the two sides met again, not to discuss disarmament but simply to discuss the question of how to start discussing disarmament.

When they finished the two sides issued a statement full of noble intentions which said nothing.

Here we go again.

South Passes Bounce Test

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The test of a great card player is his ability to bounce back after bad breaks have changed a lay down contract to an almost impossible one.

Harry Harkavy of Miami is particularly adept at this phase of play. If he had been looking at all the cards he would have played the ace of clubs at trick two, ruffed a club, led a diamond from dummy and stuck in the jack whereupon since West was void of trumps there would have been no way to beat him.

Harry did take the first spade at trick one, but he continued by playing the ace and jack of diamonds, whereupon East took his king and led the ace and another heart.

Harry won in dummy and proceeded to make the hand anyway. He led the ten of diamonds and discarded a spade. West took his queen and led the ten of spades. Harry won with the ace in dummy and led a diamond. East ruffed. Harry overruffed and led a trump to dummy. Two more trump leads pulled the rest of the trumps and now Harry played dummy's last diamond.

This last diamond lead squeezed West. He had to unguard his king of clubs in order to hang on to the high spade and Harry made the last two tricks with the ace and queen of clubs.

TV Fare Still On Winter Type Variety Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Spring is not far behind, but the television schedules are still showing signs of winter-type variety — ranging widely during the next seven days from sports specials to another musical, nostalgic look at the Hollywood of the golden days.

Tonight, however, there is one of many network reports on the progress of Mrs. John F. Kennedy in her Asian goodwill tour. Chet Huntley will do the reporting (NBC, 10:30-11 EST).

A game in the world amateur ice hockey championships between a U.S. and Canadian team will be broadcast live from Colorado Springs Sunday by CBS (1:30-4 p.m.). and GE theater (CBS, 9-9:30 p.m.) will start a two-part series based on the real adventures of Marian Miller, a housewife who did Communist espionage for the FBI. "Cops and Robbers (NBC, 10-11) is a project 20 documentary on crime in America with Edward G. Robinson doing the narration.

A star-studded variety show, "Arthur Freed's Hollywood Melody' is Monday nights headliner (NBC, 9-10) with Donald O'Connor, Shirley Jones, Nanette Fabray and Juliet Prowse recalling some great old movie songs.

"Two Black Kings,' a suspense tale, is scheduled for Wednesday night's Steel Hour on (CBS 10-11) and stars Eva Gabor and James Broderick.

Bob Hope, this time abetted by Ethel Merman, Maximilian Schell, Piper Laurie and Fabian (singing, not acting), will have another special Thursday evening (NBC, 8:30-9:30).

Slightly Overdue

Congressman Honored

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John Taber, R-N.Y., who will retire in January after 40 years in the House, was honored last night at a dinner given by New York Republican members of Congress. Taber's home is in Auburn, N.Y.

The barnacle is a salt-water shellfish which fastens itself to objects under water.

Named to College Post

GENEVA, N.Y. (AP)—Dr. Beverly Douglas Causey Jr., educator and an expert on China, has been named provost of Hobart and William Smith Colleges, it was announced today.

Causey was formerly with the United Nations and the Central Intelligence Agency. He succeeds Dr. Lawrence Ealy, who resigned to return to teaching.

Lots of Words, No Agreements

Red Envoys Come and Go But Arms Talks Still Sag

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just about four years ago Russia switched its ambassadors to Washington. Mikhail A. Menshikov, attired in smiles, arrived to take over.

He smiled and was pleasant for four years. The day he arrived he promised to work to "establish and strengthen the atmosphere of understanding and trust between our countries."

Another Change, Same Results

It was just about the time the United States and Russia, as busy as could be polishing their missiles, were rejecting by long-distance, in letters and pronouncements, each other's ideas on disarmament.

After four years the Soviets decided to change ambassadors again and now Anatoly F. Dobrynin, an expert on American affairs, has arrived to replace Menshikov who has been reassigned to a minor Soviet post.

Dobrynin got off a train quoting Thomas Jefferson and saying:

U.S.-Soviet relations are "tremendously important' in whether the world has peace or war and therefore it is "highly important to make a joint effort to normalize our relations and to improve them.'

That was Thursday, the same day the United States and Russia at Geneva revealed plans which make them look no closer on disarmament and nuclear test bans than they were when Menshikov first arrived.

In the four years between arrivals of the two ambassadors there was much that happened, and much that didn't, on disarmament. There was much talking. But what didn't happen was agreement on anything.

353 Meetings, Nothing

When Menshikov came here the United States and Russia were still firing off their nuclear tests in the atmosphere. Later that year, 1958, they voluntarily suspended them.

Then for three years of voluntary no-testing they talked about agreeing on a permanent ban on testing. Actually they had 353 sessions which broke up with no agreement last January.

In that three-year period the two sides conducted what the State Department likes to call a "series of probes" into each other's intentions.

Resumption Next Step

Toward the end of that same three-year period Russia began testing again in the atmosphere. The United States plans to do likewise next month.

But this was not all that happened, or didn't happen, between Menshikov and Dobrynin because a ban on nuclear tests is not all there is to disarmament. There is the big, broad problem of general disarmament.

It is almost incredible to go back over the record and note all that was said on both sides — on tests and disarmament—in statements, letters, pronouncements, and negotiations of one kind of another by Premier Khrushchev, Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy, secretaries of state and sundry rpresentatives, statesmen and politicians.

A few examples of the conferences alone—and the conferences themselves were preceded by prodigious jockeying on both sides—make disarmament and modern man look as far off and windy as Mt. Everest.

In July 1958 East-West scientists met at Geneva to study the possibility of detecting violations of a possible agreement on suspension of nuclear tests.

On Nov. 1, 1958 there was a 10-nation conference on how to reduce the danger of surprise attack and this broke up in disagreement in six weeks.

Still Miles Apart

Just two years ago this week —on March 15, 1960—and in the same place as now, general disarmament talks began. Both sides were miles apart, as they were this week. The talks collapsed after 48 meetings.

Then for three months, starting in June 1961, the two sides met again, not to discuss disarmament but simply to discuss the question of how to start discussing disarmament.

When they finished the two sides issued a statement full of noble intentions which said nothing.

Here we go again.

South Passes Bounce Test

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The test of a great card player is his ability to bounce back after bad breaks have changed a lay down contract to an almost impossible one.

Harry Harkavy of Miami is particularly adept at this phase of play. If he had been looking at all the cards he would have played the ace of clubs at trick two, ruffed a club, led a diamond from dummy and stuck in the jack whereupon since West was void of trumps there would have been no way to beat him.

Harry did take the first spade at trick one, but he continued by playing the ace and jack of diamonds, whereupon East took his king and led the ace and another heart.

Harry won in dummy and proceeded to make the hand anyway. He led the ten of diamonds and discarded a spade. West took his queen and led the ten of spades. Harry won with the ace in dummy and led a diamond. East ruffed. Harry overruffed and led a trump to dummy. Two more trump leads pulled the rest of the trumps and now Harry played dummy's last diamond.

This last diamond lead squeezed West. He had to unguard his king of clubs in order to hang on to the high spade and Harry made the last two tricks with the ace and queen of clubs.

Lawyer Fined $500

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Attorney Vernon R. Wells of Buffalo, N.Y., was fined $500 and given one year's probation Thursday in a divorce mill case.

Wells appeared in three different circuit courts, two in St. Louis and one in St. Louis County, to answer charges growing out of a divorce mill operation in which Buffalo residents obtained divorces in Missouri.

TV Fare Still On Winter Type Variety Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Spring is not far behind, but the television schedules are still showing signs of winter-type variety — ranging widely during the next seven days from sports specials to another musical, nostalgic look at the Hollywood of the golden days.

Tonight, however, there is one of many network reports on the progress of Mrs. John F. Kennedy in her Asian goodwill tour. Chet Huntley will do the reporting (NBC, 10:30-11 EST).

A game in the world amateur ice hockey championships between a U.S. and Canadian team will be broadcast live from Colorado Springs Sunday by CBS (1:30-4 p.m.). and GE theater (CBS, 9-9:30 p.m.) will start a two-part series based on the real adventures of Marian Miller, a housewife who did Communist espionage for the FBI. "Cops and Robbers (NBC, 10-11) is a project 20 documentary on crime in America with Edward G. Robinson doing the narration.

A star-studded variety show, "Arthur Freed's Hollywood Melody' is Monday nights headliner (NBC, 9-10) with Donald O'Connor, Shirley Jones, Nanette Fabray and Juliet Prowse recalling some great old movie songs.

"Two Black Kings,' a suspense tale, is scheduled for Wednesday night's Steel Hour on (CBS 10-11) and stars Eva Gabor and James Broderick.

Bob Hope, this time abetted by Ethel Merman, Maximilian Schell, Piper Laurie and Fabian (singing, not acting), will have another special Thursday evening (NBC, 8:30-9:30).

Slightly Overdue

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—More light was shed today on goings-on in City Hall. Windows in the 87-year-old building were washed for the first time in 10 years.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

Some of our finest buildings were built from 1850 to the early 1920's. One of the handsomest buildings in uptown Kingston is the Burgevin building at the corner of Main and Fair streets for which contracts were awarded on April 29, 1905 by George and David Burgevin. William McCullough received the masonry contract and Albert Mauterstock of Rondout received the carpentry work. I do not have the details or the type of materials used, except it was of red brick. From time to time I am asked about the construction of buildings or old homes, but it's just by accident that one runs across them in old newspapers.

I notice that very many of our better buildings are three stories high, such as the Burgevin building. George Von Beck back in the 1850's built both his Mansion House and the Masonic Temple three stories high. Perhaps that was an achievement in those days. For one thing a third story helps to keep the second story cool. In olden days, they used to have the living room and kitchen downstairs, the bedrooms upstairs, and there was always an attic and cellar. Then they started to make ranch houses all on one floor, and then they put another floor on top again.

If you will notice, people with money like a view, and a high building, our castle type structures of private homes have several floors. We are lucky in this section that we do not have any earth trembling like in California so we can build sky high, like New York City. I understand urban renewal structures for Rondout will be at the most two stories high.

We have much high ground here, I see no reason to build in such lowlands that after every heavy rain or melting snow there are floods and lakes of water. One case of our most magnificent locations, I think is the George Mead's Mt. House on the slope of Overlook Mt. in the town of Woodstock. It is said, he bought the farm in 1864 and because of the magnificent view it became a famous tourist and summer resort. He was one of the first to entertain summer visitors at the south end of the Catskill region in Ulster County. George Mead died on March 24, 1905 at the age o

The name Luke Noone in K[illegible] has always interested me, and I found the following interesting information in a newspaper clipping I received some time ago from Attorney Henry Klein of Green Street. Luke Noone came from Ireland. A young stone cutter, he worked on the N. Y. and Erie R. R. in 1848 and that same year came to Kingston, to follow his trade here and in Troy. In 1850 he with three other men formed the Edward Murray & Co. which constructed the weight lock at West Troy, and in 1852 furnished the stone for the Fair Street Reformed Church of Kingston. The firm later was known as Noone and Fitzgerald and they constructed Lock No. 2 on the Erie Canal.

Later Luke Noone went in business for himself and furnished cut stone for a portion of the Harlem bridge in New York, a weight lock on the Champlain canal, a guard lock at Cohoes; the sea wall for the Battery in New York, and a portion of stone used for the construction of the state capital in Albany, and also for the bridge across the Hudson at Albany. In 1870 he was in business with Frank Madden, furnishing a large part of the stone for the building of the Brooklyn Bridge. He retired from active business in 1897. Luke Noone died on March 16, 1905 in his home on Pearl Street, in his 84th year.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass., — Last week I discussed investing in common stocks and mentioned several of the most popular groups today, one or two of the most speculative, and some which should be good for the "long pull." To be safe, not more than one third of an investor's funds should be in common stocks today.

Preferred Stocks and Corporation Bonds

This week let me describe other securities to be purchased solely for income: Preferred stocks will yield the most — nearly 5%. I prefer only the cumulative and "non-callable" preferreds. Best of these seem to be the preferred stocks of the Utilities — avoiding New York, Chicago, and other large cities which might be bombed. Of the Industrial preferreds United States Steel Corp. 7% Cum. Non-callable Preferred should fit most investor requirements. It sells at over $140 per share but yields nearly 5%.

Following the preferreds we may consider high-grade corporation bonds. These yield about 4½%. Avoid "collateral trust" or "subordinated" bonds, stocking to a mortgage bond except for large corporations such as the American Tel. & Tel. Co. which puts out debentures of the highest grade. This company has just issued $300 million due in 32 years — yielding about 4½%. I would not hold them too long, —as someday the federal government may take this company over. First-mortgage bonds of strong railroads are worthy of consideration. All State Bonds— not "revenue bonds" — should be good.

Municipal Bonds and Governments

I next rate Municipal Bonds especially for those investors in a high income bracket because interest thereon is non-taxable. Here again I say: "Avoid the large cities which might be bombed." I prefer the bonds of state capitals — cities usually located in the interior of the state. State capital cities seldom suffer from unemployment. Moreover, their income is largely derived from state taxation. State Revenue Turnpike Bonds are worthy of mention. Although these are non-taxable as to interest — yet their interest payments depend upon uncertain toll receipts.

We next come to "Governments." These will always be paid,—principal and interest. The Federal Government is the only "corporation" which can print money in case of a severe depression. On the other hand, U. S. Government Bonds are taxable both as to principal and interest. My favorites are the U. S Savings Bonds Series E, on which the interest is paid when the bond is cashed at the end of 7 years and 9 months. Or the U. S Savings Bonds Series H, on which the interest is paid by check twice a year. These Series H Bonds are issued to be cashed at the end of 10 years. Both Series E and Series H pay about 3¾%.

Bank Accounts

I should also mention interest paid by Savings and Loan Banks, Commercial Banks, Mutual Savings Banks, and Mutual Funds. These pay 4% or more. An ideal investment portfolio, in my humble judgment, now consists of about one-third in common stocks; one-third in preferred stocks or corporation bonds; and one-third in bank deposits or good short-term bonds which can readily at any time be turned into cash. This last third I like to think of as "Liquid Funds" which can be used later for buying more common or preferred stocks—or for buying more bonds, or real estate—whenever any bargains occur in any of these possible investments. I like Kansas real estate acreage.

In closing, I must say a word regarding inflation. With President Kennedy spending federal money so freeely it seems that eventual inflation is ahead of us. The present dollar worth 100 cents in 1940 is now worth under 50 cents. If we should get into a World War, it could go to 25 cents, or less. This means that preferred stocks—and all bonds having no maturity or a long fixed maturity — would sharply decline in price. The above are my conclusions after fifty years of studying investments.

In 1850 he with three other men formed the Edward Murray & Co. which constructed the weight lock at West Troy, and in 1852 furnished the stone for the Fair Street Reformed Church of Kingston. The firm later was known as Noone and Fitzgerald and they constructed Lock No. 2 on the Erie Canal.

Later Luke Noone went in business for himself and furnished cut stone for a portion of the Harlem bridge in New York, a weight lock on the Champlain canal, a guard lock at Cohoes; the sea wall for the Battery in New York, and a portion of stone used for the construction of the state capital in Albany, and also for the bridge across the Hudson at Albany. In 1870 he was in business with Frank Madden, furnishing a large part of the stone for the building of the Brooklyn Bridge. He retired from active business in 1897. Luke Noone died on March 16, 1905 in his home on Pearl Street, in his 84th year.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass., — Last week I discussed investing in common stocks and mentioned several of the most popular groups today, one or two of the most speculative, and some which should be good for the "long pull." To be safe, not more than one third of an investor's funds should be in common stocks today.

Preferred Stocks and Corporation Bonds

This week let me describe other securities to be purchased solely for income: Preferred stocks will yield the most — nearly 5%. I prefer only the cumulative and "non-callable" preferreds. Best of these seem to be the preferred stocks of the Utilities — avoiding New York, Chicago, and other large cities which might be bombed. Of the Industrial preferreds United States Steel Corp. 7% Cum. Non-callable Preferred should fit most investor requirements. It sells at over $140 per share but yields nearly 5%.

Following the preferreds we may consider high-grade corporation bonds. These yield about 4½%. Avoid "collateral trust" or "subordinated" bonds, stocking to a mortgage bond except for large corporations such as the American Tel. & Tel. Co. which puts out debentures of the highest grade. This company has just issued $300 million due in 32 years — yielding about 4½%. I would not hold them too long, —as someday the federal government may take this company over. First-mortgage bonds of strong railroads are worthy of consideration. All State Bonds— not "revenue bonds" — should be good.

Municipal Bonds and Governments

I next rate Municipal Bonds especially for those investors in a high income bracket because interest thereon is non-taxable. Here again I say: "Avoid the large cities which might be bombed." I prefer the bonds of state capitals — cities usually located in the interior of the state. State capital cities seldom suffer from unemployment. Moreover, their income is largely derived from state taxation. State Revenue Turnpike Bonds are worthy of mention. Although these are non-taxable as to interest — yet their interest payments depend upon uncertain toll receipts.

We next come to "Governments." These will always be paid,—principal and interest. The Federal Government is the only "corporation" which can print money in case of a severe depression. On the other hand, U. S. Government Bonds are taxable both as to principal and interest. My favorites are the U. S Savings Bonds Series E, on which the interest is paid when the bond is cashed at the end of 7 years and 9 months. Or the U. S Savings Bonds Series H, on which the interest is paid by check twice a year. These Series H Bonds are issued to be cashed at the end of 10 years. Both Series E and Series H pay about 3¾%.

Bank Accounts

I should also mention interest paid by Savings and Loan Banks, Commercial Banks, Mutual Savings Banks, and Mutual Funds. These pay 4% or more. An ideal investment portfolio, in my humble judgment, now consists of about one-third in common stocks; one-third in preferred stocks or corporation bonds; and one-third in bank deposits or good short-term bonds which can readily at any time be turned into cash. This last third I like to think of as "Liquid Funds" which can be used later for buying more common or preferred stocks—or for buying more bonds, or real estate—whenever any bargains occur in any of those possible investments. I like Kansas real estate acreage.

In closing, I must say a word regarding inflation. With President Kennedy spending federal money so freely it seems that eventual inflation is ahead of us. The present dollar worth 100 cents in 1940 is now worth under 50 cents. If we should get into a World War, it could go to 25 cents, or less. This means that preferred stocks—and all bonds having no maturity or a long fixed maturity — would sharply decline in price. The above are my conclusions after fifty years of studying investments.

Wiltwyck Boys Have Artwork on Display In Paltz Gallery

An exhibition of children's paintings from the Wiltwyck School for Boys opened at the New Paltz Gallery on Thursday.

The Wiltwyck School, located in Esopus, is an inter-racial, non-sectarian treatment center for troubled youngsters. They range in age from 7 to 14.

The art therapy program, one of several tools used as treatment, is directed by Hugh Mesibov, himself a painter. The therapist works with a team of psychiatrists, and functions as artist, teacher and therapist. The boys' pictures are used diagnostically, and reveal emotional attitudes, fantasies, and cultural background.

Many of these boys are gifted; all appear to have a more than average drive to express themselves. They have produced an interesting and a moving exhibition.

This show will be on view for one month, concluding April 15. The New Paltz Gallery is located one-quarter mile off exit 18 of the New York State Thruway, toward Poughkeepsie. Hours are 10:30 to 6 daily, until 9 Friday evening, and from 1 to 6 Sunday. The gallery is closed on Monday.

InformationTopic Heard at Session Of Underwriters

The importance of informing the policyholder was the subject of an address heard Monday night at the meeting of Mid-Hudson Chapter of the Society of Chartered Property and Casualty Underwriters held at Pine Tree Inn, Newburgh.

The speaker was Kenneth Collins, underwriting manager of the General Mutual Insurance Company, and president of the newly-formed Policyholder's Information Office of New York, Inc. Collins spoke on the importance of communication between the insurance industry and the policyholder, stressing the importance of communicating to the policyholder an understanding of increasing rates, policy cancellations and assigned risk placement. The Policyholder's Information Office is an organization set up to answer questions and furnish information on an unbiased and factual basis on the local level.

He explained the importance of the advancements already made in the Albany-Schenectady area by means of radio panel programs that will answer all questions that are telephoned into the radio station. Debate on Plan, Zoning Sites Stirs Big Debate

The running battle between Eugene Ostrow of Willow who heads the Willow Woods project, and chairman J. C. Rijn of the Planning Board and Dr. Harry Anthony of Brown and Anthony, consultants to the Woodstock Planning Board, furnished some of the more tense exchanges in this week's public hearing at Town Hall.

Ostrow has insisted from the outset that the Growth Plan drafted by Brown and Anthony is, in effect, a Village Plan and is not geared to the criteria of a town Master Plan. He also charged that the present plan is concentrated on the village and has completely overlooked an important segment of the community—the senior citizens, and people in the hamlets.

Ostrow also described the Growth Plan as a "private plan." He charged that it did include a complete field study and that "this private plan has no legal significance."

Planning Board chairman, J. C. van Rijn, in an unprecedented parlimentary maneuver, preceded Ostrow to the microphone and read a prepared statement in which he questioned Ostrow's motives and referred to the proposed Willow Woods plan as a "prefabricated project."

The long standing feud between the Planning Board and Ostrow over developments connected with Willow Woods has furnished the background for several clashes between the parties at public hearings. Since the details are not generally known to the public, these exchanges have tended to annoy the audience. This became evident when many persons started filing out of the hall, as Ostrow started his final statement. The ensuing commotion drowned out Ostrow's remarks and the meeting was adjourned.

Audience Dissents

During one exchange when Ostrow's motives in coming to the community were questioned, he replied with a remark about having heard about "empire builders" but did not elaborate.

Ostrow and Dr. Anthony were in sharp disagreement on the interpretation of Town Planning and Ostrow challenged Anthony to read it from the town law book. However, a dissenting chorus from the audience sidetracked the issue.

Dr. Anthony was asked by a person in the audience about his background in planning and replied that his firm has planned far more villages and towns than cities in the state of New York.

Complementary questions by Lawrence G. Casey and Sidney Slayton of Lake Hill on the fate of properties included in the so-called "open spaces" in the Lake Hill area triggered another exchange. Both sought to ascertain if the principle of "eminent domain" could be applied by the town if these areas were made into recreation grounds. Although neither speaker specifically referred to "eminent domain" per se, it appeared obvious to Attorney John Egan at least, that this was the intent of their question. He sprang to his feet and accused Anthony of "double talk" and shouted: "Stop double talking and give this man (Casey) the answer he wants." Attorney Alvin Moscowitz also got into the debate briefly on the side of Anthony, but the planning consultant vigorously insisted he didn't know the answers to the question.

Clarifies Position

In clarification of proposed industrial sites included in the Growth Plan, Chairman van Rijn emphasized that "no one has to sell land to industry, if it is within the proposed industrial zone."

van Rijn, in rebuttal to criticism that the three industrial zones were bad choices, said: Let us assume it (a Lake Hill spot) was a choice badly made but then let us go on to say that we are only in the middle of the plan, and things are still quite flexible. All sites are largely schematic and primarily to test the principles and objectives. Dr. Anthony will tonight outline an alternative method of 'floating' sites which we could follow instead."

van Rijn admitted the Planning Board might have made a mistake in alloting specific industrial sites, but said the locations are tentative. He then introduced the principle of "floating industrial zones" which can go in almost any district, if the Town Board gives permission by amending the zoning ordinance.

The principle of "flexible zoning" is a novel one, van Rijn said. This type zoning prescribes only average densities, as necessary, due to soil and other conditions and whereby large and small lots can be intermingled providing only that the average number of houses in a certain area conforms to the regulation. "This avoids the emergence of something like rich man's and poor man's districts, which we believe is contrary to the spirit of Woodstock," he said.

Asked if he had any experience with the so-call "flexible zoning," Dr. Anthony replied that it was a relatively new theory.

Robert Carlson And the Mullers In P-TA Program

The Onteora P-TA's Cultural Arts Committee has invited three outstanding entertainment personalities to be guest performers in the annual fund raising show on Saturday, April 14, at 8 p. m. in the auditorium of the Boiceville building.

Scheduled to appear are Robert Carlson, bass, and Pat and Harrison Muller, dancers. All three artists have outstanding professional backgrounds in the concert field and on Broadway and in television.

Carlson, a long time resident of Woodstock area, is currently appearing on the Perry Como show. Gifted with a beautiful bass voice and keen musical ability, Calson lends his talents to either the concert stage or musical comedy with equal success. A few years ago, "The Carolers" quintet, for which Carlson served as soloist and arranger, had the honor of giving a command performance at the White House for the Queen Mother of England and President and Mrs. Eisenhower. The Carolers toured throughout the United States and their concerts ranged from the intimacy of New York's Town Hall and Washington, D. C.'s National Gallery to the vast space of San Antonio's auditorium for an appearance with the symphony.

Besides choir and solo work throughout the New York area and performances with the American League for Opera Concert work, Carlson was in the original cast of Finian's Rainbow. After this, he joined Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians on radio and television at which time he played the title role in "Emperor's Clothes," written especially for him. In recent years he has been singing and playing character parts in television shows for Patti Page, Dave King and Perry Como, plus innumerable recording sessions. He has just completed an album for RCA Victor working with a male quartet known as The Four Doormen. It will be released soon under the title of Barbershop Ballads.

Famous Dancers

Pat and Harrison Muller, who are teaching in their own Dance Academy in Woodstock, started their careers dancing on Broadway and were featured in such shows as "Allegro" by Rodgers and Hammerstein; "Seventeen," and John Murray Anderson's "Almanac."

A few of the many television appearances made by the Mullers included spots on the shows of Ed Sullivan, Burns and Allen, Frank Sinatra, Max Liebman's "Show of Shows", Jack Paar show and NBC spectaculars.

All of these productions, together with their night club performances at the Copacabana Las Vegas, Ciro's and extensive travel in Europe in a production of Rogers and Hammerstein enhanced the reputation of the Muller dance team. Harrison was also under contract assignment with CBS and NBC as performer and choreographer.

The Onteora P-TA is indeed proud to present these three exceptional talents and their program is being designed and directed so as to have special appeal for both students and adults.

The proceeds of this performance will be used to further the purpose of the P-TA's Cultural Arts Committee, whose purpose is to make available to the students of the Onteora Central District professional performers of a calibre that will enrich their curriculum and at the same time be entertaining. It is also the committee's desire to contribute to the school's present cultural activities.

Local Artists Prize Winners In Audubon Show

Two prominent Woodstock artists—Ethel Magafan and Bruce Currie—won signal honors at the "Audubon Artists" annual exhibition at New York's National Academy Galleries.

Audubon Artists highest annual award, its Medal of Honor, was awarded to Ethel Magafan for her large oil painting, "Mountainous Place" and Audubon's "Grumbacher Award" of $300 went to Bruce Currie for his stylized portrait of Ethel, who is his wife, but uses her maiden name in the art world.

Both works are reproduced in the official show catalog.

New York's Whitney Museum is host these days to former Woodstock artist Paul Burlin's large traveling exhibition arranged by the American Federation of Arts in a grant by the Ford Foundation. Burlin is now 76.

The exhibition is extensively and, at times vehemently discussed by leading art critics of the press and art journals.

Welfare Study Is Not Needed, Says Democrat Senator

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A Democratic senator says a study of public welfare ordered by Gov. Rockefeller is unnecessary and wasteful.

Sen. Samuel L. Greenberg, D-Brooklyn, said Thursday the governor was "going far afield in expending tax dollars. A special legislative committee already has made such a report, based on a survey by private consultants, the senator said.

"The governor has failed to act on the very exhaustive, thorough and far - reaching recommendations of the report made by the committee," Greenberg said. He added "it happens to be an election year."

The survey which will cost an estimated $205,000, is to be conducted by a private firm of consultants. They will check 5,700 welfare cases in six counties to determine why people are on relief and what can be done to help them become self-supporting.

Rockefeller appointed an 11-member Moreland Act commission to study the entire welfare field and make recommendations to the 1963 Legislature. The commission gave a contract Tuesday for the six-county study.

"I don't understand the expenditure of another $205,000 to do another job when there are thousands and thousands of pages of testimony taken by the (special legislative) committee," Greenberg said.

Senate Majority Leader Walter J. Mahoney said the report would supplement the legislative study.

Besides, he said, the study was necessary "because some people suspect us legislators."

Marriage Boom Coming

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government statistician says a major marriage boom is coming in the United States.

Dr. Forrest E. Linder, director of the National Center for Health Statistics, made the prediction and asked a House Appropriations group for more funds to help keep track of it.

Linder, in testimony made public Thursday, said boys and girls born in the high birth-rate period that followed World War II are reaching marriage age now.

Panel Discusses Fluoridation at Kiwanis Meeting

The case for fluoridation was presented to the Kingston Kiwanis Club at its Thursday luncheon by a panel headed by Dr. George Bushnell, local dentist. Others appearing on the program were Dr. Walter H. Meyer, chairman of the Dental Health Education Committee, Dr. Jeremiah Sachs, president of the Dental Association and Dr. Herbert Derman, director of the city laboratory.

Dr. Bushnell pointed out that it was the purpose of the Dental Health Committee "to teach proper care of the teeth." This included periodic checkups and fluoridation, he said. He pointed out that "fluoridation is not 100 percent effective — that nothing is," and he indicated various activities which necessitated "faith in many things," in order to enjoy modern living.

A film was shown to the Kiwanians concerning findings made at a research center in Rochester, which indicated that the fluoridation of a water supply was a help in the treatment of dental problems.

Following the presentation, a question and answer period was held, with interest shown to the point where the discussion terminated far past the usual time of the Kiwanis meetings.

Hope to Beam Light at Moon

WASHINGTON (AP) — American scientists are planning soon to beam a powerful red light at the moon, hoping it will be reflected back to earth.

Although theoretically the beam would be strong enough to be visible for 20 million miles, the scientists say little of the experiment will actually be seen.

People living near the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor—where the experiment will be conducted—may see the beam as a spectacular red needle in the sky. But they will have to look sharp, for the light will dart out in pulses of a fraction of a second.

The hope is, said physicist Peter A. Franken of the university staff, that some of the beam can be bounced off one of the moon's highly reflective craters —making a round trip between the earth and moon in 2½ seconds.

All this, he said in a report prepared for the Optical Society of America, amplified at a news conference, will be part of an experiment to explore further possible uses of devices called "Lasers."

"Laser stands for "light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation." It is an experimental instrument to amplify and sharpen relatively weak waves of light to produce a very narrow, powerful beam.

Franken said the Michigan tests are scheduled to begin in a week or so.

Debate on Plan, Zoning Sites Stirs Big Debate

The running battle between Eugene Ostrow of Willow who heads the Willow Woods project, and chairman J. C. Rijn of the Planning Board and Dr. Harry Anthony of Brown and Anthony, consultants to the Woodstock Planning Board, furnished some of the more tense exchanges in this week's public hearing at Town Hall.

Ostrow has insisted from the outset that the Growth Plan drafted by Brown and Anthony is, in effect, a Village Plan and is not geared to the criteria of a town Master Plan. He also charged that the present plan is concentrated on the village and has completely overlooked an important segment of the community—the senior citizens, and people in the hamlets.

Ostrow also described the Growth Plan as a "private plan." He charged that it did include a complete field study and that "this private plan has no legal significance."

Planning Board chairman, J. C. van Rijn, in an unprecedented parlimentary maneuver, preceded Ostrow to the microphone and read a prepared statement in which he questioned Ostrow's motives and referred to the proposed Willow Woods plan as a "prefabricated project."

The long standing feud between the Planning Board and Ostrow over developments connected with Willow Woods has furnished the background for several clashes between the parties at public hearings. Since the details are not generally known to the public, these exchanges have tended to annoy the audience. This became evident when many persons started filing out of the hall, as Ostrow started his final statement. The ensuing commotion drowned out Ostrow's remarks and the meeting was adjourned.

Audience Dissents

During one exchange when Ostrow's motives in coming to the community were questioned, he replied with a remark about having heard about "empire builders" but did not elaborate.

Ostrow and Dr. Anthony were in sharp disagreement on the interpretation of Town Planning and Ostrow challenged Anthony to read it from the town law book. However, a dissenting chorus from the audience sidetracked the issue.

Dr. Anthony was asked by a person in the audience about his background in planning and replied that his firm has planned far more villages and towns than cities in the state of New York.

Complementary questions by Lawrence G. Casey and Sidney Slayton of Lake Hill on the fate of properties included in the so-called "open spaces" in the Lake Hill area triggered another exchange. Both sought to ascertain if the principle of "eminent domain" could be applied by the town if these areas were made into recreation grounds. Although neither speaker specifically referred to "eminent domain" per se, it appeared obvious to Attorney John Egan at least, that this was the intent of their question. He sprang to his feet and accused Anthony of "double talk" and shouted: "Stop double talking and give this man (Casey) the answer he wants." Attorney Alvin Moscowitz also got into the debate briefly on the side of Anthony, but the planning consultant vigorously insisted he didn't know the answers to the question.

Clarifies Position

In clarification of proposed industrial sites included in the Growth Plan, Chairman van Rijn emphasized that "no one has to sell land to industry, if it is within the proposed industrial zone."

van Rijn, in rebuttal to criticism that the three industrial zones were bad choices, said: Let us assume it (a Lake Hill spot) was a choice badly made but then let us go on to say that we are only in the middle of the plan, and things are still quite flexible. All sites are largely schematic and primarily to test the principles and objectives. Dr. Anthony will tonight outline an alternative method of 'floating' sites which we could follow instead."

van Rijn admitted the Planning Board might have made a mistake in alloting specific industrial sites, but said the locations are tentative. He then introduced the principle of "floating industrial zones" which can go in almost any district, if the Town Board gives permission by amending the zoning ordinance.

The principle of "flexible zoning" is a novel one, van Rijn said. This type zoning prescribes only average densities, as necessary, due to soil and other conditions and whereby large and small lots can be intermingled providing only that the average number of houses in a certain area conforms to the regulation. "This avoids the emergence of something like rich man's and poor man's districts, which we believe is contrary to the spirit of Woodstock," he said.

Asked if he had any experience with the so-call "flexible zoning," Dr. Anthony replied that it was a relatively new theory.

Robert Carlson And the Mullers In P-TA Program

The Onteora P-TA's Cultural Arts Committee has invited three outstanding entertainment personalities to be guest performers in the annual fund raising show on Saturday, April 14, at 8 p. m. in the auditorium of the Boiceville building.

Scheduled to appear are Robert Carlson, bass, and Pat and Harrison Muller, dancers. All three artists have outstanding professional backgrounds in the concert field and on Broadway and in television.

Carlson, a long time resident of Woodstock area, is currently appearing on the Perry Como show. Gifted with a beautiful bass voice and keen musical ability, Calson lends his talents to either the concert stage or musical comedy with equal success. A few years ago, "The Carolers" quintet, for which Carlson served as soloist and arranger, had the honor of giving a command performance at the White House for the Queen Mother of England and President and Mrs. Eisenhower. The Carolers toured throughout the United States and their concerts ranged from the intimacy of New York's Town Hall and Washington, D. C.'s National Gallery to the vast space of San Antonio's auditorium for an appearance with the symphony.

Besides choir and solo work throughout the New York area and performances with the American League for Opera Concert work, Carlson was in the original cast of Finian's Rainbow. After this, he joined Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians on radio and television at which time he played the title role in "Emperor's Clothes," written especially for him. In recent years he has been singing and playing character parts in television shows for Patti Page, Dave King and Perry Como, plus innumerable recording sessions. He has just completed an album for RCA Victor working with a male quartet known as The Four Doormen. It will be released soon under the title of Barbershop Ballads.

Famous Dancers

Pat and Harrison Muller, who are teaching in their own Dance Academy in Woodstock, started their careers dancing on Broadway and were featured in such shows as "Allegro" by Rodgers and Hammerstein; "Seventeen," and John Murray Anderson's "Almanac."

A few of the many television appearances made by the Mullers included spots on the shows of Ed Sullivan, Burns and Allen, Frank Sinatra, Max Liebman's "Show of Shows", Jack Paar show and NBC spectaculars.

All of these productions, together with their night club performances at the Copacabana Las Vegas, Ciro's and extensive travel in Europe in a production of Rogers and Hammerstein enhanced the reputation of the Muller dance team. Harrison was also under contract assignment with CBS and NBC as performer and choreographer.

The Onteora P-TA is indeed proud to present these three exceptional talents and their program is being designed and directed so as to have special appeal for both students and adults.

The proceeds of this performance will be used to further the purpose of the P-TA's Cultural Arts Committee, whose purpose is to make available to the students of the Onteora Central District professional performers of a calibre that will enrich their curriculum and at the same time be entertaining. It is also the committee's desire to contribute to the school's present cultural activities.

Local Artists Prize Winners In Audubon Show

Two prominent Woodstock artists—Ethel Magafan and Bruce Currie—won signal honors at the "Audubon Artists" annual exhibition at New York's National Academy Galleries.

Audubon Artists highest annual award, its Medal of Honor, was awarded to Ethel Magafan for her large oil painting, "Mountainous Place" and Audubon's "Grumbacher Award" of $300 went to Bruce Currie for his stylized portrait of Ethel, who is his wife, but uses her maiden name in the art world.

Both works are reproduced in the official show catalog.

New York's Whitney Museum is host these days to former Woodstock artist Paul Burlin's large traveling exhibition arranged by the American Federation of Arts in a grant by the Ford Foundation. Burlin is now 76.

The exhibition is extensively and, at times vehemently discussed by leading art critics of the press and art journals.

'Wealth of Person' Sunday Sermon Topic At Shady Methodist

The Rev. H. Chase Page will preach on the subject "Wealth of Person" at the regular Sunday evening church service at the Methodist Church of Shady, beginning at 7:30 p. m. on March 18. A coffee and fellowship hour will follow the church service, in the lecture room. The public is cordially invited to both events.

Sunday school is held every Sunday morning at 10:30 in the church with classes for all ages. Visitors are always welcome. Arthur MacDaniel is superintendent, with Miss Mae MacDaniel in charge of the opening service on March 18.

Choir rehearsal is held directly following Sunday school. Practice for Easter music is now in progress, with special music planned for both the annual Easter dawn service and the regular evening church service.

Plans Progressing for Youth Center Dance

Plans are progressing for first dance sponsored by the Woodstock Youth Center on Friday, March 23, at the Woodstock school auditorium.

The dance is the first major event planed by the Youth Center since its opening in February. It has been announced that casual dress will be the theme. There is no admission charge and all teenagers in the area are invited. Refreshments will be sold.

Welfare Study Is Not Needed, Says Democrat Senator

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A Democratic senator says a study of public welfare ordered by Gov. Rockefeller is unnecessary and wasteful.

Sen. Samuel L. Greenberg, D-Brooklyn, said Thursday the governor was "going far afield in expending tax dollars. A special legislative committee already has made such a report, based on a survey by private consultants, the senator said.

"The governor has failed to act on the very exhaustive, thorough and far - reaching recommendations of the report made by the committee," Greenberg said. He added "it happens to be an election year."

The survey which will cost an estimated $205,000, is to be conducted by a private firm of consultants. They will check 5,700 welfare cases in six counties to determine why people are on relief and what can be done to help them become self-supporting.

Two Tag-Team Matches Head Wrestling Card on April 4

The professional wrestling troupe returns to Kingston after a long absence on Wednesday, April 4, when Promoter Ed Ceccolini of Ossining presents a double tag-team windup and two solo bouts at the municipal auditorium.

John Valentine and Cowboy Bob Ellis will team against Bob Orton and the Great Scot in one of the double windups, both best of three falls team matches.

In the other headliner, Mark Lewin and Bill Darnell are paired against the highly popular Irish (Skull) Murphy and Brute Bernard in the second best-of-three falls contest.

Two outstanding solo performers—Miguel Perez and Karl Von Hess, the German Badman, are scheduled to meet in a 30-minute time limit, one-fall contest. The opener matches Marque DeParee and Gene Marrin, both newcomers to Kingston wrestling audiences.

Although the grunt and groan artists have been absent from the city for several months, a record turnout is expected to be attracted by the standout performers. The principals in the tag team matches are among the most popular in the game today.

Von Hess, who bills himself as a Prussian nobleman, is a long standing favorite of Kingston audiences. A master of histronics and theatricals, he is also one of the most accomplished wrestlers in the business. Murphy, the giant bald pated Irishman, is another performer who can arouse the crowd just by stepping into the ring.

First contest is scheduled at 8:40 p. m. The public sale of advanced seat reservations will be announced.

Wildlife Week Activities Listed

National Wildlife Week activities, March 18-24, with the theme of Water Conservation, are progressing rapidly, according to Chet Joy, area chairman.

Essay contests on, "What the National Conservation Pledge Means to Me," are underway in the Kingston, Saugerties and Onteora junior high and high school districts.

Contributions in the form of $25 Government Savings Bonds and certificates for achievement have been awarded by the Civic Pride Committees and the Saugerties Chamber of Commerce; the Jaycees of Kingston and Folkert Brothers Sporting Goods of Phoenicia and the South Side Gun Club for the Onteora district.

The Federated Sportsmen Clubs of Ulster County voted at their last meeting to give a $50 Savings Bonds for the best essay entered.

Educational films on the multi purpose approach to Conservation may also be obtained. They are available through the courtesy of Syracuse University and can be shown at school assemblies, open house activities and organizations through March 25.

Committeemen in Saugerties are Harry Slobodian, Carlton King, Richard Bollin and Charles Letcher. Those in Kingston are Bob Carlzon, Chet Diffley, Fred Loheid, Angelo Fasano, William S. Keyser and S. James Matthews. The Onteora committeemen are George Reffelt, Shokan; Fred Wagner and Bob Nelson, Woodstock.

Newburgh Cagers Seek Section Nine Honors

Newburgh Free Academy will attempt to cap a successful season with a win over Haverstraw tonight in the finals of the Class A, Section Nine Basketball tournament.

The Goldies and Rockland County team will meet, 8:30 p. m., at the Orange County Community College gym in Middletown and Coach Joe Gaspard's club is a solid favorite to add the Sectional title to its DUSO championship.

Newburgh thumped Spring Valley, 64-32, last week to earn its berth in the finals. Haverstraw, the defending champion, beat Kingston, 50-43, in the other semi-final attraction.

The Class D. champion will also be decided tonight as Livingston Manor and Jeffersonville, a pair of Sullivan County clubs, meet at the OCCC gym in the 7 p. m. opener. Manor is defending champion.

Clarkson in Hockey Finals, Defeats Michigan Team, 5-4

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — St. Lawrence goes against Michigan Tech in a semifinal of the NCAA hockey tournament tonight with the winner to meet surprising Clarkson for the national title Saturday.

Clarkson, a three-time entrant in the semifinals, made the championship round for the first time Thursday night, fighting off a Michigan rally for a 5-4 upset of the westerners.

"The kids played a great game, Coach Len Ceglarski beamed, "and that (goalie Wayne) Gibbons was tremendous.

Gibbons, who turned in 24 saves, was the key man in fighting off Michigan's last period rush that threatened to overtake Clarkson's early lead.

Comes to Life

The Golden Knights held a 4-2 lead going into the final period before Michigan captain Gorddon Berenson sparked the Wolverines to life.

He had been held in check by Clarkson wing Arnie Lawlor through the first two periods, but the big forward broke through for a pair of last period goals to put the Wolverines in contention again.

His first came on a solo rush the length of the ice to close it to 4-3. Cordby Adams got one back for Clarkson before Berenson again cut the margin to one goal, 5-4, with less than three minutes to go. Gibbons was under constant pressure the rest of the way, but held up.

In addition to Adams, other Clarkson scorers were Lawlor, Bert Halliwell, Bob Taylor and Roger Purdie.

St. Lawrence takes a 16-7-1 record into its match with Michigan Tech tonight, while the Western Division collegiate champions have a 27-3 mark, including 18 straight.

Crisafullis', Wulff and Kunz Bridge Winners

The husband and wife combination of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Crisafulli of Boiceville posted a fine 62 per cent game to pace the North-South side of the Glenerie Bridge Club's Fractional point bridge game.

Roy Wulff and Carl Kunz of Kingston led the East-West section with 64 per cent.

Runnersup on the North-South side were: Earl Yohnell and John Chapman, Poughkeepsie, 59 per cent; Dr. and Mrs. Harry McNamara, Hurley, 55 per cent; Mrs. Harold Rakov and Mrs. Charles W. Walton, Kingston, 53 per cent.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Weinstein of Accord were second with 62 per cent on the East-West side. Paul Mezer and Morton Honig, Kingston, had 60 per cent; with Milton Dubin and Stanley Kaplan of Kingston, hitting 57 per cent.

The monthly Master Point tournament is scheduled tonight at 8 o'clock at the Ridgely Casino in Stone Ridge.

Finish at Saratoga Draws Publicity

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y. — Saratoga Raceway has been the subject of nationwide publicity during the past few months, and in one case was the subject of international publicity.

The event that brought the Spa track such widespread fame is the new famous one-through-seven finish on August 9, 1961, in the eighth race that night. The odds against this perfect numerical finish are 5,840 to 1.

Horses that lined up at the start in the order of their post positions and head numbers, and finished the same way, were: 1-Windal Bonnie Boy (H. Adriance), 2-Tiny Rosecroft (C. Peckham), 3-Brunson (F. LaRouech), 4-Judge Dares (C. Franklin), 5-Rebel Land (D. Bromley), 6-Shaker Scotta (W. Lamb) and 7-Hi Way (M. Pyatt).

Thomas Hoping To Win High Jump In K of C Meet

By LARRY FRIEDMAN

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—John Thomas, America's greatest high jumper, said he has no certain height in mind for tonight's 22nd annual Knights of Columbus track meet except to jump as high as he possibly can.

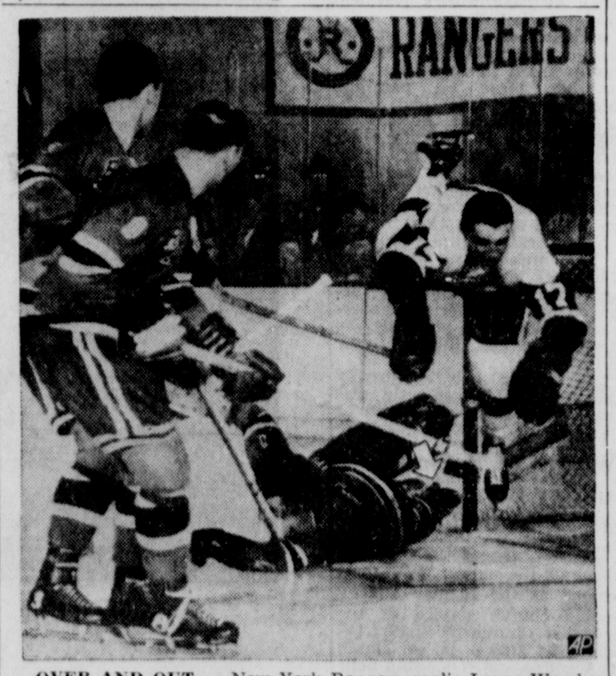
He said his first aim is to win in the final meet of the indoor season. "If I can do that," he added, "then I might start thinking about records."

Most observers figure Thomas, 20, of Boston University, can snap the meet record of 6 feet, 9⅛ inches. He injured his ankle early in the winter, but said he was in good shape after a rugged conditioning program.

Although Thomas is the main attraction for the expected crowd of 7,500 at the Cleveland Arena, there are several other high spots on the program.

The 1,000-yard run, for example, features Bill Crothers, the University of Toronto star who has run under the accepted world record, against George Kerr of Illinois and John Bork, 1961 NCAA champion from Western Michigan.

The mile pits Tom O'Hara of Loyola of Chicago, the defending champ, against Villanova freshman ace Tom Sullivan and Pete Close of the Marines. O'Hara and Sullivan both have run faster than Wes Santee's meet mark of 4:04.6. O'Hara owns a 4:01.6 clocking.



OVER AND OUT — New York Rangers goalie Lorne Worsley goes to the ice to kick puck, arrow, away from net as Detroit Red Wings forward Claude La Forge flies over him on the scoring try in New York's Madison Square Garden. The Rangers won, 3-2, to move into fourth place in the National Hockey League. Defenseman Harry Howell and forward Dave Balon (8) of the Rangers are at left. (AP Wirephoto)

Two Tag-Team Matches Head Wrestling Card on April 4

The professional wrestling troupe returns to Kingston after a long absence on Wednesday, April 4, when Promoter Ed Ceccolini of Ossining presents a double tag-team windup and two solo bouts at the municipal auditorium.

John Valentine and Cowboy Bob Ellis will team against Bob Orton and the Great Scot in one of the double windups, both best of three falls team matches.

In the other headliner, Mark Lewin and Bill Darnell are paired against the highly popular Irish (Skull) Murphy and Brute Bernard in the second best-of-three falls contest.

Two outstanding solo performers—Miguel Perez and Karl Von Hess, the German Badman, are scheduled to meet in a 30-minute time limit, one-fall contest. The opener matches Marque DeParee and Gene Marrin, both newcomers to Kingston wrestling audiences.

Although the grunt and groan artists have been absent from the city for several months, a record turnout is expected to be attracted by the standout performers. The principals in the tag team matches are among the most popular in the game today.

Von Hess, who bills himself as a Prussian nobleman, is a long standing favorite of Kingston audiences. A master of histronics and theatricals, he is also one of the most accomplished wrestlers in the business. Murphy, the giant bald pated Irishman, is another performer who can arouse the crowd just by stepping into the ring.

First contest is scheduled at 8:40 p. m. The public sale of advanced seat reservations will be announced.

Wildlife Week Activities Listed

National Wildlife Week activities, March 18-24, with the theme of Water Conservation, are progressing rapidly, according to Chet Joy, area chairman.

Contributions in the form of $25 Government Savings Bonds and certificates for achievement have been awarded by the Civic Pride Committees and the Saugerties Chamber of Commerce; the Jaycees of Kingston and Volkert Brothers Sporting Goods of Phoenicia and the South Side Fun Club for the Onteora district.

The Federated Sportsmen Clubs of Ulster County voted at their last meeting to give a $50 Savings Bonds for the best essay entered.

Educational films on the multi purpose approach to Conservation may also be obtained. They are available through the courtesy of Syracuse University and can be shown at school assemblies, open house activities and organizations through March 25.

Clarkson in Hockey Finals, Defeats Michigan Team, 5-4

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — St. Lawrence goes against Michigan Tech in a semifinal of the NCAA hockey tournament tonight with the winner to meet surprising Clarkson for the national title Saturday.

Clarkson, a three-time entrant in the semifinals, made the championship round for the first time Thursday night, fighting off a Michigan rally for a 5-4 upset of the westerners.

"The kids played a great game, Coach Len Ceglarski beamed, "and that (goalie Wayne) Gibbons was tremendous.

Gibbons, who turned in 24 saves, was the key man in fighting off Michigan's last period rush that threatened to overtake Clarkson's early lead.

Comes to Life

The Golden Knights held a 4-2 lead going into the final period before Michigan captain Gorddon Berenson sparked the Wolverines to life.

He had been held in check by Clarkson wing Arnie Lawlor through the first two periods, but the big forward broke through for a pair of last period goals to put the Wolverines in contention again.

His first came on a solo rush the length of the ice to close it to 4-3. Cordby Adams got one back for Clarkson before Berenson again cut the margin to one goal, 5-4, with less than three minutes to go. Gibbons was under constant pressure the rest of the way, but held up.

In addition to Adams, other Clarkson scorers were Lawlor, Bert Halliwell, Bob Taylor and Roger Purdie.

St. Lawrence takes a 16-7-1 record into its match with Michigan Tech tonight, while the Western Division collegiate champions have a 27-3 mark, including 18 straight.

Yankees Still Undefeated, Topple Hapless Reds, 8-3

Mantle's Homer Gives Champions An Early Margin

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees have stretched their winning streak to four over Cincinnati by beating the National League pennant-winners in their first meeting since the 1961 World Series.

Mickey Mantle provided an early lead with a three-run homer in the first inning as the Yanks boosted their unbeaten streak to six games Thursday with an 8-3 victory over the inept Reds at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

It was the world champion Yankees' first victory over National League competition and maintained the only unblemished record in the exhibition standings while pushing the Reds into sole possession of 10th place among senior circuit clubs with a 1-5 mark.

The Yanks collected nine hits. Bud Daley, Rollie Sheldon and former Red Marshall Bridges checked Cincinnati on six hits.

Giants Lose

In other games, Boston edged San Fracisco 7-6 in 11 innings at Phoenix, Washington walloped the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-4 at Pompano Beach, Kansas City whipped Minnesota 7-3 at West Palm Beach, Chicago's Cubs defeated the Los Angeles Angels 7-3 at Mesa and Houston beat Cleveland 4-2 at Apache Junction.

The New York Mets-Pittsburgh and Philadelphia-Milwaukee tilts were canceled due to rain. Baltimore and St. Louis were not scheduled.

Al Smith's third hit, a double leading off the 10th, led to the White Sox' winning run when Joe Cunningham singled him home.

Rookies Larry Wieck and Bob Tillman hit three-run pinch-hit homers in the ninth as the Red Sox tied it and went on to beat the Giants in the 11th when rookie Dick Holden wild pitched Ed Bressoud home.

The Senators continued their long-distance clouting with Dale Long hitting two homers and Joe Hicks one against the Dodgers, who retaliated with Tommy Davis' third in three days and one by pitcher Larry Sherry. The A's struck for five runs in the second—three on a Manny Jimenez homer—as they handed the winless Twins their sixth defeat.

Home runs by Bob Will and Ken Hubbs carried the Cubs to their triumph over the Angels.

The Colts, outhit 7-4 by the Indians, were able to score three times in the sixth for win No. 2.

FELLER IN CAMP

By BOB FELLER
As told to
HARRY GRAYSON
Newspaper Enterprise Sports Editor

MIAMI, Fla. — (NEA) — As far as the Dodgers are concerned, this is almost where you came in a year ago.

Only four members of the Los Angeles National League club can count on their jobs—Johnny Roseboro, Junior Gilliam, Maury Wills and, rather surprisingly, Daryl Spencer, who appears to have it made at third base. With Charley Neal gone to the New York Mets, Gilliam is back at second base, where he started with the outfit in Brooklyn. Larry Burright, fetched up from Atlanta, probably will be carried for the purpose of backing up Gilliam.

Walter Alston still has to figure out how to play the Davises, Tommy and Willie, while giving enough work to oldsters like Wally Moon and Duke Snider.

With Gil Hodges peddled to the Mets and Norm Larker to the freshly coined Houston Colt .45s, Manager Alston is giving the 6-7, 250-pound Frank Howard the full treatment as a first baseman. Alston has added protection at first base in Ron Fairly, left-handed all the way and even more adept in the outfield.

THE DODGERS HAVE plenty of talent as usual, yet they have won only one pennant in the last five campaigns and that in a playoff.

"We have no one like (Willie) Mays, (Hank) Aaron or (Eddie) Mathers," said Alston, as we chatted before a night game with the Orioles at Miami Stadium. "Our hidden weapon is that one of the kids might reach his potential this year and step into this class."

That could be the reason the Dodgers fell short last year and were beaten off the campaign before. They need a big star to carry them, like Jackie Robinson, Snider and Roy Campanella did in their brightest days in Flatbush. Moon is the only guy who can qualify as a leader at present and you don't know what the old Cardinal will do now that he hasn't got the friendly (for him) Los Angeles Coliseum screen on his side. Poking the ball to left field in the new Dodger Stadium will be something else again.

ALSTON PROCLAIMS some dissatisfaction with the Los Angeles pitching, though I believe he's loaded in that department. Walter complains that his pitchers gave up to many runs in 1961. Incidentally, note the age of the staff. The oldest is Ed Roebuck, the relief worker, and he's only 30. The starters are, off course, Don Drysdale, Sandy Koufax, Johnny Podres and Stan Williams. Alston assures you that the sidearming Drysdale is not nearly as temperamental as they make him out to be.

Joe Moeller, a large, 19-year-old right hander up from Reno, Greenville, Spokane and way stations, has people gasping at his potential, but might be a yyear or two away. Pete Richert could be a dark horse. This 22-year-old left-hander had arm trouble after bagging 19 games and setting a new strikeout record of 251 for Atlanta in 1960. Alston reeled off the names of 10 young pitchers.

With all that talent around, baseball people pay no attention to reports that Walter Alston is on the spot as manager.

Floyd, Liston To Sign Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson and challenger Sonny Liston are scheduled to sign for a title fight today that may be the biggest money-maker of them all.

Both Patterson and the controversial challenger from Philadelphia are expected to be present for the signing ceremony at a midtown hotel.

The site and date of the fight have not been disclosed, but it is expected to be held in a New York ball park in late June or early July.

The fight is expected to gross more than $3 million at the gate and from ancillary rights. Some estimates have ranged as high as $10 million

Patterson will get about 55 per cent of it. Liston will receive 12½ per cent. The contract also calls for a return bout clause, approved by Patterson, should Liston win.

The heavy-handed Philadelphian is ranked No. 1 challenger by both the National Boxing Association and Ring Magazine.

Battey Credits His Mother for Baseball Success

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A great deal of what Earl Battey knows about catching today he owes to his mother.

"Mom was a catcher on a girls' softball team back home in Los Angeles," said Minnesota's brilliant backstop and the American League's top fielding catcher two years in a row. "She was a fine catcher. I ought to know. As a kid, I used to watch her play."

Mrs. Battey quit playing ball in 1947, shortly before the arrival of the sixth of her 10 children. Earl was 12 then. Earl Sr., was an outstanding softball pitcher, and the husband-and-wife Battey battery was the star attraction at the church picnics.

"Imagine mom coming home with dishpan hands and broken fingers," grinned Battey.

"Yet she was opposed to my becoming a catcher. She even refused to give me permission to catch on the high school team. I had to forge her signature. When she found out, it was too late.

"Even later, when I was offered a contract by the Chicago White Sox organization, she refused to give her permission. I was only 18 at the time. I had an athletic scholarship to UCLA, a basketball scholarship, that is, and she wanted me to get a college education first.

"I entered UCLA but my heart wasn't in it. I wanted to play professional ball. I kept after her until she finally relented. I quit school after a couple of months and joined the Colorado Springs Club."

Battey came up to the White Sox to stay in 1957 and was traded to Washington in 1960. He was the club's top hitter last year, batting .302 with 17 home runs.

Bruins Defeat Detroit, 4-0

The Boston Bruins, National Hockey League have-nots who appeared to be on their way to a record in reverse, suddenly have started throwing their weight around in the Stanley Cup playoff picture.

The last-place Bruins, who hadn't won since Jan. 27, stunned Detroit 4-0 Thursday night and all but ruined the Red Wings' hopes for a playoff spot.

It left the Wings two points back of fourth-place New York in the struggle for the last playoff berth. Each team has four more games to play.

Montreal, shooting for its fifth straight regular season title, all but clinched it with a 6-5 triumph over Chicago in the only other game. The Canadiens lead second-place Toronto by seven points and need a combination of two victories or two Toronto losses for the title.

Yankees Still Undefeated, Topple Hapless Reds, 8-3

Mantle's Homer Gives Champions An Early Margin

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees have stretched their winning streak to four over Cincinnati by beating the National League pennant-winners in their first meeting since the 1961 World Series.

Mickey Mantle provided an early lead with a three-run homer in the first inning as the Yanks boosted their unbeaten streak to six games Thursday with an 8-3 victory over the inept Reds at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

It was the world champion Yankees' first victory over National League competition and maintained the only unblemished record in the exhibition standings while pushing the Reds into sole possession of 10th place among senior circuit clubs with a 1-5 mark.

The Yanks collected nine hits. Bud Daley, Rollie Sheldon and former Red Marshall Bridges checked Cincinnati on six hits.

Giants Lose

In other games, Boston edged San Fracisco 7-6 in 11 innings at Phoenix, Washington walloped the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-4 at Pompano Beach, Kansas City whipped Minnesota 7-3 at West Palm Beach, Chicago's Cubs defeated the Los Angeles Angels 7-3 at Mesa and Houston beat Cleveland 4-2 at Apache Junction.

The New York Mets-Pittsburgh and Philadelphia-Milwaukee tilts were canceled due to rain. Baltimore and St. Louis were not scheduled.

Al Smith's third hit, a double leading off the 10th, led to the White Sox' winning run when Joe Cunningham singled him home.

Rookies Larry Wieck and Bob Tillman hit three-run pinch-hit homers in the ninth as the Red Sox tied it and went on to beat the Giants in the 11th when rookie Dick Holden wild pitched Ed Bressoud home.

The Senators continued their long-distance clouting with Dale Long hitting two homers and Joe Hicks one against the Dodgers, who retaliated with Tommy Davis' third in three days and one by pitcher Larry Sherry. The A's struck for five runs in the second—three on a Manny Jimenez homer—as they handed the winless Twins their sixth defeat.

Home runs by Bob Will and Ken Hubbs carried the Cubs to their triumph over the Angels.

The Colts, outhit 7-4 by the Indians, were able to score three times in the sixth for win No. 2.

FELLER IN CAMP

By BOB FELLER
As told to
HARRY GRAYSON
Newspaper Enterprise Sports Editor

MIAMI, Fla. — (NEA) — As far as the Dodgers are concerned, this is almost where you came in a year ago.

Only four members of the Los Angeles National League club can count on their jobs—Johnny Roseboro, Junior Gilliam, Maury Wills and, rather surprisingly, Daryl Spencer, who appears to have it made at third base. With Charley Neal gone to the New York Mets, Gilliam is back at second base, where he started with the outfit in Brooklyn. Larry Burright, fetched up from Atlanta, probably will be carried for the purpose of backing up Gilliam.

Walter Alston still has to figure out how to play the Davises, Tommy and Willie, while giving enough work to oldsters like Wally Moon and Duke Snider.

With Gil Hodges peddled to the Mets and Norm Larker to the freshly coined Houston Colt .45s, Manager Alston is giving the 6-7, 250-pound Frank Howard the full treatment as a first baseman. Alston has added protection at first base in Ron Fairly, left-handed all the way and even more adept in the outfield.

THE DODGERS HAVE plenty of talent as usual, yet they have won only one pennant in the last five campaigns and that in a playoff.

"We have no one like (Willie) Mays, (Hank) Aaron or (Eddie) Mathers," said Alston, as we chatted before a night game with the Orioles at Miami Stadium. "Our hidden weapon is that one of the kids might reach his potential this year and step into this class."

That could be the reason the Dodgers fell short last year and were beaten off the campaign before. They need a big star to carry them, like Jackie Robinson, Snider and Roy Campanella did in their brightest days in Flatbush. Moon is the only guy who can qualify as a leader at present and you don't know what the old Cardinal will do now that he hasn't got the friendly (for him) Los Angeles Coliseum screen on his side. Poking the ball to left field in the new Dodger Stadium will be something else again.

ALSTON PROCLAIMS some dissatisfaction with the Los Angeles pitching, though I believe he's loaded in that department. Walter complains that his pitchers gave up to many runs in 1961. Incidentally, note the age of the staff. The oldest is Ed Roebuck, the relief worker, and he's only 30. The starters are, off course, Don Drysdale, Sandy Koufax, Johnny Podres and Stan Williams. Alston assures you that the sidearming Drysdale is not nearly as temperamental as they make him out to be.

Joe Moeller, a large, 19-year-old right hander up from Reno, Greenville, Spokane and way stations, has people gasping at his potential, but might be a yyear or two away. Pete Richert could be a dark horse. This 22-year-old left-hander had arm trouble after bagging 19 games and setting a new strikeout record of 251 for Atlanta in 1960. Alston reeled off the names of 10 young pitchers.

With all that talent around, baseball people pay no attention to reports that Walter Alston is on the spot as manager.

Floyd, Liston To Sign Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson and challenger Sonny Liston are scheduled to sign for a title fight today that may be the biggest money-maker of them all.

Both Patterson and the controversial challenger from Philadelphia are expected to be present for the signing ceremony at a midtown hotel.

The site and date of the fight have not been disclosed, but it is expected to be held in a New York ball park in late June or early July.

The fight is expected to gross more than $3 million at the gate and from ancillary rights. Some estimates have ranged as high as $10 million

Patterson will get about 55 per cent of it. Liston will receive 12½ per cent. The contract also calls for a return bout clause, approved by Patterson, should Liston win.

The heavy-handed Philadelphian is ranked No. 1 challenger by both the National Boxing Association and Ring Magazine.

Philadelphia — Dick Turner, 147, Philadelphia, outpointed Gaylord Barnes, 155, Valley Stream, N.Y., 8.

Battey Credits His Mother for Baseball Success

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A great deal of what Earl Battey knows about catching today he owes to his mother.

"Mom was a catcher on a girls' softball team back home in Los Angeles," said Minnesota's brilliant backstop and the American League's top fielding catcher two years in a row. "She was a fine catcher. I ought to know. As a kid, I used to watch her play."

Mrs. Battey quit playing ball in 1947, shortly before the arrival of the sixth of her 10 children. Earl was 12 then. Earl Sr., was an outstanding softball pitcher, and the husband-and-wife Battey battery was the star attraction at the church picnics.

"Imagine mom coming home with dishpan hands and broken fingers," grinned Battey.

"Yet she was opposed to my becoming a catcher. She even refused to give me permission to catch on the high school team. I had to forge her signature. When she found out, it was too late.

"Even later, when I was offered a contract by the Chicago White Sox organization, she refused to give her permission. I was only 18 at the time. I had an athletic scholarship to UCLA, a basketball scholarship, that is, and she wanted me to get a college education first.

"I entered UCLA but my heart wasn't in it. I wanted to play professional ball. I kept after her until she finally relented. I quit school after a couple of months and joined the Colorado Springs Club."

Battey came up to the White Sox to stay in 1957 and was traded to Washington in 1960. He was the club's top hitter last year, batting .302 with 17 home runs.

Bruins Defeat Detroit, 4-0

The Boston Bruins, National Hockey League have-nots who appeared to be on their way to a record in reverse, suddenly have started throwing their weight around in the Stanley Cup playoff picture.

The last-place Bruins, who hadn't won since Jan. 27, stunned Detroit 4-0 Thursday night and all but ruined the Red Wings' hopes for a playoff spot.

It left the Wings two points back of fourth-place New York in the struggle for the last playoff berth. Each team has four more games to play.

Montreal, shooting for its fifth straight regular season title, all but clinched it with a 6-5 triumph over Chicago in the only other game. The Canadiens lead second-place Toronto by seven points and need a combination of two victories or two Toronto losses for the title.

Lions to Award Savings Bonds at 15th Exposition

This year's Lions Club Exposition promises to be rewarding as well as entertaining.

Over $1,000 in Savings Bonds will be offered along with hundreds of dollars worth of merchandise.

This will be the 15th annual Industrial Exposition and Home Show presented by the Kingston Lion's Club.

The exposition, as usual, is to be held at the National Guard Armory, Manor Avenue, from April 10 through April 14. The show is being billed as a Spring Extravaganza, in which the Lion's Club has made every effort to bring new and fresh approach to the Exposition.

Rolling Vehicle Causes Collision On Rt. 32 Glasco

Mrs. Mildred Buonfiglio, 53 of Glasco was treated and released from Kingston Hospital for injuries suffered when her car was struck Thursday night by an unoccupied vehicle rolling out of a driveway on Route 32, Kingston state police reported.

Troopers David Wachtel and Joel Rosenshein reported Mrs. Buonfiglio complained of head and back injuries.

Mrs. Buonfiglio was proceeding north on Route 32 at 8:55 p. m. when the unattended car of Michael Mottsey, a 1955 sedan, rolled out of his driveway onto the highway and struck her vehicle in the left side, troopers said.

Mrs. Buonfiglio lost control, spun around and struck a utility pole, state police reported. The mishap occurred on Route 32 between Fullers Corners and Route 9W.

Replace Markers

Fire Fighters Are Making Check on Disabled Again

An annual recheck of handicapped persons under fire protection through a special project of the Uniformed Fire Fighters Association, Local 461, AFL-CIO, is being made, it was announced today.

Rechecks are made of those entitled to markers indicating residence of handicapped persons to determine if they are at the same designated room and if markers which have been placed are in good condition. William Schreiber heads the identification markers committee.

"We have found many instances," said Conrad Remus, a spokesman for the local, "where sometime in the year the marker has fallen off or has become damaged. Whatever the case may be, we should be notified at once so that the marker may be replaced. We are not concerned with how the marker became damaged or destroyed," but only with "the proper display of the marker for the protection of the handicapped person in the dwelling."

This program was initiated in 1961, and after three years there are approximately 125 residents of the city protected by the scotchlite identification markers.

"Although the committee is pleased with the number of handicapped people who are covered by this program, there are still undoubtedly many in the city who should have the protection of these markers," Remus said.

"The Uniformed Fire Fighters urge any resident who is blind, deaf, bedridden, or handicapped in any way, to contact William Schreiber, FE-8-8633, or phone fire headquarters, FE 1-2122. A member of the committee will be glad to place the markers properly on your home.

"This is a free community project, placing the handicapped person under no charge or obligation whatsoever."

All were asked to remember Mr. Bailie with Easter or get well cards by writing to him at Room 306, E-3, Castle Point Veterans Hospital, Castle Point. A St. Patrick's Carnival will be held at the Hospital March 21 at which time the Saugerties group will have a booth.

Members voted to purchase 20 card tables for use in the hall.

Various reports from the chairmen showed a total of 300 hours spent by Mrs. Helen Arold in making 51 large and 367 small cancer pads, 12 pajama tops, and 3 leprosy bandages. Thirty-three pints of blood were donated at the last blood bank drawing. The community service report showed $125 and 104 hours in activities in the past month.

Lions to Award Savings Bonds at 15th Exposition

This year's Lions Club Exposition promises to be rewarding as well as entertaining.

Over $1,000 in Savings Bonds will be offered along with hundreds of dollars worth of merchandise.

This will be the 15th annual Industrial Exposition and Home Show presented by the Kingston Lion's Club.

The exposition, as usual, is to be held at the National Guard Armory, Manor Avenue, from April 10 through April 14. The show is being billed as a Spring Extravaganza, in which the Lion's Club has made every effort to bring new and fresh approach to the Exposition.

Rolling Vehicle Causes Collision On Rt. 32 Glasco

Mrs. Mildred Buonfiglio, 53 of Glasco was treated and released from Kingston Hospital for injuries suffered when her car was struck Thursday night by an unoccupied vehicle rolling out of a driveway on Route 32, Kingston state police reported.

Troopers David Wachtel and Joel Rosenshein reported Mrs. Buonfiglio complained of head and back injuries.

Mrs. Buonfiglio was proceeding north on Route 32 at 8:55 p. m. when the unattended car of Michael Mottsey, a 1955 sedan, rolled out of his driveway onto the highway and struck her vehicle in the left side, troopers said.

Mrs. Buonfiglio lost control, spun around and struck a utility pole, state police reported. The mishap occurred on Route 32 between Fullers Corners and Route 9W.

Replace Markers

Fire Fighters Are Making Check on Disabled Again

An annual recheck of handicapped persons under fire protection through a special project of the Uniformed Fire Fighters Association, Local 461, AFL-CIO, is being made, it was announced today.

Rechecks are made of those entitled to markers indicating residence of handicapped persons to determine if they are at the same designated room and if markers which have been placed are in good condition. William Schreiber heads the identification markers committee.

"We have found many instances," said Conrad Remus, a spokesman for the local, "where sometime in the year the marker has fallen off or has become damaged. Whatever the case may be, we should be notified at once so that the marker may be replaced. We are not concerned with how the marker became damaged or destroyed," but only with "the proper display of the marker for the protection of the handicapped person in the dwelling."

This program was initiated in 1961, and after three years there are approximately 125 residents of the city protected by the scotchlite identification markers.

"Although the committee is pleased with the number of handicapped people who are covered by this program, there are still undoubtedly many in the city who should have the protection of these markers," Remus said.

"The Uniformed Fire Fighters urge any resident who is blind, deaf, bedridden, or handicapped in any way, to contact William Schreiber, FE-8-8633, or phone fire headquarters, FE 1-2122. A member of the committee will be glad to place the markers properly on your home.

"This is a free community project, placing the handicapped person under no charge or obligation whatsoever."

Cold Air Dips Into N. Florida

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation's weather pattern showed only minor changes today with a continuation of unseasonable cold in most areas and a few wet spots.

Coldest weather clung to eastern sections of the northern Plains and in parts of the central and northern Rockies. Temperatures ranged from zero into the teens.

But some of the cold air dipped into the Southland, with freezing weather in parts of Kentucky and Tennessee. Temperatures were mostly in the 30s and 40s in the Southeast as far south as northern Florida.

Readings were in the 20-30 range in the major part of the country, below the normal levels for mid-March. Spring starts next Wednesday.

In the West, the 40s prevailed in the northern Pacific Coast states, and ranged into the 40-50 degree level in southern sections and the Southwest.

Precipitation was light. More snow flurries powdered areas from the southern Upper Mississippi Valley throughout most of the Great Lakes region. Light rain or showers dampened northern sections of the Pacific Coast and rain fell in sections of southern Florida.

Senate Okay Due Monday on NYC Takeover of Buses

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The Senate is expected to give final legislative approval Monday to bills that would permit New York City to take over the strikebound Fifth Avenue Transit Corp.

Sen. Walter J. Mahoney, Republican majority leader, was under heavy fire from Democrats today for his refusal to pass the bills this week.

The Assembly approved two of the bills Wednesday and the final one Thursday.

Mahoney said GOP senators had decided it would be in the best interests of the state and the people of the City of New York to postpone a Senate vote until a special Senate subcommittee had completed an investigation into the situation.

Democrats accused Mahoney of playing politics with the plight of more than one million riders of the Fifth Avenue buses.

The line has been struck since March 1 by the Transport Workers Union. The city has charged that the new management of the line deliberately precipitated a strike to pressure the city into granting a 5-cent increase in the fare.

The Senate subcommittee concluded a hearing Thursday into charges made by the company that an emissary of Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner offered a fare increase after the November election if the company would withdraw its demand now.

The charge has been denied by the city.

Rocky Notes Record

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Rockefeller said today that New York State, for the second consecutive year, has rehabilitated more adults than any other state.

Rockefeller was a speaker for the annual meeting of the governors committee on "Employ the Physically Handicapped."

In a prepared speech, Rockefeller noted that 1961 was the second consecutive year in which New York rehabilitated more adults than any other state—a 1961 total of 6,733. In addition, he said, the state provided rehabilitation services to more than 16,000 persons under 21 years of age.

The placement of 40,382 handicapped persons in jobs last year, the governor said, was an all-time high for the state, and the largest total achieved by any state.

N. Y. Soldier Killed

SEA BRIGHT, N.J. (AP)—Pvt. Allen R. Small, 21, of Angola, N.Y., was killed Thursday night when his automobile smashed into a concrete abutment on Ocean Avenue.

Small, who was stationed at Ft. Hancock, apparently lost control of the car, which spun before crashing. The soldier was thrown from the car on impact, police said.

Commission Is Quizzing Brokers About 200 Stocks

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission announced today it is quizzing all of the nation's 5,750 brokerage firms about dealings in 200 stocks.

The mammoth inquiry—part of a larger study of the entire securities industry — will yield the first detailed picture of exactly what goes on in the over-the-counter market. It is in this loosely organized market that brokers and investors trade in securities outside the regular stock exchanges.

Milton H. Cohen, director of the SEC's industry study, said a special questionnaire is being mailed to all brokerage houses "to obtain general information about the growth and size of the over-the-counter market and specific data as to transactions in that market." The completed questionnaires must be returned by April 9.

Hopes for Answer

The SEC hopes, through an analysis of the questionnaires, to find out how many shares and how much money change hands in the market and how many brokers participate.

It also wants to know if it takes a large volume of trading to produce noteworthy price changes, and if brokers are overcharging customers on over-the-counter trades.

These trades are negotiated between the buyer and the seller—usually with brokers acting as their agents. In many cases, brokers help to make the market by buying and selling securities for their own account.

The questionnaires note that it is a criminal offense to submit false information to a federal government agency.

Wants Daily Report

They go on to ask for a list of every over-the-counter trade in 115 active stocks on a single day—last Jan. 18. Brokers must disclose prices, commissions and markups. They need not identify individual customers involved.

The 115 stocks include many prominent issues, among them American Airlines, Anheuser-Busch, Bank of America, General Telephone & Electronics, Hartford Fire Insurance, Lockheed Aircraft, Pacific Power & Light, Pocket Books, Royal Dutch Petroleum and Wisconsin Power & Light.

The SEC said stocks were chosen "on a random sampling basis and their selection in no way implies any question about the particular securities" or trading in them.

Legal Officer Says City Is Not Liable for Baby Deaths

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Binghamton's legal officer says the city cannot be held liable for the deaths of six babies, apparently from salt poisoning, at the city-owned Binghamton General Hospital.

Corporation Counsel John Romagnoli said Thursday night the mayor appoints members of the hospital board but has no control over their actions after they are appointed. The mayor does not have the power to remove them, he said.

Romagnoli cited an Appellate Division decision of about 25 years ago in which Binghamton and the hospital were cleared of liability in a case he described as similar. He gave no details.

The babies died last weekend after being fed a formula that contained salt instead of sugar. The hospital has suspended a practical nurse, who said she filled the formula room sugar can with ingredients from a larger container labeled "sugar." The sugar and salt containers were side by side in the hospital's main kitchen.

The hospital has not announced whether the deaths of the six infants were caused by the salt. A pediatrician who examined the babies said, however, they had been fed the equivalent of an adult dosage of four pounds of salt in one day, which he said was "a lethal amount."

Dist. Atty. Stephen Smyk said Thursday laboratory tests in Albany had determined that 29 bottles, which had been refrigerated for later use at the hospital, contained "a heavy concentration of sodium chloride."

One of the 30 babies known to have been fed the formula remained in serious condition today. Three others still under treatment were considered fair or satisfactory. All four had improved, a hospital spokesman said.

For the babies, who survived, there was the possibility of brain injury. Doctors said, however, it might be several months, or years, before it could be definitely determined.

Another telephoned bomb threat was received at the hospital last night, this time from a woman. A male caller phoned the hospital four times Tuesday night with threats of bombings. Police searched but found no signs of a bomb either night.

Cold Air Dips Into N. Florida

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation's weather pattern showed only minor changes today with a continuation of unseasonable cold in most areas and a few wet spots.

Coldest weather clung to eastern sections of the northern Plains and in parts of the central and northern Rockies. Temperatures ranged from zero into the teens.

But some of the cold air dipped into the Southland, with freezing weather in parts of Kentucky and Tennessee. Temperatures were mostly in the 30s and 40s in the Southeast as far south as northern Florida.

Readings were in the 20-30 range in the major part of the country, below the normal levels for mid-March. Spring starts next Wednesday.

In the West, the 40s prevailed in the northern Pacific Coast states, and ranged into the 40-50 degree level in southern sections and the Southwest.

Precipitation was light. More snow flurries powdered areas from the southern Upper Mississippi Valley throughout most of the Great Lakes region. Light rain or showers dampened northern sections of the Pacific Coast and rain fell in sections of southern Florida.

Senate Okay Due Monday on NYC Takeover of Buses

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The Senate is expected to give final legislative approval Monday to bills that would permit New York City to take over the strikebound Fifth Avenue Transit Corp.

Sen. Walter J. Mahoney, Republican majority leader, was under heavy fire from Democrats today for his refusal to pass the bills this week.

The Assembly approved two of the bills Wednesday and the final one Thursday.

Mahoney said GOP senators had decided it would be in the best interests of the state and the people of the City of New York to postpone a Senate vote until a special Senate subcommittee had completed an investigation into the situation.

Democrats accused Mahoney of playing politics with the plight of more than one million riders of the Fifth Avenue buses.

The line has been struck since March 1 by the Transport Workers Union. The city has charged that the new management of the line deliberately precipitated a strike to pressure the city into granting a 5-cent increase in the fare.

The Senate subcommittee concluded a hearing Thursday into charges made by the company that an emissary of Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner offered a fare increase after the November election if the company would withdraw its demand now.

The charge has been denied by the city.

Legal Officer Says City Is Not Liable for Baby Deaths

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Binghamton's legal officer says the city cannot be held liable for the deaths of six babies, apparently from salt poisoning, at the city-owned Binghamton General Hospital.

Corporation Counsel John Romagnoli said Thursday night the mayor appoints members of the hospital board but has no control over their actions after they are appointed. The mayor does not have the power to remove them, he said.

Another telephoned bomb threat was received at the hospital last night, this time from a woman. A male caller phoned the hospital four times Tuesday night with threats of bombings. Police searched but found no signs of a bomb either night.
